

His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect

Chapter 62

Just as Abby lifted her hand to knock on the door, Mirella's clear voice reached her ears as the door swung open from inside, leaving her stunned for a moment.

"You didn't disappoint me," the witch uttered, sounding too casual as if she had long expected her visit.

The moment the door fully opened, Abby could see her sitting at the same table they sat at the day Abby came to consult her for the first time.

The girl took long strides to the said table as she dropped into the chair across from the witch.

"I know you have some questions," Mirella prompted when Abby didn't say anything even after she entered the hut as the door closed behind her.

Hearing this, Abby didn't have any doubts that Mirella had been indeed waiting for her.

Without wasting any more time, the girl immediately dived into the topic that was bothering her the most. "Do you know anyone named Calpin?"

"Calpin?" Mirella repeated after Abby as she raised a brow at her.

"My mother told me about him," she elaborated a little, trying to make Mirella understand why she was hung up on this bedtime story her mother told her.

She explained how Riley implicitly warned her about this man time and again.

After she was done talking, Abby didn't notice how she held her own breath as Mirella wouldn't say anything but kept staring at her.

"So?" Abby started slowly. "Was it just a lullaby with no particular meaning?"

She

asked Mirella out loud when she couldn't tolerate the suspense anymore.

And how surprised she was when the witch finally opened her mouth. "The man in your mother's bedtime stories is a real person."

"A real person?" Abby couldn't help but repeat after her.

She thought about it a lot and was mentally prepared for both possible outcomes.

One being Riley, Abby's mother, just choosing a random yet single name for the bad guy in all her lullabies.

The second being her mother was talking about a real dark wizard who stopped
at nothing to fulfill his own greed for power.
Still, when the witch confirmed that the person named Calpin was real, she couldn't help but widen her eyes.
On the other hand, the witch still had this nonchalant expression on her face as she proceeded to 0

B73%EE.

Chapter 62

answer Abby's earlier question. "Yes, he is a dark wizard."

"A dark wizard?" Abby couldn't help but gasp out loud as Mirella began to clear

her doubts about Calpin one by one.

Apparently, what her mother told was true and not some just made up story like

she half expected

it to be.

There was indeed someone named Calpin in the past. He was a magic user, no,

a dark magic user to be precise.

He resorted to all kinds of evil things just to become the most powerful being in this realm.

More or less, the same as what her mother warned her of.

Only Mirella didn't feel the need to hold back anything at all like Riley as she poured out everything she knew about him when Abby asked her to.

"So what happened to him?" Abby couldn't help but ask this when she thought about the person who was instigating those rogues to attack in different parts of this kingdom.

Her mother told her he was subdued by a witch before she trapped him inside
a

cave and started guarding it, so he wouldn't be able to come outside.

It was a perfect bedtime story and seemed as if her mother changed some parts

to accommodate a ten year old kid like her.

But she felt the need to confirm every single part she remembered about that dark magic user.

With this thought, Abby explained the rest of the things she could recall about Calpin from her mother's stories to Mirella.

"The part of him being locked up in a cave wasn't made up either," the witch declared, sounding nonchalant yet again.

The more Abby listened, the more she could confirm that the person Riley talked about was real and dangerous even.

That man literally stopped at nothing to get what he wanted until he had to be detained in a cave like a wild beast.

He seemed really dangerous and Abby couldn't help but think about the unknown enemy Micah was fighting right now.

But she couldn't decide if she should divulge the things Micah found out from his investigation about the other Calpin in front of Mirella when she sounded too casual like this.

After all, that piece of information seemed a little confidential and she couldn't reveal it just like that

o

16:44 Fri, 8 Mar

Chapter 62

However, Mirella wasn't done telling her part as she continued to recount everything she knew about Calpin.

"Not many people knew about this dark magic user," the witch said, grabbing Abby's wandering off attention again.

Because magic users were not really common in this realm until one could only find one or two witches in this whole kingdom, not many people knew how Calpin wreaked havoc in his hunts for power.

Chancing upon even one witch in one's lifetime was very rare.

Hearing this, Abby recalled that her mother also told her this part.

She also said only witches knew about Calpin as the legend was only passed down to people in their circle, who were none other than witches.

Just like the tradition of guarding Calpin's cave was the sole responsibility of the witches from the next generations of the witch who subdued that dark magic user.

Which was also why Hanna, her older sister, didn't know anything about it. After hearing the story, Abby fell into a dilemma. If both were the same person, then it was impossible for this dark magic user to pull strings from inside the cave...

Abby couldn't believe she spent the whole day at the witch's hut talking about this and that.

ve senta

So when her maids knocked on the door and informed her that it was already evening and she missed lunch, the girl immediately bade farewell to Mirella, hoping that Micah would word to her by now.

The last time the rogues attacked them, while they were on their way to the Red River pack, it didn't take the King and his warriors too long to subdue them..

Thinking up to this, Abby urged Alyssa and Reyna to rush the coachman to move the carriage faster and before twenty minutes could pass, she found herself running to their new guest room.

But there was no news from the Black Claw pack yet, even so Abby didn't let it get to her head.

Since the distance between the two packs was too huge, even though they were practically neighboring territories, they were facing some problems communicating with each other effectively.

Not to mention they had gone incognito right now and had fewer people to spare, just to pass

casual news.

Visit to read full content.

She stayed awake until midnight for any possible news, but after that, because of lack of sleep the previous night, she fell asleep shortly after Reyna left to sleep while Alyssa stayed behind to keep her company

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

16:44 Fri, 8 Mar RGB.

Chapter 62

73%

Visit to read full content.

p

However, her sleep wasn't peaceful as she tossed and turned on the bed all night. And when a soft yet rhythmic knocking reached her ears early in the morning, she woke up in an instant. The content is on

! Read the latest chapter there!

She dashed to the door in hopes Micah was back.

Only she couldn't see Micah, safe and well, while a royal warrior could be seen waiting for her outside their room.

"My lady, the King sent a word for you," the warrior said before presenting her a small letter.

Visit to read full content. Please bookmark site to read latest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

: .)

After dropping the letter in Reyna's hands, who seemed to have replaced Alyssa early in the morning, the guard left swiftly, but not before bowing to his future queen once again. The content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

Once Abby stepped back into the room, she immediately grabbed the missive from Reyna's and skimmed through it in seconds.

It seemed Micah couldn't solve the problem in the Black Claw pack yet. In the letter, he told her he would be back in a day or two.

Reading it, Abby couldn't help but feel a bit worried.

The problem they thought would be resolved in one day extended to two days....

Now, Micah said it would take one or two more days....

Abby had a bad feeling about this....

Just how huge was the attack this time that they were being held back for days like this?

gor

Abby got a vague idea the next day when there was still no news from the King

or his warriors... And when they did receive another piece of news, it was anything but good.

She was taking a stroll in the back garden when she saw a couple of warriors rushing to the Alpha's room, looking like they had important news to deliver.

Abby followed them to the Alpha's study with her maids in tow and the words that left the warrior's lips knocked the air out of her lungs.

On the third day of Micah's impromptu departure, Alpha Samuel received a missive which read the pack Micah in right now was under attack for the third consecutive day.

Even though there were several attacks during the past two days, there hadn't been any news of the royal warriors dying in the fights.

But this evening, they said two royal warriors lost their lives during the fight with the rogues while trying to save the normal yet innocent pack members of the Black Claw pack.

The pack was being literally swarmed by the rogues... Meaning, the King's location would be compromised in no time if they hadn't already discovered it.

[e)

His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect #Chapter 63 - Read His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect Chapter 63

Chapter 63

"Two of the royal warriors had been killed during the fight earlier today," one warrior said, almost running out of breath, while the others behind him looked a bit tense as well.

Alpha Samuel looked taken aback at this report.

Before leaving to the Black Claw pack, Micah told him to wait for any orders if the situation with the rogue's attack spiraled out of control.

Even though it had already been three days since the sovereign left to the: pack to see this issue. to the end, he didn't send any reinforcements, not wanting to disrupt whatever Micah had planned.

However, the situation was beyond out of control now,

"They say the whole pack is under siege, countless rogues are attacking them from all directions," another warrior filled in when the first one couldn't continue the report.

Their King was out there, in the middle of literal chaos, with insufficient protective measures, while they still didn't know how to stop those rogues from running rampant.

Alpha Samuel didn't even have enough time to think and come up with a strategy to tackle this situation, so he did the only thing he could do.

"Gather our warriors, inform all the royal warriors as well. We are going to the Black Claw pack to assist the King." Alpha Samuel ordered swiftly as soon as he made a decision.

However, just as he stood up to walk out of his study, he saw Abby standing right outside the door with a terrified expression on her face.

"My lady." Alpha Samuel bowed to her and proceeded to walk past her.

Only the girl wasn't having any of it as she blocked his path.

"I'm coming with you," Abby proclaimed as the Alpha frowned at her words.

"It will be very dangerous," he said, trying to dissuade her, knowing fully well that if something were to happen to her, Micah would have his head once he was back.

Mates were very important to shifters like them. Moreover, he saw how Micah treated Abby like his most precious treasure from the moment they came down to their pack.

to a place

Not to mention, they were going where the rogues were wreaking havoc.

He said the same thing to her, hoping she would change her mind, only he didn't expect her to be so stubborn.

"All the more reason for me to go there," Abby insisted, not backing down even in the face of imminent danger.

13

[e)

Chapter 63

H Mar A

Meanwhile, the Alpha couldn't do anything when the girl chose to stick to her decision to come along with them..

Not to mention they were running out of time while it would take at least six hours to reach the Black Claw pack.

Every second they wasted here would only bring them closer to the worst possible situation.

Having no other choice, Alpha Samuel had to agree to let Abby tag along with them to the Black Claw pack.

Since Abby couldn't run to the Black Claw pack like the warriors, Alpha Samuel arranged a carriage for her.

Alyssa went with her while Reyna stayed behind in the Red River pack.

Abby couldn't thank Alpha Samuel enough when Mirella joined her in the carriage.

