

When His Eyes Opened Read Novel Chapter 3138

Novel Chapter 3138 -Layla couldn't help giggling: "You said him so well; what do you want us to say? We haven't seen him, and we don't know if he is really as good as you said."

"He's really nice. I won't lie to you." Hazel explained with a blushing face.

"Hazel, mom knows you're not lying. But when people are in love, they are easy to get on top and become a love brain. At this time, your judgment is not so accurate." Avery explained, "You are planning to return to Thopiavelle when you come back this time, right?"

Hazel nodded: "I promised to bring him a gift. I can't break my word."

Avery: "When are you going to have a showdown with him?"

Hazel: "Mom, do you mean confession?"

Avery: "I'm talking about when you will explain your identity to him. You can't be so confused all the time, right? I think you have passed so many days this time, and the two of you have made no progress. It's not the same thing if you keep procrastinating."

Hazel: "Isn't my brother testing him? I can't tell him my identity now." After a pause, Hazel continued, "But he probably guessed that I was Siena. Otherwise, he wouldn't have given me this bracelet."

It was silent again.

"Why don't you talk anymore?" Hazel's face became even redder.

"Hahaha! What do you want your parents to say? They don't want to marry you to Lucas. But if we directly disagree, you will be sad again. I dare say that parents have not been so troubled for many years." Robert's joyful answer relieved the embarrassing atmosphere a little.

"I'm a little hungry." Hazel stood up from the sofa and said, "Let's go eat! I miss the food at home so much! I'm not used to the food in Thopiavelle!"

Layla complained: "You can gain weight by eating unaccustomed meals; what are you doing there every day?"

Hazel: "Maybe I don't worry too much! In fact, when I was in Thopiavelle, I didn't gain weight so easily."

Layla: "You look good with a little flesh now! You were too thin before! I guess you were under too much pressure from studying before."

"Well, sister, how do you feel now?" Hazel reached out and touched Layla's stomach. "Do you feel uncomfortable?"

Layla: "It's definitely a bit uncomfortable, but it's not particularly uncomfortable. It may also be because I'm young and in good health, so I'm super adaptable."

Hazel: "That's good. I'm most worried about you now."

Layla: "You still worry about me, I worry about you! I'm afraid you will be cheated by that, Lucas!"

The family sat down at the table, and the servants brought the food to the table.

Hazel: "I admit that I am a little bit romantic now, but my basic bottom line is still there. The principle is that I will not marry Thopiavelle. I will definitely stay in Aryadelle. No matter how good a man is, he is not as good as his parents, brothers, and sisters."

Hazel's words made Elliot and Avery feel a little more at ease.

After eating, Hazel went back to the room and took a shower.

Then lie down on the bed, pick up the phone, and send a message to Lucas to report her safety.

Lucas did not reply.

Hazel said to herself, "This guy is still angry! Do you think I'm dishonest? Then what can I do, I must listen to my family!"

Hazel put down the phone and turned off the lights in the room: "Let's go to bed first! Let's talk about tomorrow."

Thopiavelle.

Lucas was holding an investment contract in his hand. A man that Hayden sent was standing in opposition to him.
