“I want to see your father, too.”

As soon as Micah mentioned meeting her father, Abby's face turned unusually pale. Her body switched to the fight or flight mode, only she didn't have anywhere to escape when the King insisted on keeping her still. He was still holding on to her waist, rendering her unable to move.

However, Micah could clearly feel how her body stiffened even more. The King couldn't help clenching his jaw, sensing the visible fear in his mate's system.

He

had to learn what happened to her until she was like this. What did they do to her?

Meanwhile, Abby didn't even have enough courage to refuse the King's hand when he stood up and wanted to pull her out of this guest bedroom. She dragged her feet behind while the King. pretended not to see her obvious resistance.

He

didn't want her to stay here longer than necessary. Meaning, he had to rush through things, so he could get her out of here as soon as possible.

“The King is here,” a warrior rushed inside to inform Beta Ryan.

In the next moment, Beta Ryan and Hanna could see Micah entering their house with Abby in his tow. Both Ryan and his elder daughter were visibly shocked to see the ambient air around the two. Somehow, seeing them like this only made them feel even more uncomfortable.

Behind them, they could see several personal warriors of the King. One might think Micah was there for a fight, instead of simply taking his mate away.

Maybe

they were not wrong. Because, if you looked into the King's eyes carefully, you would be able to sense the brewing storm in his heart.

“My King,” both Ryan and Hanna greeted him quickly. Beta Ryan didn’t have any problem bowing to the King, but Hanna felt reluctant seeing Abby beside Micah.

What right did this monster have to be chosen as his fated mate? Hanna couldn't accept this. However, she could only swallow her grievances and show her respect to the King.

It didn’t go unnoticed by Micah, though he chose to pretend that he didn't see it and nodded in response. And before he could say why he was here, Beta Ryan feigned surprise and started talking about Abby. “Oh, Abby is here as well. Did you have a good night's sleep, daughter?”

Ryan tried hard to sound as normal as he could, only he couldn't pull it off out of nervousness or something else, as his voice came out gruffy and he successfully scared Abby.

The king's new found mate gaped at her own father in shock, not knowing how to deal with this situation. She came here fully believing she would be reprimanded and beaten up for not following her father’s order. Any other time, her father wouldn't have hesitated to thrash her until she didn’t even have enough energy to plead for himself to spare her..

But now, he was asking if she had a good night's sleep? And was that a smile on his lips. She never saw her father smiling at herself after what happened ten years ago. He looked even more scary than when he was grinding his teeth at her.

Yes, Ryan was trying to smile at Abby, only he couldn't succeed in his attempt as it had been a long time since he found her pleasing to the eye. Micah didn’t say anything. He just observed silently from the side. What was this beta planning? Was he trying to make himself look good in the King's eyes to escape his wrath?

Seeing that her father was about to give away himself, Hanna decided to take things into her own hands. She actually dared to go near both Micah and Abby before starting to get all chummy with her sister. "Abby, where did you go? Father has been worried about you all night."

She didn't forget to steal a glance at the King, after all, whatever she was doing was to make him believe them.

On the other hand, Abby was even more shocked to see Hanna act like this, She visibly flinched when Hanna proceeded to hug her hand as if they were some sort of best friends. What was wrong with her sister? Why was she suddenly being like this?

Micah gently pulled her to his side, noticing her discomfort. But he didn't do anything to stop the woman from touching his mate. He had to make them believe that he was buying their lies. Only then would he be able to make them lower their guard. Instead, he spoke to Abby in a soft voice. "Where is your room?"

However, it was Hanna who volunteered to show the King the way. She cunningly tagged along. saying she would help Abby pack her belongings. In her haste to send them both away as soon as possible, she forgot the problem at hand. The room occupied by Abby. Or if one could say, the room they all made Abby occupy.

By now, Micah got a brief understanding of his mate's behaviour. She tended to be slow and always fearful of everything. So, when she didn't say anything, he didn't fixate on it and followed this hanna girl further into the house. Only the more they walked, the more his eyes hardened.

It was clear as day that the bedrooms were on the second storey of this building.

But they ended up in the servant quarters in the back of this house. What was even more mortifying was the shabby state of this part of the house. And to make things worse, there were not one but three locks to her door. What was with this arrangement? Did they usually lock her inside like they did in the warehouse where he found her?

Chapter 12

Hanna was completely focused on Abby, thinking about ways to make her sister tell her if she complained about them to the King. However, her intuition told her that there was something wrong with the King when she heard a low rumble reverberate in his chest.

“This is where you sleep?” After a long moment of silence, that was what Micah could voice, but he couldn't get any response from his own mate.

Seeing this. Micah turned to pin Hanna with a harsh glare. The werewolf king seemed livid. Hanna felt shivers run down her spine when she realized that the King was angry after seeing Abby's bedroom. Her mind raced, trying to come up with believable excuses to make this arrangement look justifiable, only she couldn't think of any ways to justify their own actions. Damn it! This monster landed me in big trouble. Hanna cursed under her breath.

"This. My King-

"My King. I have something to talk to you about.

Just when Hanna thought the King would rip her head off her shoulders, Beta Ryan came to her rescue and diverted Micah's attention. The woman immediately took a deep breath. King Micah could be so scary.

On the other hand. Micah also welcomed the diversion as he didn't want to lose his cool before he achieved his goal. He closed his eyes for a second before turning around to face Beta Ryan, who seemed to have composed himself a bit.

"What do you wish to say to me?"

Hearing Micah's question, Beta Ryan didn't hesitate to set his plan in motion. He had to talk to the King and salvage their situation as much as he could.

