

Chapter 0036

Fiona's Pov

"Do I scare you Fiona Macleod?" Alpha Izaak asked, his eyes bore into my very soul, freezing me on the spot. I could not look away as I was lost in his magnetic eyes. The kind of effect he has on me whenever he looks at me intently is something else. I could not even think straight at that moment as my mind is a whirlwind of emotions.

He leaned forward and whispered in my ears. "Tell me Fiona," his breath was warm and it sent tingles all over my body.

I gulped, my lips parted but no words came out. I wanted to tell him no, that he didn't scare me, but my eyes would give me away. I was scared shitless of him, most especially whenever he looked at me the way he's doing right now.

"Let me give you a little motivation," he said, snapping me out of my thoughts, and before I could blink twice his warm, soft lips were on mine, sucking on it gently, and his eyes were filled with raw emotions. His lips tasted like the sweetest temptation, whatever that means, and I was lost in the softness of his kiss.

"I'm sorry," he said in a deep husky voice, as he pulled away, leaving me breathless and hungry for more.

My cheeks were flushed from embarrassment, why does he have to be like this? I was feeling different things all at once, happiness, sadness, emptiness, to name a few. I turned around to leave, only to meet a dozen pairs of eyes on us. My cheeks grew hotter from the embarrassment, as I had totally forgotten we weren't the only one's in the garden.

I bowed my head trying to hide my flushed cheeks as I walked away fastly, heading towards the main house.

I headed straight to my room, slid into my bed, and hugged my pillow tightly. I shut my eyes tightly, in an attempt to forget everything that just happened a few minutes ago.

I heard a knock on my door, and knew who it was. Cora walked in a few seconds after she knocked, without even waiting for my response. She walked over, and sat down beside me on the bed.

"Is everything okay Luna?" She asked. I simply ignored her, and turned my face to the other side.

"Whenever you want to talk about what's bothering you, just call me," she said, and walked over to tidy up my room.

I laid on my bed in silence, while Cora tidied up my room. I was too embarrassed to explain how I really feel to Cora. I know I said I'd just ignore him a few days ago, but here I was kissing him like..... no scrap that, letting him kiss me.

"Cora," I finally called out to her. With the way I'm feeling right now I need to talk to someone about it, and Cora is just the right person. I would have called Tamara, but I wouldn't want to bore her with all this, not like she will complain or anything, I just need to pour out my heart to someone who knew alpha Izaak to some extent.

"Yes Luna," she left what she was doing, and sat down beside me.

"I'm scared Cora," I said, with tears welling up in my eyes. "I don't know what he truly wants, the look in his eyes today says something else, but I don't know if I'm imagining things, or it's just my mind making me see what my heart would like to see."

"Take things slowly," Cora comforted. "Is this about the kiss?"

"Not just that. The look in his eyes, and the way he kissed me also, they have some hidden words to it, like..."

"Don't jump to conclusions just yet," she said. "Alpha Izaak doesn't just act, there's a reason behind every of his actions. In order to know if his actions are genuine, don't give in quickly, play hard to get," Cora said firmly. She was right, I needed to play hard to get by putting my emotions in check, I can't really be fooled twice. Leland played this same game with me, and it turns out I was not the one he truly loved, despite being destined mate, he chose someone else. Alpha Izaak and I aren't mates, so he can switch up on me anytime, but by acting like I'm not interested, I'd know he's real intentions towards me eventually.

He wouldn't have asked for my help out of the blue if he didn't have something up his sleeves.