They could use whatever assistance they could get right now.

Micah was in danger. The threat didn't just come from those rogues but the actual mastermind behind them.

Calpin. That mysterious yet calculative man.

Since her conversation with the witch two days ago, Abby had been trying to think of the possibility of the Calpin behind the rogues being the dark magic user

Riley talked about through lullabies.

Even though Mirella didn't say anything about the dark magic user escaping from that cave he was Supposed to be locked in, Abby couldn't completely strike off the possibility of him escaping and now wreaking havoc in this realm once again.

Call her an over-thinker, but if this wasn't just a coincidence and Micah was really dealing with a dark magic user, he could lose his life.

Abby didn't come to this conclusion just randomly.

Even though she couldn't clearly remember everything her mother told her about

Calpin, she could still remember how her mother always looked a bit fearful while talking about him.

She believed him to be a dangerous man who could do anything to gain power...

And when Abby thought back to all the attacks done by the rogues thus far, the common always been Micah.

All the attacks that had happened thus far had happened near the King... point had

Whoever this Calpin was, he might be targeting Micah, the King of werewolves, to achieve hist

o

16:44 Fn, 8 Mar GG.

Chapter 63

ultimate goal.

973%5

Visit to read full content.

If he was the same dark magic user, who was greedy for power, wanting B B an . ;

to claim the King's life didn't seem far-fetched in the grand scheme of things. The content is on

! Read the latest

chapter there!

All the witches, including Mirella and Riley, knew how the Calpin in Abby's mother's lullabies wanted more and more power.

The moment she heard the Black Claw pack was under siege, Abby realized that these attacks must be planned to harm Micah.

"There is still no news?" Abby asked Alyssa, who shook her head in response.

Visit to read full content.

Abby had been literally pestering Alyssa to mind link one of the warriors running out there, toward the Black Claw pack, to ask for any new information they got on the wa , : « :

King's situation. The content is on

! Read the latest

chapter there!

Only it wasn't that easy to send or receive a word when the place was being turned upside down by those rogues.

Visit to read full content.

The six hour long journey to this neighboring pack of the Red River pack felt like more than six days to Please bookmark site to read latest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

5 J 3

the king's mate as her anxiety left her shifting in her seat interminably. The content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

Alyssa reassured her time and again that the King would be fine, while the witch, Mirella, sat through the entire journey in silence.

And when they finally arrived at the Black Claw pack, Abby felt her heart thumping in her throat.

In front of her, she saw a whole pack being burned down to the ground.

SEND GIFT

Chapter 64

It was nearly dusk by the time Alpha Samuel reached the border of the Black Claw pack with his warriors, following the royal warriors.

The carriage Abby and the others took was just behind them with a bunch of royal warriors escorting them safely here.

However, before they could breathe a sigh of relief, they entered the inhabited territory of this pack and all of them felt their souls leave their bodies at the sight before their eyes.

The fortress was on fire. Literally.

Thick clouds of black smoke swirled in the slowly darkening sky as they engulfed

what was left of the little evening light, plunging them in darkness before the sun

could even escape to the other side of the realm, unable to behold the madness

that was being unfolded in this pack.

Countless pack members could be seen standing just outside the pack house, watching helplessly as the fire slowly but surely spread to every part of their fortress.

Some were crying for help, some were searching for their family members, even though they looked like they didn't dare to hope for a positive outcome.

There were a few who couldn't even stomach the sight before their eyes, as they

stood rooted to the ground, frozen, in shock.

The scene was so devastating, it was obvious the rogues claimed too many lives

this time around.

The amount of havoc they had wreaked was unfathomable when they became the reason for the anguish that resonated in the countless hearts of the pack members of the Black Claw pack.

Abby couldn't believe her eyes when this sight greeted her.

This was even worse than the worst possible scenario she imagined. This was a hundred times. worse if she had to be honest.

Why the hell would someone burn an entire pack?

Even the air smelled like death, the girl felt suffocated just at the sight of this atrocity.

Micah.

She needed to find him.

At this thought, Abby jumped out of the carriage once it stopped behind the stunned royal warriors and Alpha Samuel's troupe.

"Find the King," she prompted and immediately every warrior standing before her

came to their senses as they started combing through the pack members standing in front of their burning

1/3

15:45 Fri, 8 Mar

Chapter 64

fortress.

However, even after waiting for more than ten minutes, none returned with a promising report.

"Negative," the last group of warriors announced after they bowed down to their future queen.

Not just the King, even the rest of the ten or so members along with the royal gamma couldn't be found among the crowd there.

They even tried asking the pack members who were calm enough to answer a question or two.

results that could be considered positive.

ly it didn't yield any

No matter how many times they asked, the only answer they got was they didn't even see anyone remotely similar to the person they were describing. Since Micah came in secret, wearing a disguise, no one there knew the King had actually come down to their pack to fend off the rogues. On the other hand, Abby felt frustrated with every “couldn't find and “couldn't see’ answers from the warriors. After seeing the state this pack was in, she couldn't help but fear the situation Micah was dealing with now. However, she didn't lose hope as she urged them to search one more time. There must be at least one person who knew about something or saw something or someone. And so began a second combing, while Abby stood with Mirella and Alyssa near the carriage, watching the warriors fruitless scouring through the wailing pack members. Abby didn't think something bad had happened to the King, at least, not yet. The mate bond she newly discovered after Mirella unlocked her memories was proof enough that Micah didn't encounter something fatal yet. Even though they hadn't completed the bond yet, it was still possible for them to feel each other through the recognized bond. So, the king's mate was able to breathe a little easier with the thought she could feel it if something did happen to Micah. However, the longer she couldn't find him, the harder it was for her to bear the thought of him. struggling with inadequate aid to get through this hurdle. Her heart ached for her mate as she felt like going and searching for Micah herself when the warriors returned with the same answer of not being able to find the King or any of the people that followed him to the Black Claw pack three days prior.

2/3
16:45 Fri, 8 Mar R G G
Chapter 64
Visit to read full content.
She could see how Alpha Samuel and his warriors along with the royal warriors slowly started to lose hope as their countenances filled with distress with each second that passed. The content is on ! Read the latest chapter there! Visit to read full content. Abby felt like shouting at the top of her lungs, this estrangement from her mate had left her so rattled, she didn't think she could breathe normally till she could see Micah safe and sound with her own eyes. The content is on ! Read the latest chapter there!

5 5 5

Only her hopes were dashed once again when Alpha Samuel and others returned with empty? hands.

Just where are you, Micah?

Visit to read full content.

Just as Abby lifted her leg to go and comb through the crowd herself, she saw an old man. approaching one of the warriors before he said something to the warrior. The content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

The warrior immediately ran to Alpha Samuel and Abby. "Alpha, my lady, he says there were people still fighting near the dungeon."

The warrior rushed out his words as he looked hopeful at the news, which was reflected equally if not a tenfold in Alpha Samuel and Abby's eyes.

"I think the King is still fighting with those pests," Samuel spit out, his voice dripping with animosity.

"But, the whole fortress is engulfed in flames, how will we enter it and provide him any assistance?" One of the warriors pointed out.

Alpha Samuel's face fell when he realized that part.

However, before he could come up with a plan, he saw Abby walking toward the burning gates with determined steps.

0

GIFT

Please bookmark site to read latest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

Chapter 65

The moment the warrior conveyed what the old man said, Alpha Samuel felt his dying hope revive. in an instant.

However, the burning fortress struck his vision again in the next moment, and his heart started to tremble anew.

“Did you see them clearly?” Alpha Samuel immediately asked the old man for more details. Only he couldn't help but feel his heart tighten when the other person couldn't provide any more information on the situation inside.

The people fighting inside were all in their beast forms and it was super chaotic with all the fire and people running here and there to save themselves.

Amidst such chaos, it was already a great thing that this old man saw something useful to them.

Now the only question was; how to enter the fortress when the flames were soaring so high as if they wouldn't die down until the whole structure burned to ashes.

Not to mention, they didn't know what kind of situation the King was in there. He was in a dilemma.

However, before he could come up with any plan, he heard people gasping in unison.

When he lifted his head up, he felt his heart drop to his stomach.

Lady Abby, the king's mate and this kingdom's future queen, was actually rushing toward the fortress with determined steps.

On the other hand, as soon as Abby heard there were people still fighting inside,

she believed with all her heart that Micah would be one of them.

So with the new found hope, she didn't think of dilly dallying anymore even in the face of the fire before her eyes.

Meanwhile, Alyssa almost lost her soul when she saw her master walking into the fire like she couldn't see how dangerous it was.

"Lady Abby, don't be so rash!" She screamed at the top of her lungs to stop her lady from doing something stupid. Following her lead, all the people there along with royal warriors also shouted for her to stop.

Only Mirella seemed to be calm enough as she slowly walked toward the fortress

as well.

Then, under the shocked gazes of everyone, Abby walked through a wall of fire as if she couldn't feel the heat at all.

113

[φ)

73% *

Chapter 65

Seeing this, the people there were even more shocked.

On the other hand, Abby didn't think much of the fire when she wanted to get to the King quickly.

She believed, with her unsealed memories, she could control the fire just fine.

And how surprised she was when she could actually walk through it unharmed.

Once she successfully entered the fortress, through the burning gates, she didn't waste even a second to search for the King.

To her surprise, even Mirella could control fire.

Together, it wasn't really that hard to find the King and the others, fighting in their beast forms, as the huge battle cries and growls lead them to the heart of the fight just fine.

"There they are," Mirella said, as she took a fighting stance, noticing the severity of the situation.

Just like the old man said, they were still fighting.

And they could see why. The number of beasts joining the fight only amplified with each second. that passed no matter how many beasts the King and his royal

gamma killed.

Even now, they were surrounded by a dozen beasts each as they fought relentlessly.

The rogues' scent hit her senses the moment Abby laid her eyes on the fight. Micah and Dex were fighting rogues, who seem to have nothing but reaching the goal in their minds.

Abby couldn't help but feel her hunch was correct.