Thinking

to this point. Ryan upped his game. "It is about my second daughter, Abby.

Mentioning Abby's name worked in his favor as he had successfully gained all of Micah's attention. "What about her?" Micah immediately asked him.

"Can we talk in private?" Ryan pushed his luck, knowing fully well that the King wouldn't directly turn him down.

Meanwhile, Micah was a little bit hesitant. He turned to look at Abby who had her head lowered. She looked a bit tense again.

Abby didn't make a single peep since she entered this house with him earlier.

Yes, he could conclude that she didn't talk much usually. But she fell completely silent after Micah said he wanted to meet her father. Her reaction to that statement alone was enough to make Micah want to dig more into what happened to her.

"It's about what happened ten years ago," Ryan said to the King at last.

What happened ten years ago..... how Abby got her scars... Did Ryan mean that incident?

This efficiently picked his interest. Micah understood he had to have this conversation with him. though he felt reluctant to part with his mate even for a few minutes.

Chapter 12

He turned to Abby and said, "Can you finish packing your things while I talk to your father?"

Even then, Abby didn't say anything. But it was Hanna who answered the King again, reassuring him that they would be finished in no time and told him to take his time talking with their father. Not even once did Micah look in her direction, completely focusing on his own mate who wouldn't open her mouth to say something to himself.

Instead, the fragile woman started to fuss with her things. She silently started packing her things, taking Micah's request as an indirect order. It seemed Abby didn't want to give any reason for the King to change his mind and leave her behind.

Taking this as his chance, Ryan urged Micah to leave with him while subtly hinting at his daughter to make Abby talk about what she said to the King. The Beta swiftly showed him the way to his own study in the house, which was on the second floor.

[Keep an eye on her.] Micah mind linked one of his trusted warriors before following the Beta out.

As soon as Micah was out of her sight and it was just the two of them there, Hanna's whole demeanor changed as her eyes filled with malice. Her hatred which she hid from the King thus far burst from her heart as she grabbed Abby, who was completely oblivious to her thoughts, by hair and yanked hard until she tore a few strands.

"You monster, what did you tell the King? Did you make up stories and complain to him about us?"

This was not the first time for Hanna to get handsy with Abby. She would always find ways to hurt her, both physically and mentally. But she was wise enough to never leave a mark. She would never slap or pinch her hard enough. This time though, her envy got the best of her and she couldn't control her strength. Her jealousy and hatred ruled her heart as she kept spouting threat after threat about how she would kill the poor animal. Her pet was a small kitten she found a month ago. Abby rescued the poor animal in the forest. behind the warehouses. It was injured badly and Abby nursed it back to health slowly. Would Hanna really kill her kitten?

Chapter 13

Beta Ryan brought Micah to his study room which was on the far end of this long corridor on the second floor. It was quite clear to see that he was buying time for himself, and Micah could tell as much. He just played along to see what these father and daughter duo was trying to achieve. Ryan offered his own chair to the King before he walked to another chair at his study table. But Micah didn't take his chair as he chose to stand near a bookshelf behind the table. "Now, can you start talking?" Micah tried to sound casual as he took in the study room with an indifferent look on his face. This gave Run the impression that he wasn't really interested about what happened all those years ago. Coupled with the fact that they weren't summoned to the King yet for treating his destined mate with unkindness, Ryan perceived this as Micah wasn't really being serious about Abby. Maybe he could turn the tables in their own favor. Boosted by these thoughts, Ryan continued to stand as well before he started talking. "Ten years ago, Abby caused a huge fire which burned down our then house, which, my destined mate who was my daughters' mother lost her life," Ryan then proceeded to tell Micah how insensible Abby was as a child when she played with fire, something she shouldn't joke with as a nine year old girl.

Yes, Abby was just a nine year old girl when that horrible event happened and she sustained severe burns. That incident was also why she still had those scars on her otherwise supposed to be clear skin.

According to him, the scars on her back which extended from her neck to her shoulder were a lighter punishment when he thought how she was a bringer of bad luck. It was also since then that they started to treat her as a monster who would bring only bad luck to the people around her.

On the other hand, Micah felt like knocking all of Beta Ryan's teeth when he didn't hesitate to wish bad things upon his own child while not being able to show her any kindness. How could a father blame a nine year old girl for a thing so huge as a house being burned down and even the death of her own mother? Micah didn't believe for one second that Abby would be that insensible as a child.

However, he never once spoke while the opposite person kept rambling this and that, trying beyond possibilities to paint Abby as someone unworthy of himself.

Yes, Ryan didn't directly say anything like how he felt Abby wasn't really suited to him, but he wouldn't stop hinting at how bad Abby was until he had to discipline her on a daily basis.

He didn't think twice before badmouthing his own daughter, just so he could avoid taking responsibility for what he had done.

Micah listened to what the Beta had to say without interrupting him even for once while Ryan kept bullshitting his way out of the mess he created for himself until the King couldn't take it anymore and asked him a question at last. "You beat her up and lock her up because of that incident from ten years back?"

Micah controlled his voice as much as he could, so that he wouldn't give himself away. But he was enraged beyond possibilities that he sounded as if he was growling. Even his beast was restless upon hearing how their mate had been suffering in her own father's hands for the last ten years.

However, Ryan, who was preoccupied with his storytelling, didn't realize the change in the King's tone as he subconsciously thought the King was just asking a normal question.

"Yes, she is insensible and a monster, who only brings bad luck." Ryan blurted out, still thinking the King was very cool about everything he said thus far.

