

Chapter 29: Goodbye Kiss

"Something in you... took my breath away and in response, something in me... allowed myself to be smitten by you."

Sure, for someone like Gabrielle Taylor, she had heard similar sweet words before, but seeing through Kyle's fierce brown eyes, she felt his heartfelt confession. 1

Her heart roared with excitement, just gawking at his athletic face, his symmetrical jawlines, and his beautiful eyes. She could not help but inwardly compliment, 'Gosh, he is just so handsome.'

It was another moment of just staring at each other until she noticed him look down on her lips. 2

Unknowingly, she bit her lower lip as a reaction to the shift of his gaze.

In response, Kyle leaned closer to her.

She took a deep breath right before he sealed her lips. She did not know how it happened, but they were back to kissing each other again!

After a good portion of his lips smothering against hers, and their flavors immensely exchanged!

Their hands were all over their faces and Kyle was nearly laying her down on the bed as he further deepened their kiss. 2

Gabrielle could feel the heat of the moment and the tingling sensation in her abdomen. She gasped to take a breather, inwardly screaming, 'Gawwd!'

She could not resist him!

She did not even realize how she was already lying on the bed with Kyle on top of her, maintaining to intrude into her mouth!

Electricity ran throughout her body, sensing his solid chest pinning her down against the sheets!

For an undetermined time, they were at it, making out like there was no tomorrow.

Her legs became restless, getting entangled with his own and they kept at it, kissing until she felt the hardness on his groin area!

Kyle immediately withdrew after her thigh, essentially had felt of his boner.

Both Gabrielle and Kyle were out of breath! Their lips red as a cherry and numbed from all the nibbling against their rims.

Their faces turned crimson after burning their desires with kisses.

"Woah," Gabrielle fanned herself with her hand, realizing how it was getting too intense.

Kyle, on the other hand, hissed.

Raking his fingers through his hair, he got up and cleared his throat. He then suggested, "I guess... we should call it a night. You have school tomorrow." 2

Gabrielle nodded and faintly replied, "Yes... See you at breakfast."

Something in her absolutely did not want Kyle to leave, but if he stayed, she wasn't sure how she could control herself!

She painfully watched Kyle slowly leave her room, and she practically took a whole minute, just standing by the door after locking it behind her. 3

"Damn," she sighed before saying, "I need a very cold shower." 2

Gabrielle woke up the next day with dark circles around her eyes.

With Kyle running through her head overnight, she honestly was unsure if she had slept at all!

She felt like a teenager again, having her very first crush!

Still, she went on with her day, ordering breakfast for the two of them, brought in his suit, and prepared Kyle's coffee.

When Kyle came out of his room, everything seemed to have turned mute. All she could hear were the footsteps coming toward the kitchen.

She literally had to take several deep breaths, calming her wild heart.

As he approached, everything around her blurred, and only his manly frame was well represented.

Kyle was already bathed, in his suit and smelled of aftershave. She wasn't sure why, but the man looked more handsome than last night!

'Gawwwd! I should have taken a bath!' How in the world did she come out unprepared?

"Good morning, Gaby. How was your sleep?" Kyle asked before the corner of his lips curved up.

"Ummm... Never better!" A total lie escaped her lips and she could tell; Kyle saw through her.

They ate breakfast in silence, not discussing last night's heated make-out session. Kyle only spoke to remind her, "I'll have my lawyers check on your aunt's claims. Within the week, be ready to go to the office so we can arrange a lawsuit against her." 2

"Okay," she nodded. "Thanks, Kyle."

'No kiss? No talk about last night?' She wondered while drinking her coffee. At the thought of it, a needle seemed to have pricked through her heart.

"Gaby, I'll be very busy today. I might even be home very late.

"Will you be okay?" He asked, looking at her with concern.

"Um. Yeah, I have my media project to make, so I'll have my hands full," she replied. Of course, Kyle was a busy man. She should not expect much time from him.

She heard him clear his throat before answering, "Okay."

After Kyle finished his meal, he returned to his room and grabbed his laptop bag, and acted to leave.

As Gabrielle walked him out of the door, Kyle said, "Hank will take you to school. Don't forget to eat lunch and I - I transferred your month's salary to your debit card."

"Already? But it hasn't been a month yet," she answered.

Kyle smiled and lightly pinched her cheek. He said, "Well, you are not bailing out on me, are you?"

Flushing at his touch, she narrowed her eyes and replied, "No, of course not."

"Good." Kyle fixed his coat and held the doorknob. "I'll see you later., Gaby."

Her heart sank!

Gabrielle was at least expecting a goodbye kiss, but that did not happen.

She felt a hand squeezing her heart, watching as Kyle slowly close the door!

Just as she was feeling heartbroken, the door swung open again and Kyle came in, saying, "Sorry, I forgot something."

"What?" Startled, she offered, "Let me get it for you."

Kyle reached for her neck and settled behind it. He said, "This."

He covered her lips and gave her a sweet and gentle kiss, exactly what she was craving for that early morning.

She closed her eyes, relishing that savory kiss!

She had her hand resting against his chest, and as soon as he pulled away, she clenched against his coat, almost not wanting to pull away.

Breathing in front of her exquisite face, Kyle tenderly asked, "Do you want to... work on your project at my office?"

Looking up to him with an embarrassed grin, she nodded in agreement and said, "That would be... great."