But she wouldn't let anyone take Micah away from her.

So, after watching Mirella fighting the rogues for a second, Abby too joined the fight, surprising Micah, who just noticed his mate when a rogue flew off his back because of a fireball.

"Little one," the King called out, wanting to tell her to get back to safety, only he couldn't when another rogue jumped in front of him, cutting off his line of thought.

On the other hand, Abby didn't stop when Micah called her. She knew he didn't want her to get hurt.

But it was the same case with her. She didn't want him to get hurt either.

Moreover, she couldn't stand on the sidelines when she could help in any way.

From the corner of her eyes, she saw Alpha Samuel and the others joining the fight as well.

Apparently, Mirella took care of the fire near the entrance gates, enough for the warriors to pass

||

0

85;

B73%tH

Chapter 65

through and reach the dungeon where the fight was happening.

With their assistance, it became a little easy to fend off the rogues who wouldn't stop coming at them incessantly.

It was like being swarmed by countless annoying yet undying bees that wouldn't stop buzzing in your ears.

On the other hand, Micah and Dex were surprised by Abby's move to fight the rogues with her powers.

Visit to read full content. Please bookmark site to read latest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

)

Even though she couldn't control the fire really well, the girl seemed to have started getting the hang of it around fifteen minutes into the fight.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

Not to mention, Mirella literally had her back whenever it got too overwhelming for her.

It almost took them an hour to bring the situation under their control...

And when Abby thought of running to Micah's black beast while the others took care of the aftermath, something caught her eye.

Visit to read full content.

She saw someone standing on one of the burning buildings not too far from them, not even bothering about the flames licking his clothes. The content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

The sight made her gasp and immediately Micah, who was looking at his mate,

also turned toward the direction she was looking at

Visit to read full content.

He noticed the same masked man, and before he could run to the building and see who it was for himself, both Abby and he saw the man actually disappear into thin air.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

Witnessing this, they turned around to look at each other.

Only one thought resonated in their heads.

Was it Calpin just now?

iii

SEND GIFT

0 0

Chapter 66

Right when they thought the situation could be brought under control, they encountered another problem.

Abby was just about to go to Micah's black beast to check on him when she saw this masked man standing on a building not too far from them.

Only he disappeared in the next moment, where the flames licking his clothes and body lit

o his entire frame and the next second, they couldn't see anyone in his spot.

However, the King couldn't leave it at that.

He quickly ran to his mate, still in his beast form. And after giving her a quick once over, he pushed her back a little with his head as he turned around to go to the very spot where the masked man disappeared.

"Stay right here." He nodded at Abby once before he sprinted up the building, but couldn't find anyone there.

They did see him disappearing, basically being engulfed by the fire, but Micah strongly believed he wouldn't leave so easily like that.

He was doing all of this for a purpose. And the King could also tell it had something to do with himself.

So with his prize right before his eyes, it was impossible for him to give up so readily.

He looked over the nearby buildings as well before looking down from top of the building, where Abby could be seen worrying as she stood there wringing her hands a little.

The girl was clearly distressed as she gave up waiting and immediately ran toward this building.

Seeing this, Micah swiftly shifted into his human form.

"DON'T!" He shouted, but it was already too late as the girl disappeared under the porch in the next second.

Chapter 66

(+5)

It was just a two storied building, so even before Micah could run across the roof and down the stairs to bring the girl back down, not wanting to put her in any unknown danger, Abby was already climbing the stairs between the second storey and the roof.

“Didn't I tell you to stay where you are?!” The King couldn't help but reprimand

Abby as soon as she stopped in front of him.

But the girl wasn't having it. She just hugged him without saying anything and her mate couldn't even stay angry at her.

It had been days since he last saw her and having her in his arms again was surreal.

Only he couldn't enjoy the moment as the girl immediately stepped back from his embrace even before he could wrap his arms around her frame.

“Something is happening,” Abby said as she looked around her frantically.

Below the building, more and more rogues were still joining the fight, but it wasn't

as overwhelming as when the King had to fight them with just Dax and ten or so warriors on his side.

So Micah couldn't understand her words at all, however, before he could grab her and ask her what she meant by that, or why she felt that, he could see the answer with his own eyes.

Suddenly, there was this huge wall of fire that surrounded this building and the King's mate couldn't help but gasp as the sovereign tried to reach for her and pull her closer to himself.

They could see nothing past this wall of fire, but still could hear Dax and the others.

They were trying to get to them while asking if their king and future queen were safe.

“We are fine,” Micah shouted back as he looked around the fire soaring high in the sky. The words “for now” were at the tip of his tongue.

Only the thought of not wanting to scare his mate right now stopped him from thinking in that direction.

On the other hand, Dax immediately approached Mirella and asked her to do something about the fire.

Chapter 66

After all only this witch was capable of walking through the fire earlier, other than

Abby.

"I plan to do so," Mirella threw back at the worrying royal gamma and Alpha Samuel.

Mirella tried to take down the wall of fire with her magic, but it didn't seem like anything she had ever encountered as it wouldn't budge no matter how strong of a spell she used on

ait

She even created fireballs from thin air and then threw them at this wall, and to her surprise, every time she did that, that wall only seemed to get stronger as if it was absorbing the power from every spell that she used.

The witch couldn't help but gasp at this realization.

Just what kind of spell was this...

Whoever created this wall of fire was too strong, she wasn't a match at all.

Even so she didn't lose hope as she tried even harder to break the wall.

Seeing this, Dax, Alpha Samuel and the others started to feel restless.

They couldn't see what was happening to Micah or Abby, even though they were literally a few tens of feet apart.

Visit to read full content.

Meanwhile, on the rooftop, Abby also tried to use whatever means she could recall to breach this wall for them to go out of it, but to no avail.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

She just learned she had this kind of ability and still had a long way to go and understand how it actually worked.

Visit to read full content.

Right when she was in a dilemma as to how to save herself and her mate

from this predicament, the masked

man reappeared before them. The

content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

"Little one!" the King almost shouted as he ran toward her.

Visit to read full content.

Micah quickly pulled her into his arms, wanting to protect her as he faced the masked man, who was now staring at them with this strange look in his eyes. The content is on ! Read the latest chapter there!

On the other hand, Abby couldn't help but feel she saw this man before. He seemed so familiar as if she saw him somewhere really important. She raked her brains, trying to refresh her newly unlocked memories as much as she could.

And how shocked she was when she realized where she saw him... After all, it was on the day her mother died!

Please bookmark site to read lastest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect #Chapter 64 - Read His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect Chapter 64

Chapter 64

It was nearly dusk by the time Alpha Samuel reached the border of the Black Claw pack with his warriors, following the royal warriors.

The carriage Abby and the others took was just behind them with a bunch of royal warriors escorting them safely here.

However, before they could breathe a sigh of relief, they entered the inhabited territory of this pack and all of them felt their souls leave their bodies at the sight before their eyes.

The fortress was on fire. Literally.

Thick clouds of black smoke swirled in the slowly darkening sky as they engulfed

what was left of the little evening light, plunging them in darkness before the sun

could even escape to the other side of the realm, unable to behold the madness

that was being unfolded in this pack.

Countless pack members could be seen standing just outside the pack house, watching helplessly as the fire slowly but surely spread to every part of their fortress.

Some were crying for help, some were searching for their family members, even though they looked like they didn't dare to hope for a positive outcome.

There were a few who couldn't even stomach the sight before their eyes, as they stood rooted to the ground, frozen, in shock.

The scene was so devastating, it was obvious the rogues claimed too many lives

this time around.

The amount of havoc they had wreaked was unfathomable when they became the reason for the anguish that resonated in the countless hearts of the pack members of the Black Claw pack.

Abby couldn't believe her eyes when this sight greeted her.

This was even worse than the worst possible scenario she imagined. This was a hundred times. worse if she had to be honest.

Why the hell would someone burn an entire pack?

Even the air smelled like death, the girl felt suffocated just at the sight of this atrocity.

Micah.

She needed to find him.

At this thought, Abby jumped out of the carriage once it stopped behind the stunned royal warriors and Alpha Samuel's troupe.

"Find the King," she prompted and immediately every warrior standing before her

came to their senses as they started combing through the pack members standing in front of their burning

1/3

15:45 Fri, 8 Mar

Chapter 64

fortress.

However, even after waiting for more than ten minutes, none returned with a promising report.

"Negative," the last group of warriors announced after they bowed down to their future queen.

Not just the King, even the rest of the ten or so members along with the royal gamma couldn't be found among the crowd there.

They even tried asking the pack members who were calm enough to answer a question or two.

results that could be considered positive.
ly it didn't yield any
No matter how many times they asked, the only answer they got was they didn't even see anyone remotely similar to the person they were describing.
Since Micah came in secret, wearing a disguise, no one there knew the King had actually come down to their pack to fend off the rogues.
On the other hand, Abby felt frustrated with every "couldn't find and "couldn't see' answers from the warriors.
After seeing the state this pack was in, she couldn't help but fear the situation Micah was dealing with now.
However, she didn't lose hope as she urged them to search one more time.
There must be at least one person who knew about something or saw something or someone.
And so began a second combing, while Abby stood with Mirella and Alyssa near the carriage, watching the warriors fruitless scouring through the wailing pack members.
Abby didn't think something bad had happened to the King, at least, not yet.
The mate bond she newly discovered after Mirella unlocked her memories was proof enough that Micah didn't encounter something fatal yet.
Even though they hadn't completed the bond yet, it was still possible for them to feel each other through the recognized bond.
So, the king's mate was able to breathe a little easier with the thought she could feel it if something did happen to Micah.
However, the longer she couldn't find him, the harder it was for her to bear the thought of him. struggling with inadequate aid to get through this hurdle.
Her heart ached for her mate as she felt like going and searching for Micah herself when the warriors returned with the same answer of not being able to find the King or any of the people that followed him to the Black Claw pack three days prior.

2/3

16:45 Fri, 8 Mar R G G

Chapter 64

Visit to read full content.