There was another reason for Ryan's ignorance regarding this matter...

He already planned with Hanna and asked her to deal with Abby. Hanna said she would mind-link him as soon as she got information out of Abby's mouth. As he didn't get any updates from his obedient elder daughter, Ryan believed they almost escaped this problem unscathed.

They just had to make sure that Abby wouldn't spoil their plan and bring them trouble again...

Before that, he had to make the King believe his actions were justifiable. But how?

Ryan immediately thought of projecting Hanna in a good light. If he could change

Micah's mind and convince him to take Hanna as his chosen mate and reject Abby, all his problems would be solved with a single move.

"My elder daughter is just a year older than her, but she is very different from Abby Ryan immediately started praising Hanna to the moon and back, saying Hanna was everything that Abby could never dream of becoming. She was both sensible and beautiful with a heart of gold. A perfect mate any male shifter could

Abby was so scared for her pet she couldn't even muster any courage to answer

Hanna who wouldn't stop threatening her while still abusing her hair. She could clearly feel a few strands of her hair giving away at the roots with the strength Hanna was using to pull her hair.

Meanwhile, Hanna had this sinister smile on her face as her eyes turned manic

when she saw Abby hurting so much that she had to bite her lips to stop herself from crying out loud. It was very clear to see that she got high from abusing her sister.

"Open your mouth and answer me," Hanna got so carried away that she didn't realize someone else had entered the room, who then immediately grabbed her hand.

The man exerted force before pinning Hanna with a look which he then directed toward her hand, clearly indicating that Hanna had to let Abby go immediately. Only Hanna couldn't take the hint and chose to be stubborn as she shouted in his face,

"Who are you?"

However, her stubbornness only brought more pain to herself when the man didn't let up and instead pinched her wrist even more.

Hanna shrieked when the other person didn't hold back his strength at all as he almost crushed her hand and out of instinct, she finally let go of Abby's hair.

Hanna couldn't endure the pain at all and turned to her attacker with her claws emerged as she bellowed, "Who the fuck are you?"

Hanna couldn't place the man in front of her. She had never seen him before. Who is this man? How dare he stop me in my own house?

That was what Hanna thought, not bothering to use her precious mind for a second to recall that there were several others in their house right now. If she stopped and thought for even a second, she would have recognized him as one of the King's personal warriors.

"Let go at this instant," Hanna ordered him, feeling enraged at this point. Meanwhile, the said warrior didn't bother to explain himself as he concentrated on an even more important thing. He quickly mind-linked one of his fellow warriors to inform the King about the situation in this room..

Yes, he was the very warrior who was ordered by Micah himself to keep an eye on this woman and his mate.

When he didn't say anything while still glaring down at her, only then Hanna finally came to her senses and realized why he was bold enough to assault her in her own home.

Damn it! She got carried away. This man was clearly part of the King's entourage judging by his aura and the attire he wore.

Hanna immediately turned to glare at Abby. This was all because of this monster.

Hanna couldn't help but blame Abby again, cursing in her heart that Abby brought her bad luck again. What should she do now?

Hanna's mind raced while there was no reaction whatsoever from Abby.

649

The moment her hair was free, Abby fell to the ground with her head in her hands. Still there was no sound that could be heard from her lips. It was clear to see that she had cried a river that the front of her tattered dress was all but drenched, even so, there wasn't even a single sob from her.

Right when Hanna was about to come up with a story to convince the warrior that there wasn't anything wrong here, they heard a loud crashing sound. Hearing the noise, the warrior immediately let go of Hanna's hand as he stepped back to reveal the person who just rushed there.

They all saw Micah entering the now doorless room with a thunderous expression on his face. Apparently, Micah had ripped the door away from its hinges and threw it across the corridor until it hit a wall.

Hanna's heart almost dropped when she saw the look on Micah's face. Fuck, she was doomed.

Behind the King, Ryan had an expression mirroring his elder daughter's. The Beta didn't expect the situation to turn around like this and bite them in the asses.

Hanna actually got caught. How could he help her now?

"What's happening here?" Micah gritted the words out as he directed the question at his warrior, knowing fully well his mate won't make a peep yet again.

The warrior immediately explained what he saw and how Hanna yanked Abby's hair until he had no choice but to interrupt them.

Micah was only told that he was quickly needed in Abby's room. He wasn't informed that his mate was being assaulted right under his nose.

This Hanna girl was really bold, probably because of her father's unconditional support.

Chapter 15

When the warrior came running to inform him that he was needed in Abby's room, this wasn't what Micah expected to find here.

His trusted warrior was just a second away from crushing Hanna's hand while his mate was too detached from her own surroundings. Micah couldn't place his own emotions when his warrior reiterated what transpired in this room while he was away.

Meanwhile, Abby was completely silent. Her eyes were lowered as she mechanically continued to pack the few things she owned. But it was clear that she had been crying badly from the tremors in her body.

And when this shameless father and daughter duo tried to talk their way out of this situation, Micah couldn't take it anymore. "Can tussling someone's hair result in this?" Micah pointed at the hair strands in Hanna's hand.

Both Ryan and Hanna's faces paled when Micah said that. Hanna was too stunned to speak. She didn't realize she had actually yanked Abby's hair really hard until she tore a few hair strands off'up until then.

Damn it! The one time she was careless just had to be today, when the King was here to back this monster up.

She had always made sure to never leave any evidence when she abused Abby.

And hurting Abby was almost a daily activity for her. It was a part of her daily routine. She reveled in her sister's pain.

Her luck was really bad today. What should she say to get out of this mess now?

