

I Created 30

Chapter 30 30: Special Floor

Argon immediately turned his gaze toward the human encampment, there he saw the humans using the returner stone to teleport outside the dungeon.

"These guys immediately run away after experiencing some small setbacks." Argon clicked his tongue, as for them not coming back, he was not worried at all. His dungeon was too fragrant for any creatures, and humans were greedy in nature, so these people will come back even if it will kill them.

"Eh" Argon sight traveled not far from the camp. Shortly after he saw a group of people besieging a second-stage body tempering goblin rider.

It's Arnoux and his group, he also saw five goblin rider corpses lying on the ground.

"These manage to defeat six goblin riders with just seven people." He was a little surprised.

After all, goblin riders were stronger than any humans that entered so far. But these guys manage to defeat the goblin in a 1v1 fight, well not basically a 1v1 fight, but still not far off.

This means these guys' combat power was stronger than your average cultivators.

"Then, if that's the case, then at that time, they shouldn't be too helpless when they were being attacked by the wolves." He was puzzled.

Argon squinted his eyes and focused his vision on Arnoux, the next moment, he saw Arnoux's body become a little red, and his eyes become blood red, not just him, but all of them. They were attacking the poor goblin rider like a crazed person, they become berserk.

"Interesting... This might be because of their bloodline." He thought.

After some time, Argon didn't dwell on it for too long. But asked the system about the reward.

"System, what is a special floor?"

[A special floor is a floor designated for the host, this will always be the last floor. For example, if people manage to clear the first floor, they will be teleported to the special floor. But if you buy a second floor, the special floor will be moved next to the second floor. In conclusion, the special floor is the last defense of the dungeon.]

"Ok, I understand."

Argon then teleported to the special floor, he was excited to see what this floor look like.

In the next moment, Argon found himself inside the throne room, looking around he can't but in awe, he can't express with words, how beautiful the place was.

Four huge dragon pillars were standing on each side, supporting the place.

Argon turned his gaze to the front, in the distance he saw a magnificent dragon throne, in addition, he also saw the heart of the dungeon next to it.

The place was pretty big, five times the size of a football field. Argon then flies toward the throne, the place was pretty big, so it takes him some time to arrive.

Argon excitedly sits on the throne, and in the next moment, a lot of information flooded into his brain. It's a piece of information about where the rooms were located, and other necessities.

Furthermore, if he's sitting on the throne he can perceive what's going on in the dungeon more clearly. He can see Arnoux's group, who were in a daze recollecting what just happened to them.

While he was absorbing the information, suddenly the system gives him another great news.

[Reminder to the host, there is a new subordinate gacha section in the system, the host should look into it right away.]