She could see how Alpha Samuel and his warriors along with the royal warriors slowly started to lose hope as their countenances filled with distress with each second that passed. The content is on

! Read the latest chapter there!

Visit to read full content.

Abby felt like shouting at the top of her lungs, this estrangement from her mate had left her so rattled, she didn't think she could breathe normally till she could see Micah safe and sound with her own eyes. The content is on ! Read

5 5 5

the latest chapter there!

Only her hopes were dashed once again when Alpha Samuel and others returned with empty? hands.

Just where are you, Micah?

Visit to read full content.

Just as Abby lifted her leg to go and comb through the crowd herself, she saw an old man. approaching one of the warriors before he said something to the warrior. The content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

The warrior immediately ran to Alpha Samuel and Abby. "Alpha, my lady, he says

there were people still fighting near the dungeon."

The warrior rushed out his words as he looked hopeful at the news, which was reflected equally if not a tenfold in Alpha Samuel and Abby's eyes.

"I think the King is still fighting with those pests," Samuel spit out, his voice dripping with animosity.

“But, the whole fortress is engulfed in flames, how will we enter it and provide him any assistance?” One of the warriors pointed out.

Alpha Samuel's face fell when he realized that part.

However, before he could come up with a plan, he saw Abby walking toward the burning gates with determined steps.

0

GIFT

Please bookmark site to read latest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

Chapter 65

The moment the warrior conveyed what the old man said, Alpha Samuel felt his dying hope revive. in an instant.

However, the burning fortress struck his vision again in the next moment, and his heart started to tremble anew.

“Did you see them clearly?” Alpha Samuel immediately asked the old man for more details. Only he couldn't help but feel his heart tighten when the other person couldn't provide any more information on the situation inside.

The people fighting inside were all in their beast forms and it was super chaotic with all the fire and people running here and there to save themselves.

Amidst such chaos, it was already a great thing that this old man saw something useful to them.

Now the only question was; how to enter the fortress when the flames were soaring so high as if they wouldn't die down until the whole structure burned to ashes.

Not to mention, they didn't know what kind of situation the King was in there.

He was in a dilemma.

However, before he could come up with any plan, he heard people gasping in unison.

When he lifted his head up, he felt his heart drop to his stomach.

Lady Abby, the king's mate and this kingdom's future queen, was actually rushing

toward the fortress with determined steps.

On the other hand, as soon as Abby heard there were people still fighting inside,

she believed with all her heart that Micah would be one of them.
So with the new found hope, she didn't think of dilly dallying anymore even in the face of the fire before her eyes.
Meanwhile, Alyssa almost lost her soul when she saw her master walking into the fire like she couldn't see how dangerous it was.
"Lady Abby, don't be so rash!" She screamed at the top of her lungs to stop her lady from doing something stupid. Following her lead, all the people there along with royal warriors also shouted for her to stop.
Only Mirella seemed to be calm enough as she slowly walked toward the fortress as well.
Then, under the shocked gazes of everyone, Abby walked through a wall of fire as if she couldn't feel the heat at all.

113

[¢)

73% *

Chapter 65

Seeing this, the people there were even more shocked.

On the other hand, Abby didn't think much of the fire when she wanted to get to the King quickly.
She believed, with her unsealed memories, she could control the fire just fine. And how surprised she was when she could actually walk through it unharmed.
Once she successfully entered the fortress, through the burning gates, she didn't waste even a second to search for the King.
To her surprise, even Mirella could control fire.
Together, it wasn't really that hard to find the King and the others, fighting in their beast forms, as the huge battle cries and growls lead them to the heart of the fight just fine.
"There they are," Mirella said, as she took a fighting stance, noticing the severity of the situation.

Just like the old man said, they were still fighting. And they could see why. The number of beasts joining the fight only amplified with each second. that passed no matter how many beasts the King and his royal gamma killed. Even now, they were surrounded by a dozen beasts each as they fought relentlessly. The rogues' scent hit her senses the moment Abby laid her eyes on the fight. Micah and Dex were fighting rogues, who seem to have nothing but reaching the goal in their minds. Abby couldn't help but feel her hunch was correct. But she wouldn't let anyone take Micah away from her. So, after watching Mirella fighting the rogues for a second, Abby too joined the fight, surprising Micah, who just noticed his mate when a rogue flew off his back because of a fireball. "Little one," the King called out, wanting to tell her to get back to safety, only he couldn't when another rogue jumped in front of him, cutting off his line of thought. On the other hand, Abby didn't stop when Micah called her. She knew he didn't want her to get hurt. But it was the same case with her. She didn't want him to get hurt either. Moreover, she couldn't stand on the sidelines when she could help in any way. From the corner of her eyes, she saw Alpha Samuel and the others joining the fight as well. Apparently, Mirella took care of the fire near the entrance gates, enough for the warriors to pass

II
0 85;
B73%tH
Chapter 65
through and reach the dungeon where the fight was happening. With their assistance, it became a little easy to fend off the rogues who wouldn't stop coming at them incessantly.

It was like being swarmed by countless annoying yet undying bees that wouldn't stop buzzing in your cars.

On the other hand, Micah and Dex were surprised by Abby's move to fight the rogues with her powers.

Visit to read full content. Please bookmark site to read latest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

)

Even though she couldn't control the fire really well, the girl seemed to have started getting the hang of it around fifteen minutes into the fight.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

Not to mention, Mirella literally had her back whenever it got too overwhelming for her.

It almost took them an hour to bring the situation under their control...

And when Abby thought of running to Micah's black beast while the others took care of the aftermath, something caught her eye.

Visit to read full content.

She saw someone standing on one of the burning buildings not too far from them, not even bothering about the flames licking his clothes. The

content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

The sight made her gasp and immediately Micah, who was looking at his mate,

also turned toward the direction she was looking at

Visit to read full content.

He noticed the same masked man, and before he could run to the building and see who it was for himself, both Abby and he saw the man actually disappear into thin air.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

Witnessing this, they turned around to look at each other.

Only one thought resonated in their heads.

Was it Calpin just now?

iii

SEND GIFT

0

0

Chapter 66

Right when they thought the situation could be brought under control, they encountered another problem.

Abby was just about to go to Micah's black beast to check on him when she saw this masked man standing on a building not too far from them.

Only he disappeared in the next moment, where the flames licking his clothes and body lit

o his entire frame and the next second, they couldn't see anyone in his spot.

However, the King couldn't leave it at that.

He quickly ran to his mate, still in his beast form. And after giving her a quick once over, he pushed her back a little with his head as he turned around to go to the very spot where the masked man disappeared.

"Stay right here." He nodded at Abby once before he sprinted up the building, but couldn't find anyone there.

They did see him disappearing, basically being engulfed by the fire, but Micah strongly believed he wouldn't leave so easily like that.

He was doing all of this for a purpose. And the King could also tell it had something to do with himself.

So with his prize right before his eyes, it was impossible for him to give up so readily.

He looked over the nearby buildings as well before looking down from top of the building, where Abby could be seen worrying as she stood there wringing her hands a little.

The girl was clearly distressed as she gave up waiting and immediately ran toward this building.

Seeing this, Micah swiftly shifted into his human form.

"DON'T!" He shouted, but it was already too late as the girl disappeared under the porch in the next second.

Chapter 66

(+5)

It was just a two storied building, so even before Micah could run across the roof

and down the stairs to bring the girl back down, not wanting to put her in any unknown danger, Abby was already climbing the stairs between the second storey and the roof.

“Didn't I tell you to stay where you are?!” The King couldn't help but reprimand

Abby as soon as she stopped in front of him.

But the girl wasn't having it. She just hugged him without saying anything and her mate couldn't even stay angry at her.

It had been days since he last saw her and having her in his arms again was surreal.

Only he couldn't enjoy the moment as the girl immediately stepped back from his embrace even before he could wrap his arms around her frame.

“Something is happening,” Abby said as she looked around her frantically.

Below the building, more and more rogues were still joining the fight, but it wasn't

as overwhelming as when the King had to fight them with just Dax and ten or so

warriors on his side.

So Micah couldn't understand her words at all, however, before he could grab her and ask her what she meant by that, or why she felt that, he could see the answer with his own eyes.

Suddenly, there was this huge wall of fire that surrounded this building and the King's mate couldn't help but gasp as the sovereign tried to reach for her and pull

her closer to himself.

They could see nothing past this wall of fire, but still could hear Dax and the others.

They were trying to get to them while asking if their king and future queen were safe.

“We are fine,” Micah shouted back as he looked around the fire soaring high in the sky. The words “for now” were at the tip of his tongue.

Only the thought of not wanting to scare his mate right now stopped him from thinking in that direction.

On the other hand, Dax immediately approached Mirella and asked her to do something about the fire.

Chapter 66

After all only this witch was capable of walking through the fire earlier, other than

Abby.

"I plan to do so," Mirella threw back at the worrying royal gamma and Alpha Samuel.

Mirella tried to take down the wall of fire with her magic, but it didn't seem like anything she had ever encountered as it wouldn't budge no matter how strong of

a spell she used on

ait

She even created fireballs from thin air and then threw them at this wall, and to her surprise, every time she did that, that wall only seemed to get stronger as if it was absorbing the power from every spell that she used.

The witch couldn't help but gasp at this realization.

Just what kind of spell was this...

Whoever created this wall of fire was too strong, she wasn't a match at all.

Even so she didn't lose hope as she tried even harder to break the wall.

Seeing this, Dax, Alpha Samuel and the others started to feel restless.

They couldn't see what was happening to Micah or Abby, even though they were literally a few tens of feet apart.

Visit to read full content.

Meanwhile, on the rooftop, Abby also tried to use whatever means she

could recall to breach this wall for them to go out of it, but to no avail.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

She just learned she had this kind of ability and still had a long way to go and understand how it actually worked.

Visit to read full content.

Right when she was in a dilemma as

to how to save herself and her mate

from this predicament, the masked man reappeared before them. The content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

“Little one!” the King almost shouted as he ran toward her.

Visit to read full content.