"This. My King- it wasn't because I pulled her hair to hurt her. It was... it was..." Hanna couldn't come up with any reasonable explanation, looking all the more guilty with each second that passed. However, it was Ryan who answered the King.

"I think she wasn't really paying attention and her claws seemed to have cut some of Abby's hair." Ryan immediately signaled for Hanna to play along with him. "It definitely isn't what it looks like." Ryan continued to say a few more things about how Hanna should have been careful and such.

"Hanna, you should pay more attention to your claws. See, now your sister is almost hurt."

"I'm sorry, father. I have been careless. I'll pay attention now onward."

"Abby, those few strands will grow back in no time. Forgive your sister this one time.” Ryan didn't forget to pull Abby into his web of lies as well, silently warning

her to keep mum until the end.

Micah almost growled at Ryan's words. What few strands? Hanna almost pulled a tuft of Abby's hair, Micah doubted if she left any bald spots on her head. But Ryan had the audacity to brush it off just like that?
Both Ryan and Hanna were cunning enough. They were banking on the fact that Abby wouldn't say anything even if she had been hurt even more badly.
Seeing their hypocritical acting, Micah couldn't help but ball his fists. He immediately walked toward his mate, wanting to personally check on her for injuries.

However, Abby almost flinched when he approached her so suddenly with this murderous aura emanating from him in waves. The King felt helpless seeing her reaction. He decided he had to quickly work on making Abby feel more comfortable with him. That would be on the top of his priorities now.
On the other hand, Abby didn't expect for Micah to approach her all of a sudden and coupled with the fact that he didn't look amiable, it made her want to put some distance between them. Only she couldn't do anything about it physically
as she didn't want to upset the King even further.
“Let me see if you are hurt,” Micah finally said as he didn't want her to feel afraid of himself.
Even though he asked for permission, the King didn't really have the patience to wait for Abby's approval. He swiftly turned her around and lifted her hair to look at the back of her neck when he couldn't find any visible marks on her skin.
Abby stiffened and closed her eyes when the King manhandled her. She actually felt really awkward around him while Micah acted with familiarity with her. He was a natural. He was gentle with her. whatever coldness he showed to the Beta and his elder daughter was nowhere to be seen when he was dealing with Abby. On the other hand, Micah almost cursed when he couldn't find any proof to back his own warrior's claims. Except for her tears, there wasn't any obvious sign that Hanna really hurt Abby. And when Ryan saw this scene, he didn't hesitate to stress his own words, brushing it off as just a misunderstanding. "See, Abby wasn't hurt." Micah clenched his fists. "What about her tears then?" Micah was especially patient with Abby, he spoke to her gently and didn't rush

“I- I am sorry,” Abby finally said.

Chapter 16

The King turned to Abby and asked her what actually happened. “Abby, is what your sister said. true? She didn't really hurt you?”

Even though the King, tried his best to sound approachable, Abby couldn't forget

his dramatic entrance from earlier or the way he had been gushing his teeth
the whole time Ryan and Hanna were busy telling tales and putting on their one sided loving family act.

Yes, she indeed seemed indifferent and oblivious to her surroundings, but she had been paying close attention to her self proclaimed mate

And when the King asked her this question all of a sudden, her system couldn't comprehend the right response as her automated response made an appearance.

“I Fa- am sorry.” Abby hastily said, as she rubbed her cheeks while closing her eyes. She didn’t know how to escape this situation without upsetting either of the two men who were now looking at her intensely. One was her own father, silently warning her to play along with him. The other was Micah, who wanted her to say something she wasn't courageous enough to admit.

She just wanted this to end and leave here quickly. “I am sorry” She repented, hoping Micah would drop this matter.

In Abby's mind, all this ruckus was caused because of her, Had she answered Hamma immediately, the situation wouldn't have come to this. Now, her father was mad at her again. He wouldn't stop giving her death stares, Abby didn’t know if what she did was the correct thing or not, but when she saw her father’s eyes turma but softer, she could breathe a little easier again. Only Micah's reaction caught her off guard. in the next second..

Micals audibly growled when he heard her apologize again for something she wasn’t even responsible for. However, when Abby visibly flinched hearing his response, he told himself to calm down first.

The King could see that she was afraid enough, he should try to make her feel safe with himself, not scare her even further. Having decided that, Mical closed his eyes for a second. He needed to get rid of his growing frustration first, though.

“Abby, Sweetie, you didn't do anything wrong. You don't have to apologize,” Micah started with calming her down first. “I just want to know if you are really not hurt, okay?” He rubbed her cheeks gently with his thumbs while looking into her eyes, silently trying to tell her that he was on her side and she didn’t need to be afraid.,

Just as Abby nodded her head in response to Mical's reassurance, Beta Ryan tried to remind her that he was still watching his daughter. “My King, Abby is just sad...” Beta Ryan stopped mid sentence when the King threw him a dagger look.

Meanwhile, seeing how protective Micah was of Abby, Hanna couldn't help but burn with jealousy. This all should have been hers. The King, his affection, his protection and everything. What right did this monster have to have the King wrapped around her fingers?

Chapter 16

However, she couldn't do anything about it but wallow silently.

On the other hand, Abby couldn't help but feel wronged when her father insisted on not acknowledging that she was really hurt. He was once again denying what actually happened while trying to turn blind eye to her predicament.

Fresh tears welled up in Abby's eyes when she couldn't help but recall all the times her father and sister treated her unfairly and turned blind eyes to her pain.

Yet, she didn't dare to make a peep as she continued to cry silently in Micah's arms.

