

The Birth

Last bonus chapter till the epilogue!

The honeymoon was amazing, Jake and I went swimming, hiking, just relaxed, it was so fun. We also 'did the deed' as Julie said it. Our scents are mixed and that's how she could tell.

I came back to the house with Jake, and everyone was there for a welcome back. I gave everyone hugs, feeling exhausted from all the walking and sitting around at the honeymoon. It was still nice to see everyone here. Jake seemed happy to, he had a huge grin on his face, enjoying seeing his pack once more.

We had a pack dinner at the pack house. The room was close to full but still had room to push chairs out, and for kids to run around. We had a feast with some light chatter until the doctor stood up and rang up his cup with his spoon.

"Hello, everyone. Let's welcome home Jake and Rose from their romantic honeymoon!" The pack Doctor explains. There was a huge amount of applause, "So, I have some news for you. More likely for the Alpha and Luna. Do you want me to say it aloud or take you to a different room?" He asks.

"Is it important?" Jake asks. The doctor nods his head. "Private please." Jake says reading my mind.

The doctor, Jake and I walk to one of the guest rooms on the first floor. I started to get nervous, this must really be important.

"So, Luna Rose, I can smell a different scent on you. It isn't Jake's, either." The doctor explains.

Jake immediately starts growling. But he knows that no other werewolves have been touching me but him, because he was with me the whole time.

"It's not that Jake. I think Luna Rose might be pregnant." There was a huge moment of silence, my heart coming to a stop inside me. "I don't know for sure yet, but I would like to take some tests to get results. Is that okay?" The doctor asks.

I slowly nod my head. I look up from the floor to meet Jake's dark brown eyes. There is still shock and surprise evident in them.

"When should we take the tests?" The doctor asks.

"As soon as possible." Jake replies a few minutes of reading my mind.

"I can get you guys in a few minutes. That good?"

"That works, thank you." Jake replies and we go back to eating dinner.

Everyone ate dinner with light chatter going around. It was nice to be back with the pack.

A few minutes later, we followed the doctor to his office and they ran some tests on me. It took about an hour but then the doctor made his announcement. "Rose, good news, you're pregnant!" He says clapping his hands together.

My heart stops again, but this time it's with happiness. Jake grips my hand a little harder. We are both super happy I can see it in his mind.

Jake, stop thinking that! say in his mind. Pictures of him and a possible child of ours pop up, but instead of it being nice, he is treating them like his dad treated him. Jake, you know that you aren't going to be like that. You will be a great father, no matter what! explain to him.

I know, Rose. But what if, that's all I don't want to happen, the what if. I'm nervous of becoming a father. He explains in my head.

I nod my head. I'm nervous, too. You're not the only one.

Jake and I sit in silence in our bed, listening to each other's thoughts as I lay in his arms. Each wondering what the gender will be, what color the room should be, how we will parent, etc.

A few minutes later we both fall asleep, still in each other's imaginations.

Two months later

"Dang, Rose. Your stomach is getting huge!" Jake exclaims as we walk to the doctors.

It's only been two months since I was declared pregnant and today we were going back to the doctors to find out the gender and why I was growing so fast.

We walked into the pack house and went to the office where the doctor worked. He was doing some paperwork, so Jake and I decided to sit down to let him finish. A few moments later, the doctor looked up from his papers and noticed us.

"Oh, hello Alpha and Luna. What are you guys doing here?" He asks standing up from his desk.

"Hey, we came to check up on the baby and stuff. We also wanted to ask some questions." Jake says calmly.

The doctor nods his head then brings us to one of his examination rooms. I change into a gown and the doctor starts filling around my stomach to make sure nothing is wrong.

"So what were your questions, Alpha Jake?" He asks us.

"Well, she is only two months pregnant, and her stomach looks like she is seven months in, why?" Jake asks.

"Well, since you guys are both a pack leader, Rose from her old pack, your baby develops a lot faster. This means that they can start training sooner and get lots of reps in." The doctor explains. "So, Rose will probably only have one-two months left in her pregnancy."

Jake and I's mouths were wide open. I was not expecting to hear that today, apparently neither was Jake. We just both stood there, completely frozen. Soon enough, a smile appears on Jake's face.

Then on mine.

"Can we figure out the gender of the baby?" Jake asks reading my mind.

"Of course. Let me do the process and I'll tell your guys." He said then rummaged around putting this gel stuff on my stomach. A few moments later he had the baby pulled up in an ultrasound. "So, here is what your baby looks like in the ultrasound. It appears the gender is an...." He says to us.

I'm so happy it's a girl but I would be happy if it was a girl, too.

"Luna, soon you will have to change to your wolf, since your baby will be coming soon. I suggest within the next week. Beta Justin will take over Alpha duties for the while, and Alpha Jake you will get to stay with your Luna and care for her." The doctor explains.

I nod my head and so does Jake. We say our thanks then head back to our house down the pathway. Jake holds my hand and kisses my temple. I give him a hug.

Thank you, Jake. For being here for me, and helping me through all this. You're the best mate anyone could ask for! say in his mind.