Micah quickly pulled her into his arms, wanting to protect her as he faced the masked man, who was now staring at them with this strange look in his eyes. The content is on

! Read the latest chapter there!

On the other hand, Abby couldn't help but feel she saw this man before.

He seemed so familiar as if she saw him somewhere really important.

She raked her brains, trying to refresh her newly unlocked memories as much as she could.

And how shocked she was when she realized where she saw him...

After all, it was on the day her mother died!

Please bookmark site to read lastest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect #Chapter 65 - Read His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect Chapter 65

Chapter 65

The moment the warrior conveyed what the old man said, Alpha Samuel felt his

dying hope revive. in an instant.

However, the burning fortress struck his vision again in the next moment, and his heart started to tremble anew.

“Did you see them clearly?” Alpha Samuel immediately asked the old man for more details. Only he couldn't help but feel his heart tighten when the other person couldn't provide any more information on the situation inside.

The people fighting inside were all in their beast forms and it was super chaotic with all the fire and people running here and there to save themselves.

Amidst such chaos, it was already a great thing that this old man saw something useful to them.

Now the only question was; how to enter the fortress when the flames were soaring so high as if they wouldn't die down until the whole structure burned to ashes.

Not to mention, they didn't know what kind of situation the King was in there. He was in a dilemma.

However, before he could come up with any plan, he heard people gasping in unison.

When he lifted his head up, he felt his heart drop to his stomach.

Lady Abby, the king's mate and this kingdom's future queen, was actually rushing

toward the fortress with determined steps.

On the other hand, as soon as Abby heard there were people still fighting inside,

she believed with all her heart that Micah would be one of them.

So with the new found hope, she didn't think of dilly dallying anymore even in the face of the fire before her eyes.

Meanwhile, Alyssa almost lost her soul when she saw her master walking into the fire like she couldn't see how dangerous it was.

"Lady Abby, don't be so rash!" She screamed at the top of her lungs to stop her lady from doing something stupid. Following her lead, all the people there along with royal warriors also shouted for her to stop.

Only Mirella seemed to be calm enough as she slowly walked toward the fortress

as well.

Then, under the shocked gazes of everyone, Abby walked through a wall of fire

as if she couldn't feel the heat at all.

113

[¢)

73% *

Chapter 65

Seeing this, the people there were even more shocked.

On the other hand, Abby didn't think much of the fire when she wanted to get to the King quickly.

She believed, with her unsealed memories, she could control the fire just fine. And how surprised she was when she could actually walk through it unharmed.

Once she successfully entered the fortress, through the burning gates, she didn't waste even a second to search for the King.

To her surprise, even Mirella could control fire.

Together, it wasn't really that hard to find the King and the others, fighting in their

beast forms, as the huge battle cries and growls lead them to the heart of the fight just fine.

"There they are," Mirella said, as she took a fighting stance, noticing the severity of the situation.

Just like the old man said, they were still fighting.

And they could see why. The number of beasts joining the fight only amplified with each second. that passed no matter how many beasts the King and his royal

gamma killed.

Even now, they were surrounded by a dozen beasts each as they fought relentlessly.

The rogues' scent hit her senses the moment Abby laid her eyes on the fight.

Micah and Dex were fighting rogues, who seem to have nothing but reaching the goal in their minds.

Abby couldn't help but feel her hunch was correct.

But she wouldn't let anyone take Micah away from her.

So, after watching Mirella fighting the rogues for a second, Abby too joined the fight, surprising Micah, who just noticed his mate when a rogue flew off his back because of a fireball.

"Little one," the King called out, wanting to tell her to get back to safety, only he couldn't when another rogue jumped in front of him, cutting off his line of thought.

On the other hand, Abby didn't stop when Micah called her. She knew he didn't want her to get hurt.

But it was the same case with her. She didn't want him to get hurt either.

Moreover, she couldn't stand on the sidelines when she could help in any way.

From the corner of her eyes, she saw Alpha Samuel and the others joining the fight as well.

Apparently, Mirella took care of the fire near the entrance gates, enough for the warriors to pass

||

0

85;

B73%tH

Chapter 65

through and reach the dungeon where the fight was happening.

With their assistance, it became a little easy to fend off the rogues who wouldn't stop coming at them incessantly.

It was like being swarmed by countless annoying yet undying bees that wouldn't stop buzzing in your ears.

On the other hand, Micah and Dex were surprised by Abby's move to fight the rogues with her powers.

Visit to read full content. Please bookmark site to read latest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

)

Even though she couldn't control the fire really well, the girl seemed to have started getting the hang of it around fifteen minutes into the fight.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

Not to mention, Mirella literally had her back whenever it got too overwhelming for her.

It almost took them an hour to bring the situation under their control...

And when Abby thought of running to Micah's black beast while the others took care of the aftermath, something caught her eye.

Visit to read full content.

She saw someone standing on one of the burning buildings not too far from them, not even bothering about the flames licking his clothes. The content is on ! Read the latest chapter there!

The sight made her gasp and immediately Micah, who was looking at his mate,

also turned toward the direction she was looking at
Visit to read full content.

He noticed the same masked man, and before he could run to the building and see who it was for himself, both Abby and he saw the man actually disappear into thin air.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

Witnessing this, they turned around to look at each other.

Only one thought resonated in their heads.

Was it Calpin just now?

iii

SEND GIFT

0

0

Chapter 66

Right when they thought the situation could be brought under control, they encountered another problem.

Abby was just about to go to Micah's black beast to check on him when she saw this masked man standing on a building not too far from them.

Only he disappeared in the next moment, where the flames licking his clothes and body lit

o his entire frame and the next second, they couldn't see anyone in his spot.

However, the King couldn't leave it at that.

He quickly ran to his mate, still in his beast form. And after giving her a quick once over, he pushed her back a little with his head as he turned around to go to the very spot where the masked man disappeared.

"Stay right here." He nodded at Abby once before he sprinted up the building, but couldn't find anyone there.

They did see him disappearing, basically being engulfed by the fire, but Micah strongly believed he wouldn't leave so easily like that.

He was doing all of this for a purpose. And the King could also tell it had something to do with himself.

So with his prize right before his eyes, it was impossible for him to give up so readily.

He looked over the nearby buildings as well before looking down from top of the building, where Abby could be seen worrying as she stood there wringing her hands a little.

The girl was clearly distressed as she gave up waiting and immediately ran toward this building.

Seeing this, Micah swiftly shifted into his human form.

“DON'T!” He shouted, but it was already too late as the girl disappeared under the porch in the next second.

Chapter 66

(+5)

It was just a two storied building, so even before Micah could run across the roof

and down the stairs to bring the girl back down, not wanting to put her in any unknown danger, Abby was already climbing the stairs between the second storey and the roof.

“Didn't I tell you to stay where you are?!” The King couldn't help but reprimand

Abby as soon as she stopped in front of him.

But the girl wasn't having it. She just hugged him without saying anything and her mate couldn't even stay angry at her.

It had been days since he last saw her and having her in his arms again was surreal.

Only he couldn't enjoy the moment as the girl immediately stepped back from his embrace even before he could wrap his arms around her frame.

“Something is happening,” Abby said as she looked around her frantically.

Below the building, more and more rogues were still joining the fight, but it wasn't

as overwhelming as when the King had to fight them with just Dax and ten or so

warriors on his side.

So Micah couldn't understand her words at all, however, before he could grab her and ask her what she meant by that, or why she felt that, he could see the answer with his own eyes.

Suddenly, there was this huge wall of fire that surrounded this building and the King's mate couldn't help but gasp as the sovereign tried to reach for her and pull

her closer to himself.

They could see nothing past this wall of fire, but still could hear Dax and the others.

They were trying to get to them while asking if their king and future queen were safe.

"We are fine," Micah shouted back as he looked around the fire soaring high in the sky. The words "for now" were at the tip of his tongue.

Only the thought of not wanting to scare his mate right now stopped him from thinking in that direction.

On the other hand, Dax immediately approached Mirella and asked her to do something about the fire.

Chapter 66

After all only this witch was capable of walking through the fire earlier, other than

Abby.

"I plan to do so," Mirella threw back at the worrying royal gamma and Alpha Samuel.

Mirella tried to take down the wall of fire with her magic, but it didn't seem like anything she had ever encountered as it wouldn't budge no matter how strong of

a spell she used on

ait

She even created fireballs from thin air and then threw them at this wall, and to her surprise, every time she did that, that wall only seemed to get stronger as if it was absorbing the power from every spell that she used.

The witch couldn't help but gasp at this realization.

Just what kind of spell was this...

Whoever created this wall of fire was too strong, she wasn't a match at all.

Even so she didn't lose hope as she tried even harder to break the wall.

Seeing this, Dax, Alpha Samuel and the others started to feel restless.

They couldn't see what was happening to Micah or Abby, even though they were literally a few tens of feet apart.

Visit to read full content.

Meanwhile, on the rooftop, Abby also tried to use whatever means she could recall to breach this wall for them to go out of it, but to no avail.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

She just learned she had this kind of ability and still had a long way to go and understand how it actually worked.

Visit to read full content.

Right when she was in a dilemma as to how to save herself and her mate from this predicament, the masked man reappeared before them. The content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

“Little one!” the King almost shouted as he ran toward her.

Visit to read full content.

Micah quickly pulled her into his arms, wanting to protect her as he faced the masked man, who was now staring at them with this strange look in his eyes. The content is on

! Read the latest

chapter there!

On the other hand, Abby couldn't help but feel she saw this man before.

He seemed so familiar as if she saw him somewhere really important.

She raked her brains, trying to refresh her newly unlocked memories as much as she could.

And how shocked she was when she realized where she saw him...

After all, it was on the day her mother died!

Please bookmark site to read lastest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

Chapter 66

Right when they thought the situation could be brought under control, they encountered another problem.

Abby was just about to go to Micah's black beast to check on him when she saw

this masked man standing on a building not too far from them.

Only he disappeared in the next moment, where the flames licking his clothes and body lit

o his entire frame and the next second, they couldn't see anyone in his spot.