Seeing her suppress her sadness like this made unadulterated rage bubble in Micah's heart. She was so fragile Micah felt a pang in his heart just at the sight of herself being all vulnerable. Her nose and at cheeks were unhealthily red from all the crying, and Micah wanted to hug her tightly and never let

1. go.

"Abby, just tell me the truth, I'll take care of the rest." Micah finally whispered when Abby wouldn't stop crying. He doubted the girl would faint from all the feelings that currently seemed to overwhelm her.

And Micah wasn't really wrong as Abby could feel her head throb painfully as if there was a really heavy rock resting on the top of her head. Maybe because she cried a lot, Abby could feel her head ache painfully.

In the face of the persistent persuading from Micah, Abby couldn't help but finally give up as she admitted that she was hurt by Hanna. "Y-yes,... H- Hanna pulled m- my hair.”

Her voice sounded so small, Hanna and Ryan almost missed what she said. But that wasn't the case with the King who was paying really close attention to his mate. And the moment she admitted that what the warrior said was true, Micah felt his blood boil with anger. But he didn't forget to take her close before completely losing his control.

Oh how he wished he could run rampant and kill these two with his own hands right at this instant! But he couldn't do that, if he did, he would only scare Abby even more Micah was not a kid, he could say that Hanna didn't simply pull her hair... this nasty woman definitely did something more or else Abby wouldn't have closed herself off like she did when he returned from Ryan's study room earlier.

The King left his warrior to keep an eye here, only he knew how he wished he were wrong and Abby didn't get hurt again. Right under his nose no less. The air around him suddenly changed as it crackled with tension and the moment his enraged eyes fell on Hanna, both Ryan and Hanna realized they were doomed.

“What do you say about this, Beta Ryan?” Micah looked ready to tear apart this father and daughter duo.

“I still think it is just a misunderstanding- Hanna didn't pay attention to her claws...” Ryan trailed off when he realized he couldn't talk his way out of this anymore.

Both Ryan and Hanna couldn't help but curse at Abby for landing them in this situation. This monster only knew how to bring bad luck to them.

Micah couldn't help but sneer when Beta Ryan still didn't give up. He decided he couldn't bother with these people anymore as he immediately ordered for Alpha James to come there before he made his personal warriors drag both Ryan and Hanna out of the house.

“Drag these two out at this instant!” Micah barked at his warriors.

“My King, please show mercy. Hanna was just being willful. She didn't really mean any harm,” Beta Ryan changed his tune when he saw that the King was beyond enraged. This was all because of this monster. Had she not opened her mouth, this would have ended right away. Still Ryan felt that the problem lay with Abby when it was them who never bothered to exercise kindness and sympathy.

On the other hand, Hanna couldn't believe this monster had actually sold her off. Did she feel emboldened with the King backing her up? She really dared to land her in trouble. This pathetic worm!

"Mercy?" Micah scoffed out the word. Did this beta really use that word with him just now? Did he even know the meaning when he couldn't even sympathize with his own daughter?

Ryan felt his throat clogging in, sensing the fury of the King when he uttered that single word. However, he couldn't let his beloved daughter be punished just because she landed her hands on that monster.

"My King, Hanna has always been an obedient child. I don't believe she intentionally hurt her sister Th

However, Micah was not ready to even spare him another glance as the King's personal warriors rushed into the house to carry out their sovereign's orders.

"No, listen.. It was really a misunderstanding. Hanna finally found her voice, only there was no one ready to hear her pleas.

Ryan thought he had the King all figured out, it was why he was bold enough to try and push his elder daughter onto Micah. Even Hanna thought the same as she believed the King would definitely choose herself over her monster sister. After all, who would want a freak like Abby?

However, all their fantasies came crashing down when the King didn't even hesitate to order for themselves to be captured like some kind of rogue shifters in their very own home after Abby admitted that Hanna hurt her for real.

Even before they could get a chance to plead for some mercy, they found themselves kneeling in front of that freak. Abby. No less in front of their own house and more than half of the pack members. Beta Ryan felt utterly humiliated and enraged at Abby, but his fear for Micah overruled every other emotion as he didn't even dare to fight back, while Hanna couldn't even breathe properly with all the fear consuming her heart.

Meanwhile, everything after her confirmation seemed like a blur to Abby, as she was beyond shocked to see Micah react so coldly and heartlessly.

Abby couldn't even bring herself to watch on as they begged to be spared endlessly.

“It was a one time thing... Hanna isn't really in her right mind.” Ryan still didn't give up as he continued to plead with Micah.

“My King, I'll never do it again.” Hanna didn't even dare to deny it anymore as she indirectly.

admitted to her mistake.

Hanna couldn't care less about the people who were watching themselves being treated like war prisoners. She just wanted to escape the King's wrath in any way possible. Ryan had the thought as he lost all dignity since half of the pack already saw them like this.

Meanwhile, the pack members that gathered around couldn't make heads and tails of this situation. What was with this situation? Why were Beta Ryan and Hanna being subdued? While Abby was standing with the King?

And when Micah tightened his arm around her hips and implied for Ryan and Hanna to apologize to herself, Abby felt the air almost get knocked out of her lungs.

“You should be asking for forgiveness from Abby instead.”

As soon as the King uttered those few words firmly, everyone gathered there sucked in a shocked gasp before falling utterly silent.

On the other hand, Abby, who was trying to make herself look as small as possible until then, nearly collapsed when she heard Micah. Even Alpha James who just rushed there upon the King's order was stunned speechless.