He looks down to my eyes. I couldn't read what his eyes were saying to me, they were just such a perfect brown. The caramel color swirling around the pupil, the black and gold specks inside making them look gorgeous. I stared at his eyes, trying to get the emotions making the caramel color swirl.

Rose, you are perfect, no flaws are anywhere near you. I will always be here for you, no matter what happens. You are the mate I have always wanted, the caring kind that always has me busy helping, which makes me happy I can help. So, no, thank you, Rose. Jake replies a few minutes later.

My heart gushes at what he said. I wrap my arms around his waist and dig my head in his chest. Tears sprang to my eyes. Not tears of sadness or fear this time either. This time it was out of happiness and love.

A Week Later

My stomach was hurting a lot today. Jake was still sleeping so I just went to the living room and watched Titanic. It was currently my favorite movie not having seen any others. I sat there cuddled in a blanket as Rose and Jack were in the ocean Rose on the door. Jake came out of the room his hair all messed up.

"What are you doing up, Rose?" Jake asks. "It's six in the morning."

I couldn't sleep, and I wanted to watch a movie! explain.

"Rose, you need to switch. Now." Jake says coming over to me.

What do you mean? Switch? ask, completely confused.

"You need to switch into your wolf. She will take the rest of your pregnancy from there." He explains and puts a few blankets and pillows on the floor.

I do as he told me and transformed into Gray, she was ecstatic to be in form. I lay down on the bed Jake made for me.

Jake transforms into his wolf also and lays with me. We cuddle together until we both get hungry. He gets up and changes back to go get some food.

Three Weeks Later.

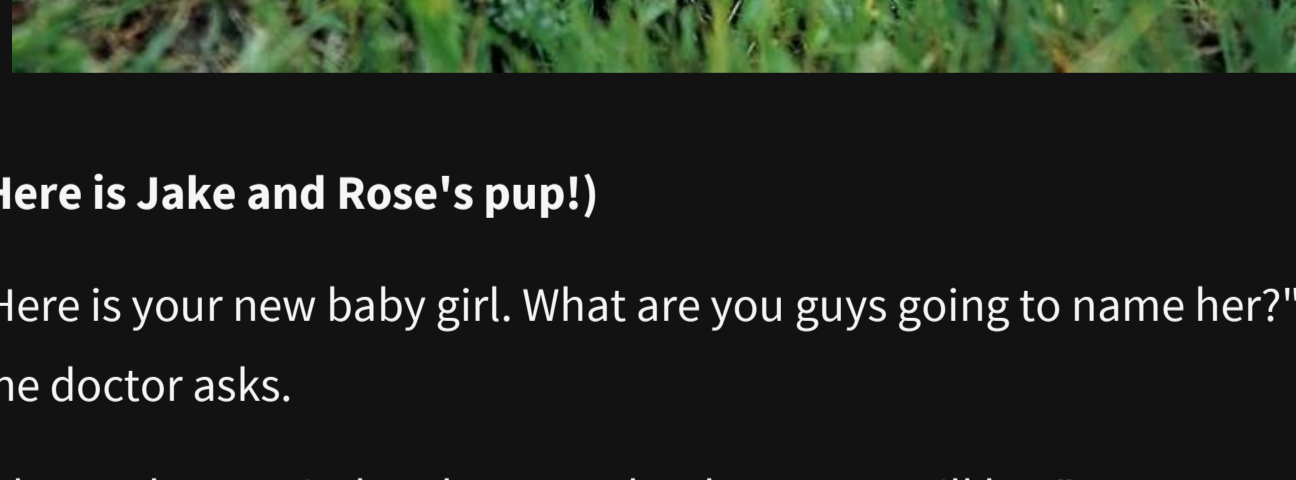

I have been laying in this little bed for the whole three weeks besides getting up to go to the bathroom. Jake has been getting me food and water for the time being, and he gets into his wolf form every night to sleep by my side.

My stomach starts hurting really bad. Gray starts whimpering, and Jake is immediately by my side. His pretty caramel eyes are now a dark chocolate brown.

His eyes glaze over and soon the doctor is running in. He is at my side and I'm being told to be calm, I'm having my baby.

I lay there and push when needed, the pain overtaking me. Jake has my paw in his hand and is petting my fur as I give birth.

Soon, all the pain subsides and I am looking at a small wolf pup. It has the most perfect combo of gray and red fur. Matching Jake and I but the pup's fur was mixed everywhere of gray and red. The doctor smiles.

(Here is Jake and Rose's pup!)

"Here is your new baby girl. What are you guys going to name her?" The doctor asks.

Jake reads my mind and states what her name will be. "Emory Grace." He says. He liked my name I can see the happiness in his mind.

"Well, Rose, here is Emory Grace. You may change back. To get Emory to change back just talk to her in your mind. Have a lovely day you three, call me if you need me." He says then leaves our household.

I change back into human form, my muscles aching. Jake hands me a shirt which I put on and I talk to Emory in her mind. She transforms back and she is the cutest baby I have ever seen.

This was going to be great.

Continue reading next part ▶