However, the King couldn't leave it at that.

He quickly ran to his mate, still in his beast form. And after giving her a quick once over, he pushed her back a little with his head as he turned around to go to the very spot where the masked man disappeared.

“Stay right here.” He nodded at Abby once before he sprinted up the building, but couldn't find anyone there.

They did see him disappearing, basically being engulfed by the fire, but Micah strongly believed he wouldn't leave so easily like that.

He was doing all of this for a purpose. And the King could also tell it had something to do with himself.

So with his prize right before his eyes, it was impossible for him to give up so readily.

He looked over the nearby buildings as well before looking down from top of the building, where Abby could be seen worrying as she stood there wringing her hands a little.

The girl was clearly distressed as she gave up waiting and immediately ran toward this building.

Seeing this, Micah swiftly shifted into his human form.

“DON'T!” He shouted, but it was already too late as the girl disappeared under the porch in the next second.

Chapter 66

(+5)

It was just a two storied building, so even before Micah could run across the roof

and down the stairs to bring the girl back down, not wanting to put her in any unknown danger, Abby was already climbing the stairs between the second storey and the roof.

“Didn't I tell you to stay where you are?!” The King couldn't help but reprimand Abby as soon as she stopped in front of him.

But the girl wasn't having it. She just hugged him without saying anything and her mate couldn't even stay angry at her.

It had been days since he last saw her and having her in his arms again was surreal.

Only he couldn't enjoy the moment as the girl immediately stepped back from his embrace even before he could wrap his arms around her frame.

"Something is happening," Abby said as she looked around her frantically.

Below the building, more and more rogues were still joining the fight, but it wasn't

as overwhelming as when the King had to fight them with just Dax and ten or so

warriors on his side.

So Micah couldn't understand her words at all, however, before he could grab her and ask her what she meant by that, or why she felt that, he could see the answer with his own eyes.

Suddenly, there was this huge wall of fire that surrounded this building and the King's mate couldn't help but gasp as the sovereign tried to reach for her and pull

her closer to himself.

They could see nothing past this wall of fire, but still could hear Dax and the others.

They were trying to get to them while asking if their king and future queen were safe.

"We are fine," Micah shouted back as he looked around the fire soaring high in the sky. The words "for now" were at the tip of his tongue.

Only the thought of not wanting to scare his mate right now stopped him from thinking in that direction.

On the other hand, Dax immediately approached Mirella and asked her to do something about the fire.

Chapter 66

After all only this witch was capable of walking through the fire earlier, other than

Abby.

"I plan to do so," Mirella threw back at the worrying royal gamma and Alpha Samuel.

Mirella tried to take down the wall of fire with her magic, but it didn't seem like anything she had ever encountered as it wouldn't budge no matter how strong of

a spell she used on

ait

She even created fireballs from thin air and then threw them at this wall, and to her surprise, every time she did that, that wall only seemed to get stronger as if it was absorbing the power from every spell that she used.

The witch couldn't help but gasp at this realization.

Just what kind of spell was this...

Whoever created this wall of fire was too strong, she wasn't a match at all.

Even so she didn't lose hope as she tried even harder to break the wall.

Seeing this, Dax, Alpha Samuel and the others started to feel restless.

They couldn't see what was happening to Micah or Abby, even though they were literally a few tens of feet apart.

Visit to read full content.

Meanwhile, on the rooftop, Abby also tried to use whatever means she

could recall to breach this wall for them to go out of it, but to no avail.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

She just learned she had this kind of ability and still had a long way to go and understand how it actually worked.

Visit to read full content.

Right when she was in a dilemma as

to how to save herself and her mate

from this predicament, the masked

man reappeared before them. The

content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

"Little one!" the King almost shouted as he ran toward her.

Visit to read full content.

Micah quickly pulled her into his arms, wanting to protect her as he faced the masked man, who was now staring at them with this strange look in his eyes. The content is on

! Read the latest

chapter there!

On the other hand, Abby couldn't help but feel she saw this man before.

He seemed so familiar as if she saw him somewhere really important. She raked her brains, trying to refresh her newly unlocked memories as much as she could.

And how shocked she was when she realized where she saw him...

After all, it was on the day her mother died!

Please bookmark site to read latest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

Chapter 67

Abby's memories, even though unlocked by Mirella, still needed to be sorted through by the girl herself.

Moreover, a few memories came in bits and glimpses, it was like getting visions over being triggered by something.

Just like this moment, when she saw this masked man.

The moment she saw him amidst the flames on this building earlier, she froze with this familiar feeling of dread.

Yes, it was dread that gripped her heart when she noticed his presence for the first time.

Because she felt like she saw the same thing in the past, more precisely, in her old but newly unlocked memories.

In that memory as well, there was fire everywhere, including the flames licking a man's clothes and hands.

And there was only one event in her memories that spelled letter to letter with this situation...

The very day her power exploded and fire engulfed their old pack house, killing her mother!

On the other hand, the masked man seemed to have recognized Abby as he started approaching her the moment he reappeared, inside this wall of fire, prompting Micah to turn defensive.

"Long time no see, Abby," the masked man uttered, his voice just a raspy whisper from behind his mask, but the animosity in his tone couldn't be mistaken. "Or should I say the future queen of this kingdom?"

Following his words was a derisive smile.

Abby stiffened as soon as the man uttered her name as the King pulled his mate behind him.

This entire situation felt so wrong to him for some reason.

1/4

Dreame

[¢)

2/4

15:15 Mon, 11 Mar OD

Chapter 67

He was missing something, but he couldn't pinpoint it right now.

53%

35)

Meanwhile, the masked man didn't stop approaching them even after seeing how thePlease bookmark site to read latest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

King looked like he would rip him apart limb to limb if he dared to lay a finger on his mate's hair.

Instead, he calmly removed his mask as he smirked at them both with the same strange look he had in his eyes the moment he reappeared earlier.

Abby gasped at the sight of his face, he was the same man she saw at the fire that caused her mother's death. No wonder she felt his frame looked similar to that person her mother always talked about.

Calpin.

Her mother shouted the same name as soon as she noticed him that day.

"Calpin!" Abby couldn't help but mutter, as each bit of her memory related to him pieced together gradually.

"So, little Abby knows who I am."

Hearing Calpin's words, Micah finally understood why he felt off about him. It seemed Abby's hunch was correct all along.

The bad man in Riley's bedtime stories and the one causing chaos in his kingdom were the same.

Calpin!

On the other hand, Abby couldn't bother with his snide remarks as she had more important things to talk about.

Like why he appeared on that day. It didn't seem like a coincidence at all.

So that was what she asked him.

"Why did you appear on that day?" Abby looked straight into the man's eyes, but she didn't realize how she held her breath unconsciously.

For some reason, she felt like she knew the reason.

D

Dreame

15:15 Mon, 11 Mar OD

Chapter 67

Only Calpin didn't cooperate and answer her questions immediately.

+5

"What do you think?" He smirked as if Abby was asking a question she already had an answer for. "It was because she was a guardian."

Abby was shocked at his words!

Her mother was a guardian?

That was why she always talked about him, to an extent she sounded like she was obsessed with his story?

But then, why was he creating chaos here after all this time? He had been silent for a decade after that day...

At least, she didn't hear anything related to him after that.

Only her question was immediately answered when the man raised his hands that were covered in flames as he took a fighting stance.

“It's time you join her in the afterworld.” Calpin sounded sinister as the fire on his hands raged harder as if he just poured some oil on it. Calpin's initial goal was simple. In his pursuit of more power, he decided to take down the sovereign of this kingdom. As a part of this scheme, he wanted to trap Micah by using those mindless rogues, through whom he successfully captured his prey's attention. However, while he was busy manipulating those rogues to make them dance to his tune and planning his next course of action, he learned that Micah took Abby under his wings. And how surprised he was when he actually found that the girl was his destined mate along with the information that she was Riley's daughter! He thought she had died on that day!

Visit to read full content.

But that cunning bitch, Riley, had apparently sealed her memories and powers, leaving him to think she had died. The content is on ! Read the latest chapter there!

However, he wouldn't make the same mistake again!

After all, Abby, as the daughter and descendant of the guardians, would be counted

3/4

Dreame

[e)

4/4

15:15 Mon, 11 Mar

Chapter 67

as a guardian as well...

He was wondering why he had been finding it was difficult to use some of his powers.

53%

5

Visit to read full content.

It was because there were still descendants in that bloody guardian's family and he needed to end every single one of them to be free from all his shackles. The content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

That was what he was going to do today!

After all, he only intensified the rogue's attacks to lure the King out of the palace.

To his benefit, Abby too rushed here to hand herself over to him.

This was really a great opportunity! He could kill two birds with one stone!

As such, he prepared to attack Abby without wasting any more time.

Visit to read full content.

However, before he could let the fire balls, dancing on his hands at command, fly into the air and strike

the girl, Micah leaped forward and landed on all fours in his The content is on ! Read the latest chapter there!

beast form.

He roared as he dashed toward the dark wizard, successfully distracting him from attacking his mate.

Only Clapin was prepared beyond his wildest imaginations.

With just a flick of his sleeve, he was able to make the black beast freeze in his place!

His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect #Chatper 68 - Read His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect Chatper 68

Chapter 68

Micah didn't hesitate to shift into his beast when he saw that Calpin was actually planning to kill his mate.

He gathered that he was the same man about whom Abby told him from the little interaction that bastard just had with his mate. A dark wizard.

And it wasn't hard to put two and two together and deduce why he did all of this.

He also noticed how the rogue attacks intensified after he brought Abby to the capital.

He should have realized this anomaly, but he made a mistake.

However, Calpin would be completely wrong if he believed he would let him have his way from now on.

He was more than happy to let him experience how it would feel to have his body ripped apart while he was still alive!

Only he didn't expect his opponent to be so strong!

After all, it was a dark wizard they were dealing with.

So as soon as Calpin flicked his sleeve, Micah, who was about to jump onto him in his beast form, froze in his spot, as if his body wasn't in his control anymore.