“Apologize to that monster?” Hanna couldn't control her mouth when she subconsciously blurted out this. Begging the King for mercy was one thing, but to lower her head in front of this freak was completely unacceptable.

Micah would have ripped her head off her shoulders, woman or not, hadn't Abby been already.

Moreover, they were her only family.

Micah could see that she was feeling bad for them. Sure enough, the next thing that came out of her lips was something that made the King almost growl out of frustration.

"They don't have to, I'm fine. Really," Abby didn't feel fine with this situation at all.

If anything, she felt uncomfortable. Especially with so many people staring at her so intensely. Out of curiosity or not, she simply couldn't take it.

"Abby..." Micah started, wanting to make her understand that everything would be alright. Only Abby cut him off mid sentence.

"But..." Only Abby didn't know how to make Micah understand that she couldn't see them like this. She struggled to find it in herself to plead on their behalf when her decade long grievances wouldn't stop resurfacing at the back of her mind, reminding her how badly they hurt her all these years.

Micah understood Abby's struggle and his heart melted even more for his broken mate. "They don't deserve your kindness." At last, Micah decided for her and chose to keep her out of this. If she couldn't even bear to see them kneel for her, he couldn't imagine how she would feel if he insisted on punishing them for her.

However, that didn't mean he would spare them: Not a chance even in hell. He would make them regret it. Everything and every time they Id hands on his sweet mate.

"Okay," Micah said out of the blue. And this one word was so confusing, the people there didn't know what to make out of it.

On the other hand, both Ryan and Hanna felt hopeful. This monster did something good for once. Hanna immediately thought she would be spared.

If only they knew what the King was planning, they wouldn't have let their hopes up.

Both Ryan and Hanna almost asked the warriors restraining themselves to release them when they heard the King bellow at someone.

"Alpha James, your impudence knows no bounds!"

Everyone's jaw dropped when they heard him shout at their alpha out of the blue.

And before anyone could collect their bearings, Alpha James found himself kneeling before Micah and Abby.

Impudence?

Alpha James didn't understand why the King was suddenly furious at himself. However, when he recalled that he had been standing there like a statue from the moment he arrived at the scene without greeting the king and showing him the respect he deserved, the Alpha immediately apologized.

"My King, I was careless just now. I would never disrespect you on purpose. I was only shocked." Alpha James couldn't continue anymore when the King wouldn't stop suppressing his beast.

Alpha James gathered that the King was real mad then, only he didn't know whom to blame for this.

But Micah didn't leave him in suspense for long. "Alpha James, before coming here, I didn't take you for someone so incompetent," Micah said word by word.

Alpha James was petrified at his words, he couldn't understand this turn of events at all. But he wasn't one to escalate a situation which was unfavorable to himself and increase problems. So, he immediately said, "My King, I humbly request you to please let your humble subject know his misgivings. I'll definitely correct myself and make it up to you."

"Do you really not know?" Micah didn't feel the need to explain things to this ignorant alpha. He was so ignorant he let a pack member, a woman at that, be abused for so long. And when he remembered that Abby had been suffering from a young age of nine, Micah couldn't help the urge to exact revenge.

Alpha James immediately felt like he missed something. He fell silent as he pondered over the King's words. And it didn't take long for him to realize the crux of the issue.

His beta...

The Alpha knew how meticulous he had been from the moment the King arrived to their pack. He made sure everything was up to if not over the standard, so that the sovereign wouldn't be offended at any point.

The only thing the King could possibly be angry about should be Abby, his newly found mate's life here. When the King asked him about his mate, he was really calm that the Alpha didn't think Micah would have such a strong reaction like this, though he wasn't completely ignorant like his stupid beta, as he thought Micah would react in some way.

Shifters are protective in nature, possessive even. Had he been in the King's shoes, he wouldn't have been so calm, for mates were really important to shifters. So, he could only imagine how angry the King was to find his mate after so long only to learn how wrongly she had been treated all her life.

Yes, he knew what was happening and never stopped Ryan. But he couldn't be calm anymore when the King made this his problem until he didn't hesitate to humiliate his beta like this. And now, even Alpha James was implicated until he was being held accountable for Ryan's wrong doings

"My King, my beta is insensible," Alpha James started, testing the waters.

Sure

enough, Micah's eyes hardened as his grip around Abby's waist tightened a tiny bit. "He should have been..."

However, his voice trailed off when the king interrupted him, "And you let him run rampant until his insensitivity implicated others and now he is uncontrollable"

Alpha James didn't need any confirmation anymore, this was indeed about Abby, but he wasn't stupid to not understand the King's stance here. The King stopped him before he could mention Abby's name. He was clearly being protective of her. So, he too wisely shut up and played along with the King.

"My King, I should have been more careful. I accept any kind of punishment for not keeping my beta in check." Alpha James was not an alpha for no reason. He understood the gravity of the situation and was cunning enough to extricate himself from this was glad that the Alpha was wise enough to read the situation. James understood where the King stood in this matter. But, it didn't mean Micah would forgive him that easily.

“Alpha James, one’s ignorance could lead not only himself to his own demise, but also the people around him.” It was a clear warning. Micah clearly implied that the Alpha was incompetent once again. Even though the Alpha never actively hurt Abby, he never tried to sympathize with her either. He let the abuse happen until Abby became what she was now.

So, Micah didn't hesitate to humiliate the Alpha in front of his own people. This should be enough of a punishment for him.

“As for your Beta, he will be stripped from his position right at this instant.” The authority in the King's voice made the Beta in question shudder in fear.

Ryan immediately wailed, pleading for mercy. “My King, I was wrong. Spare this lowly subject of yours one last time. I'll definitely straighten my ways.”