The King couldn't even move his eyes or fingers, let alone his head or other body parts.

Sweat started to roll down his head, drenching his fur, as the heat from the fire surrounding them started to bother him more and more with him being unable to concentrate on anything else.

However, it didn't end there. The worst was yet to come.

The dark wizard snapped his fingers in the next second, making Micah grunt

in

pain as heat radiated throughout his entire body.

It was as if Calpin lit his body on fire, only this was really unbearable to him as the fire was actually ignited inside his body, burning him from within.

The black beast started to whimper really hard as vapor escaped through his mouth and nose, while his body began to shake uncontrollably.

[0]

r

65%

Chapter 68

On the other hand, Abby couldn't understand what was happening to her mate until he wasn't able to move or say something other than grunting non stop.

"Micah!" She called him and watched in horror as Micah was forced to shift back into his human form, before he collapsed to his knees.

"MICAH!!!" Abby shouted and ran toward her mate when she finally realized what Calpin was doing to Micah.

That dark magic user had cast a dark spell on her mate. The girl heard him grunt even more loudly as if he was asking her not to approach him when he heard her running.

However, how could she stop from going to her mate when he was going through something so horrible like this?

Micah's skin had turned so red, leaving burning scars as it started flaking out in a matter of a few seconds.

She was so freaked out at the sight, she didn't even dare to touch her mate's wounds, which only became bigger and bigger with each second that passed, sending her heart into a shock. Literally.

"Oh my god! What should I do? What should I do?"

Abby's heart jumped in her ribcage violently as she cried in panic.

No matter where she turned, the only thing that greeted her eyes was fire, which looked like it was actually raging even more with the distress that enveloped her heart.

Even though she could tolerate all the heat, it was clear Micah wouldn't be able to last for long if this continued like this.

She immediately tried to use whatever magic she remembered using in her childhood under her mother's supervision after they discovered her powers as a fire magic user.

However, her memories weren't really complete, while she didn't learn too many things a decade back as her mother severely restricted her from using magic too much.

She felt she knew how to make it less painful for Micah, but when she tried to put it into action, no major change could be seen in the King's situation.

Abby started to panic even more when she felt this unsure feeling as to how to

1

[0]

<

Chapter 68

help her suffering mate.

Calpin was too strong while she was still trying to figure out what to do with her powers.

In a nutshell, she had nothing against Calpin to fight him off!

On the one hand, her power wasn't enough to repel the spell this dark wizard cast on Micah.

Visit to read full content.

,Please bookmark site to read lastest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

On the other hand, she couldn't even seek help from the others, being surrounded by this wall of fire and getting separated from the others.

The content is on !

Read the latest chapter there!

At least, if Mirella had been here instead of Abby, that witch could have done something to help Micah.

However, this wasn't the time to dwell on what-ifs.

Whatever had to be done, it had to be done by her. She had to rely on herself! Even though it was hard and beyond impossible, this was the only way now.

So, that was what she did.
She tried every single thing she could remember from her unlocked memories, at least, wanting to free him from that spell.
If she could just undo that spell, it was more than enough for now.
However, it turned out to be a difficult task when she ended continuously regardless of whatever she tried.
up failing
After countless fruitless attempts, Abby decided to attack Calpin instead.
If she couldn't undo the spell, she could at least stop Calpin from attacking Micah.
She was going to fight him with her own fire. She was ready to die if that was what it took to stop him.
Visit to read full content.
The King could read his mate so well.
So when the girl suddenly stopped trying to save himself and turned around to face the dark wizard, he stiffened. The content is on
! Read the latest chapter there!
He wanted to stop her. After all, she never had any battle experience, while their opponent seemed to be a hard nut to crack.
Visit to read full content.
Only the pain radiating through his body was so unbearable, he couldn't do anything to stop Abby from doing something rash and getting hurt. The content is on ! Read the latest chapter there!
)

His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect #Chapter 69 - Read His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect Chapter 69

Chapter 69

55

After trying without any success to undo Calpin's spell on Micah, Abby shifted her focus and decided to attack Calpin instead. First, she threw fireballs at him. She repeated what she did while fighting those rogues earlier, but increased their intensity to her fullest capability. The girl didn't stop or take a breather before she hurled at least fifteen huge fireballs at the dark wizard, not caring about the amount of energy she lost every time she doubled the power behind her attacks. However, her fireballs couldn't do him any harm at all. The man simply deflected them with just a blink of his eyes as he laughed at her messy attempts to take him down. It was even less than a child's play to him. However, the girl didn't back down at all as she tried to make use of the fire surrounding them, wanting to turn his own power against him next.

own/

She was a fire magic user after all, so controlling fire was one of the few things Riley taught her after she discovered her powers all those years ago. Only the actual execution wasn't as simple as a thought springing into her consciousness. Not to mention, she was basically an amateur and whatnot. Compared to Calpin in using spells The fire surrounding them was completely, the dark wizard was blowing life into it with his own breaths. control, as if he The girl felt helpless when she realized nothing was working against the wall of fire, while Calpin seemed too relaxed in the face of this whole situation. She even tried to remember any spell her mother taught her, but her grip over her own skills was too friable while her memory failed to serve her. But she couldn't give up. To be more precise, she couldn't afford to give up. "Damn it!" Abby cursed/under her breath, as her frustration only grew further when the dark magic user didn't budge even after she used everything she knew about her powers. She couldn't even touch a single hair on his head while Micah looked like he couldn't hold on anymore.

55

And the same was proved in the next second as a blood curdling howl!

reverberated from the King's lungs, forcing her to freeze in her spot. Just hearing his howl made sweat roll down her spine as she too whimpered, feeling her heart ache for Micah. The girl didn't even dare to turn around and look at her mate, afraid she would collapse at the sight of him. However, Calpin didn't seem to have the thought of sparing her little heart at all, as he chanted a small incantation while moving his hands in sync. What the hell! Abby didn't even get a chance to process what was happening when she heard another painful roar from Micah, and the sound twisted her heart so much. She could feel his pain through the newly recognized mate bond between them, she felt her ears start ringing. "What do you think about my greeting gift?" Abby heard Calpin talk above the ringing in her ears and at that moment, she felt something snap inside her. Her eyes turned unusually red as the fire covering her hands started to go haywire as it danced wildly, matching the wall of fire surrounding them. In the next moment, the air around them changed as Calpin took a step back at the sight of the flames getting out of his control.

The dark wizard couldn't believe what was happening before his eyes... Abby was having a backlash! Her power exploded out of nowhere, as fire started spreading to every inch of her body. Just like when her power clashed ten years ago, in that old pack house, where her mother sacrificed her own life to save Abby's. Now it was happening again... Her power was having a severe backlash, where fire burst out of her body! The girl looked like @ human sized angry blazing inferno, ready to burn everything in her wake, with all the fire covering her from head to toe. "F uck!" Calpin couldn't help but curse when the fire around them burst even more and began melting everything around them. He quickly chanted a spell, trying to stop the girl's sudden outburst, but only made it worse for himself as the spell backfired and burnt his own hand.

“Mother f ucker!” He cursed seeing his hand turn black in an instant.

Calpin realized the situation had gotten out of his control when he couldn't ward off the effects of Abby's outburst on himself.

So the dark magic user immediately tried to create a protection barrier around him, which proved to be of no use as well.

Not just one, even ten such shields couldn't keep him safe now, because even Abby couldn't control her power anymore.

When her power clashed ten years ago, the fire burned everything around her, too.

It took a lot of effort from Riley, Abby's mother, to stop it from escalating even further, as she wanted to save everyone from it, including Abby, her daughter.

However, the outburst this time seemed even more profound while Calpin couldn't find a way to stop it or even protect himself.

As a last resort, the man tried to contain her power, which required a lot of his effort and attention.

As a result, his grip on Micah loosened and the King started to feel the burning feeling that almost killed him dissipate slowly.

The Hu

Micah dropped to the ground the moment he could control his body again as he coughed hard.

He felt like his guts would spill out of his mouth with the intensity he was coughing.

However, he could care less about himself when he wanted to make sure Abby was fine first.

He frantically lifted his head, still coughing his lungs out, and searched for his mate.

The King's heart dropped when he couldn't see anything but fire around him.

It took him about two times of scouring his eyes around himself to realize what was actually happening.

Both Abby and Calpin were covered from head to toe in fire.

It was as if he was looking at twin flames, only in the sizes of humans.

Visit to read full content.

| » .

What the f uck?!” Micah cursed under his breath, as his throat forgot all about the discomfort it was feeling at the shock he received. His coughing fit ceased in a moment, as he stared at the fire burning his mate, dumbfounded. The content is on ! Read the latest chapter there!

Visit to read full content.

Micah felt his heart drop to his stomach when he realized the fire surrounding his mate looked the same as the one he felt surrounded by during the few minutes he was Please bookmark site to read latest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

a 5

under Clapin's spell. The content is on ! Read the latest

chapter there!

Those few moments were literal hell for him, and he couldn't even imagine what

Abby was going through right now, as the fire engulfed her looked even more vicious, if not excruciating.

away from

He swiftly picked himself up as he wanted to rush to Abby and pull her the dark wizard, but the fire around her was so profound he couldn't even step within a ten foot radius around her.

Realizing this, Micah tried to call her. In hopes, at least, if his voice could reach her, he would be able to know what was happening if she responded.

"ABBY, LITTLE ONE!" The King cried out at the top of his lungs, but there was no response from the girl.

He could see her face which was now devoid of any expression as she stared ahead, nothing being able to capture her attention enough.

It was as if she couldn't see, hear or feel anything around her, and this left the King frightened as he didn't know how to bring her back.

Just as he braved it out and decided to take a step forward, even though he felt like the heat could melt his flesh, he witnessed another burst of power from Abby.

Micah couldn't help but look away at the blinding light that burst out of her frame for a second even though he didn't want to.

Visit to read full content.