He promised all kinds of things, even going as far as saying he would accept any kind of punishment.

However, just one look from Micah was enough to shut him up again. Forget his position, the look on the King's face at that instant made him fear for his own life.

Meanwhile, Abby couldn't believe what she just heard, and before she could ask

Micah to stop, King made another statement. “Whip Ryan and Hanna a hundred times.”

the

By now, everyone present could tell why Beta Ryan was being punished, only they couldn't understand why the King was standing up for her. And why the girl was pressed so close to the King's side. The fact that Abby was King's destined mate hadn't yet been made public, so they were still clueless about this connection.

On the other hand, Hanna and Ryan immediately started apologizing to Abby, understanding that the King wouldn't listen to them anymore.

“Abby, my good daughter. Father was wrong. Forgive me, will you?” He was so desperate that it sounded like he was ordering her instead of pleading with her.

“Abby, please, don't let this happen to me,” Hanna also shed all pretenses as she

too started pleading with Abby.

Even until a few moments earlier, it never crossed either of Ryan and Hanna's mind that they would be punished so severely like this. This was simply unbelievable. Now, they didn't have any other option left but to beg Abby, the very person they stepped on until the day before.

They never thought there would come a day, where their Gates would fall in that monster's to be decided upon. Being whipped a hundred times meant, to be beaten to an inch of one's life, if not sure death. Not to mention the fact that Ryan should kiss goodbye to his beta position.

Meanwhile, Hanna was so scared she started shaking from head to toe while crying her eyes out and begging Abby to save herself.

"Abby, please save me, I'll never mistreat you again," Hanna wailed at the top of her lungs.

On the other hand, Abby couldn't stomach either their predicament or their terrified pleas to be saved. Her heart constricted to see Ryan and Hanna treated so harshly.

"My King, please don't beat them," Abby finally whispered to him when she couldn't take it anymore. It was so uncomfortable seeing them like this that Abby had to avert her eyes a few times, just to will away the images of the desperate looks on their faces. "I don't want to see them get beaten up."

When Micah heard her, he wanted to make her see that their punishment was well warranted, even though it came late. However, he couldn't be stern with her and assert his iron fist when she looked. so vulnerable while crying for her decade long abusers, pleading with himself to spare them.

"Please, think of another punishment." Abby requested him with sincerity.

She was so soft hearted and vulnerable, he didn't have the heart to deny her first request to himself. But he couldn't let them off that easily either.

"Do you want them dead at once?" Micah said, shocking Abby along with the other people.

Chapter 19

Micah brought a still shaking Abby to the guest bedroom prepared for himself in this pack house. The girl was rattled to say the least and the King couldn't help but hug her gently.

Abby felt just right in his arms and the urge to never let her go intensified in his heart. Only he couldn't act on it right now, as he had to deal with one more thing before they could leave for the capital city tomorrow.

Even though Micah really wanted to leave as soon as possible, he wanted for Abby to regain her bearings a bit first. And after seeing the way she cried almost all day, Micah felt leaving after letting her sleep for the night would be a more wise choice.

"I'll be back in no time, rest your head while I'm gone, hmm?" The King said to Abby after releasing her from his embrace. He wiped her tears and kissed her forehead when she didn't say anything but just nodded her head in response.

He took her hand and pulled her to the bed, before gently laying her down and covering herself with the blanket. With that, he left to attend his matters.

select a competent shifter to be your next beta. I reckon you won't repeat your past mistake of failing to discipline your own beta.”

Alpha James received the order from the King, feeling dreadful with every word that left his lips. Gone was the patient king who spoke so gently to Abby, as he reverted back to his cold self when dealing with people like James.

“Yes, My King. I'll finish the task by the end of the day and the chosen one will accompany me to send your highness off tomorrow morning,” James immediately promised the king.

Only when the King left the pack meeting room, could the Alpha finally be able to sigh in relief, for he believed he escaped death by a really thin whisker.

By the time Micah returned, it was well into the night. He thought Abby would be fast asleep, considering how tired she must be both physically and mentally.

But

he found his mate staring out the window the moment he opened the door to the guest bedroom.

He could see that she changed into the dress he prepared for herself. It was a simple white ankle length gown with a bow in the front and it looked lovely on her.

Actually, he wanted her to do this as soon as they returned to their room, but she was so out of sorts at that time, he just wanted her to rest her head before anything.

Only she didn't seem to have the same thought as it was clear that she didn't rest at all after returning. He could say as much just by looking at the bed where he laid her down.

“You are not so obedient, after all,” Micah said so suddenly that Abby, whose mind had wandered off into the distance, got startled. The girl immediately turned around and lowered her head right after confirming it was just Micah as she didn't know what to say in response.

18:07 Wed, 6 Mar D

Chapter 19

Was he mad at her? Abby didn't know if she should ask him directly. Seeing her adorable reaction, Micah could only smile to himself, feeling helpless.

He slowly approached her after closing the door behind him and dismissing his warriors.

The warriors would start guarding them in turns now as they had to catch a little bit of sleep each, after all, they had a long journey tomorrow.

Micah walked to Abby who was still silent and could sense the way the girl tried not to squirm with every step that he walked closer to herself. "How are you feeling, little one?" Micah asked her the moment he stopped a step away from her.

When she didn't answer him immediately, Micah lifted her head to make her look at himself. However, he didn't say anything as he waited for her, silently trying to make her understand that she was safe with him.

Sometimes, you just have to give people time to make them comfortable enough.