By the time he turned back and lifted his head, he could see the wall of fire surrounding them slowly disappear as the structures of the dungeon and the other buildings in this part of the Black Claw pack started to come into his view again. The content is on

! Read the latest chapter there!

But the most unexpected thing was, there was only one flame before his eyes now...

Calpin was nowhere to be seen!

However, Micah couldn't afford to think where he had escaped right now. After all, Abby was still burning in her fire.

"Little one, little one, can you hear me?" He called her again, but the result was still the same.

The fire around her only seemed to intensify with each second that passed while the girl didn't show any sign of life at all. The sight left him terrified.

Then he heard a voice from behind him, only it sounded too distant.

"My King," Mirella shouted, as she could be seen running to him even before the fire could completely dissipate.

Mirella, as a fire magic user, apparently, was able to jump into the fire the moment it wasn't raging as strongly as before.

"Where is Abby?" Mirella asked the King when the man didn't respond to her words even after she was done checking on him for major injuries.

She took a quick look around when Micah wouldn't answer her even after her asking him the same question a thousand times.

And how surprised she was when she finally saw the huge blazing inferno in the middle of this slowly disappearing wall of fire.

His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect #Chatper 70 - Read His Sweet Little Mate by Obticeo Decatect Chatper 70

Chapter 70

Once they were done dealing with most of the rogues, Dex and Alpha Samuel along with a few others came to Mirella's side, intending to rush to the King the minute she had succeeded in taking the fire down.

However, when the time came, only Mirella, who had been trying to take down this wall of fire for the past twenty minutes, could swiftly dash toward the building

Micah and Abby had gone to before they were trapped inside this wall of fire once it started to disintegrate slowly but surely.

As she had been fully focused on this alone, once she found a way to rush in, she didn't hesitate at all to jump into the fire.

Only the others couldn't follow her lead as they had earlier because the fire this time was too intense for them to brave it out.

They could only stand outside the wall of fire, which seemed to give away for a second before it raged again and stood firmly in place.

However, all of them witnessed something even more astonishing for the split second the fire started to disappear and they could finally see what was happening on the rooftop before their eyes.

A blinding white light erupted in the middle of the rune formed by the wall of fire!

But that wasn't the thing that left them slack jawed.

It was the source from which the light erupted. Only it was not just light.

Because

they could all see what burst out of what seemed to be a living person was fire.

And that person was Abby!

Did they just see fire burst out of a living creature? None other than their future queen?

They could clearly see it unlike earlier when the fire erupted all of a sudden trapping just Micah and Abby inside. While the wall of fire earlier blocked everything except sound from earlier, the one that formed later only stopped them from going near to it as they could see and hear everything that was going on inside.

Meaning, the two fires weren't created by the same person...

And the fire this time was definitely their future queen's work!

"What the hell?" Dex couldn't help but curse when he didn't understand what was happening inside while the others had the same bewildered expressions as him.

No one knew Abby was a fire magic user until she started walking through file all of a sudden earlier before helping them in fighting off those rogues, following the lead of Mirella, who seemed to be a fire magic user as well.

In fact, only after seeing Mirella using fire magic to fight off those rogues did they conclude that fire magic was a thing.

Even before they could digest that bit of information, Abby too started to fight off using the same fire magic, leaving them all dumbfounded.

After all, finding one witch was already a very big thing in this part of the continent, while they had just seen two of them at the same time.

Then came this wall of fire, clearly a work of another and third magic user, who was obviously working against them. Simply put, their enemy.

But as if all of these things weren't enough, now, fire was bursting out of Lady Abby, their future queen.

What the hell was happening here?!

As soon as Mirella ran to the top of the building, she could see Micah standing frozen in his place as he stared straight ahead at something, apparently a huge flame, with this shocked expression on his face.

And when she finally learned the reason behind his shock, albeit without his help, her heart trembled at the revelation.

Within moments of her successful invading into this dissipating trap of fire, she witnessed with her own eyes as it restructured into place as a fire even more vicious burst out of Abby.

Holy hell!

Mirella immediately understood what was happening. Abby's power was clashing again. After ten whole years. And within days of practically reawakening her powers. Only the witch didn't know what led to this situation. She had gathered that the earlier wall of fire was because of their enemy. Even though she still didn't have any idea who it was, it was obvious that it was the work of a magic user. If her hunch was correct, it must be a dark magic user. But, she couldn't find anyone other than Micah and Abby on the rooftop of this building right now.

Initially, she thought Abby had somehow taken down the other person, this unknown enemy, and the fire was brought down. But, she only realized how wrong she had been after understanding what was actually going on here right now. Apparently, the fire burst out of Abby dominated the fire around her, crushing it with its uncontrollable power, forcing it to disintegrate in an instant before Abby's own fire took over, prompting another yet even more powerful wall of fire to take shape in its place. The backlash that Abby was now having was so immense, it actually influenced the wall of fire, which was going to disappear earlier, to reform and trap the three of them in again! Mirella couldn't believe her eyes. This was not going to end well, She tried to walk toward the source, that was Abby, but it wasn't an easy feat to walk into the center of a raging volcano, and a volcano was what Abby looked like right now. "My King," the witch called Micah, who was still in a trance as he stared at his mate, who was standing still like a statue with her face completely blank. It seemed the girl couldn't feel the fire licking her skin at all, as she stared ahead like a lifeless mannequin. "Huh?!" Micah only responded with this one word after the witch called him several times, not being able to process what was going on around him.

“We need to stop Abby,” Mirella emphasized each and every word of hers as she looked like she wanted to slap life into the King’s slowly dying hopes. The sovereign was clearly discouraged! It was inevitable. After all, how could a mate bear to watch his other half suffer like this?!

This seemed like a personalized nightmare for him. Like his worst fears materialized into reality, taking away the one thing he had been searching for years. He just got her for a few days and didn’t even get to spend some quality time with her once because of all the meetings about the things related to the kingdom and also those incessant rogue attacks. His mind was filled with all kinds of thoughts as he stared helplessly at the huge flame, that was none other than his burning mate.

He knew how harsh the fire was when Calpin burned him from inside. And he couldn’t imagine what Abby was going through right now. The longer he looked at her, the more regrets he felt. Meanwhile, Mirella could see what was going through the King’s mind right now, but this wasn’t the time to crumble and give into his fears. He needed to pull himself together first, or else, he wouldn’t be able to help Abby.

She knew she was not strong enough to stop the backlash when she couldn’t even nick a scratch on the fire she faced before, while the one created from Abby’s backlash clearly looked twice as powerful and intense. They needed to make a quick call! Or else, the consequences would be unimaginable.

“MICAH!” Mirella couldn’t care less about formalities and courtesies when her main focus was to protect Abby at all costs. “MICAH!” She shouted, as if her life depended on it and right as the King turned to finally look at her, she explained what would happen if they didn’t stop Abby soon. “Her backlash is getting out of control. If we don’t stop her right now, she will burn everything around her,” the witch literally shouted in the King’s face. “Including herself.”

Yes, the fire that burst out of her was nothing like she had ever encountered before.

J

“What?” The King couldn’t help but ask, not because he didn’t understand what she said the first time, but because he couldn't believe his own ears.

And Mirella could understand the meaning behind his question.

“Yes, you heard me right. If this continues, there is a high chance Abby might burn this whole place down,” the witch explained hurriedly.

Not only would the girl burn everything down, she might even lose herself in the process, that was if she did survive this whole ordeal.

She wasn’t only dangerous for the others around her, but also detrimental to herself.

In the worst case scenario, she would be killed as well in the process.

All those years ago, Riley, Abby’s mother, knew what would have happened if she hadn't stopped the power backlash in time.

However, the problem now was; Mirella was clearly not as powerful or daring as Riley to take responsibility for bringing back Abby this time.

She was afraid she might worsen the situation and escalate the inevitable with her messy attempts.

She saw how the wall of fire created by their enemy literally absorbed power from every attack she launched at it earlier.

It literally swallowed all the fireballs she threw at it!

Visit to read full content.

Not to mention, the one this time looked even more scary. As such, she was forced to second guess every action of hers while questioning her own powers and abilities. The content is on ! Read

the latest chapter there!

She explained the same to Micah.

Visit to read full content.

I . .) 5 ShPlease bookmark site to read lastest content. If you want to read please visit to read fastest content.

Which is also why I don't think it is wise for me to use any fire magic on her right now," Mirella ended her long speech, her face twisting with worry as she looked at Abby. The content is on ! Read the latest chapter there!

S » :

After all, it wasn't wise to add more fuel to the fire when it was already beyond control.

On the other hand, the King, who had been listening to her, couldn't help but tighten his fists at the realization that they basically had no way out of this. Mirella couldn't counter the fire while Abby wasn't in a state to control her own fire.

"She wasn't herself right now!

This was what Mirella told him, as the girl couldn't see, hear or feel anything. And the King could also see it clearly.

It was like they were at a dead end!

However, he needed to try until the last second.

Suddenly, Micah got an unprecedented thought. "What if she comes back to her senses?" he asked the witch, who looked at him like he just lost his mind.

"Did you not listen to anything I said for the past ten minutes?"

The question was on the tip of Mirella's tongue when she saw the King brace himself to walk toward the fire in the next second.

Was he planning to shake Abby until she came to her senses?

That would be pure madness!

And that was what she told the King.

"Are you mad? Going in there now is equal to committing suicide!" Mirella tried to reach for Micah who didn't budge at all in the face of her disrespecting attitude.

Visit to read full content.

Any other time, the witch would have been beheaded for her words alone.

But neither of them could care less about such things when they had more important things to concentrate on. The content is on

! Read the latest

chapter there!

That was Abby!

Saving others and herself from Abby took the top priority now.

So the King didn't bother answering Mirella, as just the execution of the idea in his mind weighed heavily on his actions.

On the other hand, Mirella didn't understand what he was trying to do.

"Micah! Let's think of another way," the witch said all kinds of things, but Micah wasn't ready to hear any of it.

He thought long and hard, but couldn't come up with anything that could help Abby except one thing.

What if he marked her?!

All other ways were already closed, and the King could only resort to this method.