And Micah could be patient with her however long she needed him to be. Sure enough, his gentle approach proved to be successful as Abby opened her mouth about five minutes later. All that time, the King remained silent as he looked into her eyes.

"I feel a little bad," Abby whispered softly.

"For your father and sister?" Micah asked her knowingly.

"Yes?" Abby answered him doubtfully, because she couldn't guess how he would react to her answer. After all, he was very angry at them earlier, even though she could tell he was only furious on her behalf.

Micah expected as much, after all, no matter what, they were still her family. She was so timid. herself but still tried to speak to himself on their behalf earlier.

He

could see that she cared for them even though they didn't deserve her kindness after what they had done to her.

[i

Chapter 20

"I'm really a monster, right?" Abby uttered, her face a mirror of horror as she continued, "I killed her... I killed my mother..." Her voice broke toward the end of her sentence.

She was blaming herself for that incident, or more precisely, her father and sister abused her so much that Abby couldn't even recall how she herself was clearly a victim of that fire accident.

"No, Abby. It was just an accident. Wrong time, wrong person, wrong place and wrong everything else," Micah stressed each and every word, but Abby was so lost in her own misery and self blaming parade that she wouldn't stop shaking. "No, My King, it was because I am a bringer of bad luck," Abby was so caught up in her own fear of being abandoned by the one person who stood up for her in so long she couldn't think straight at all.

"No, my sweet little one, you were not at fault. You were a victim yourself," Micah didn't have any other choice but to hold her face with both of his hands so she would only look at himself when he told her that. She was a victim but her cunt of a father made her believe otherwise. She suffered at least a few third degree burns from her neck to her left shoulder for crying out loud. At the tender age of nine no less. And it left a huge fucking scar when she was a shifter. While shifters were known for their remarkable healing abilities.

"But I killed my mother..." Abby couldn't help but cry. Her father and sister told her that she killed her mother for ten years almost on a daily basis that it engraved deeply in her mind.

"Yes, she died. But it was not because of you.... even if it was, it wasn't

of an excuse for your father and sister to hurt you. For ten years at that,” Micah

patiently coaxed Abby to make her understand that what Ryan did was unacceptable.

As her father and only living parent, Ryan should have taken her into his arms when she lost her mother. Instead, he chose to pin the blame on herself until she lost her other parent as well.

“He only lost his mate, Abby. But you lost your whole family on that day,” said, wiping her tears. “His punishment was nowhere equal to the amount of abuse he forced upon you. The same goes for your sister.”
Micah

Micah was so patient with her, Abby couldn't help but lean into his touch, as she basked in the warmth he provided her. He was nothing but gentle and warm to her from the moment they met last night.

Micah could sigh in relief when Abby gradually stopped self blaming herself and

whatnot as her inaudible sobs died down simultaneously,

He could see that she was really tired, but she stubbornly waited for him to return

so that she could talk with him. Only the topic of conversation was not something appealing to the King, though he was glad that some weight on Abby's shoulders

would be eased after this conversation.

Meanwhile, Abby was really sleepy and almost dozed off, feeling oddly comfortable in his presence when Micah said something and her body stiffened slightly.

“What happened?” Micah asked her when she looked like a deer in saying nothing.

Again, instead of answering him, Abby searched his eyes and Micah didn't have her answer.

"We..?"

Abby just said that single word as if she heard it for the first time in her life.

And

Micah. immediately understood what was wrong.

"We are mates, Abby. So we will stay together. For that, you will follow me to my Abby could accept him as her savior because he stood up for her and took care of both her and her feelings. But she still couldn't feel the mate bond between them. And she couldn't readily believe him even though he continuously proclaimed to be her destined mate.

"But I don't feel anything. Maybe you are wrong. Abby finally admitted.

"No, little one, I'm a hundred percent sure about it. You are my mate, someone I'm going to spend my life with." Micah could see that she was scared. But she didn't have to be. He meant every single word he said. His beast could vouch for him.

Abby felt touched hearing his words, but then her expression fell again. She felt self conscious as she remembered her scars as she couldn't help but touch them.

Her scars were so horrible to look at until people really saw her as a freak.

She

didn't believe Micah would feel otherwise.

However, Micah beat her to it when he dropped his hand from her cheek to her neck and continued in a love filled voice, "You are someone I want to cherish."

His solemn promise was so sincere, Abby felt herself nodding, even though she was only half convinced by him.

Micah understood that it was hard for her to believe himself whom she met only for one day. So he decided to give her the night to sleep on it. He was sure she would eventually come around. With that thought, he proceeded to pull her to the bed.

“Can you sleep now?” Micah changed the topic and Abby felt relieved that he didn’t call her on her uncertainty.

“Yes,” Abby started, but she got a doubt halfway to the bed. “Where will you sleep?” Abby doubted if the King would want to sleep with her, since he believed she was his mate. What should she do then? Abby couldn't help biting her lips at that thought. Moreover, this room was actually prepared for him.

Micah could see how awkward she sounded when she asked him that question

Abby, who was still thinking of ways to push the Kung away, didn't realize the man was already by the door, ready to leave when she realized he was not touching her anymore.

She opened her eyes and saw him opening the door. "You are leaving?" "Why? Want me to put you to sleep" Micali raised a brow, only then she realized the King was just teasing her And her response of burrowing further into the blanket made Micali clackle as he closed the door behind him, shaking his head His mate is adorable. Period; However, when he thought about the people back from the palace, Micah's expression hardened again. It would be hard for his timid mate to survive there. They would have complaints to accept her as the Queen. Not to mention her scars. Abby could really use a good night's sleep.
