

I Kissed A CEO And He Liked It

Chapter 9: Friday

"Gaby, are you crazy? We were together for two years and not once did you agree to live with me, not even stay overnight at my place!" Friday swiftly came, but it did not go by that easily, with Warren still pestering Gabrielle about her plans of moving in with her newfound and supposed boyfriend.

After her class that morning, she went straight to returning her keys to the apartment manager and carried down her luggage and other belongings.

She wound up selling or giving away the very little furniture she had since she did not need them in her new and luxurious accommodation.

Both of them were already at the building lobby with Warren still trying to convince Gabrielle how wrong it was for her to live with a new man!

Seeing Gabrielle make her way to a luxury van, Warren called out to her, "What the hell is this, Gaby? Is your boyfriend some kind of a drug lord?"

When she ignored him, Warren walked up to her and grabbed her ar

Chapter 10: Just The Two Of Us

A day before.

"Kyle, son, Miss Taylor had an encounter with her ex at her apartment building, but she easily brushed him off, telling him that she was going to be living with her... new boyfriend," reported Hank over the phone, the driver that aided Gabrielle move to The Second Diamond Hotel.

Hank, in his early forties, had found a home in the Wright's and had been working for them for ten years.

He considered Kyle as his second son. He was fully aware that Kyle had not had a girlfriend since, and even he had become concerned about the fact that the great CEO of the Wright Diamond Corporation was not interested in women.

Thankfully, Gabrielle Taylor came along, and Hank was happy to support Kyle in his pursuit.

From his office, Kyle held his phone up with pride. He turned to his city view at the side of his space and expressed a smirk. He thought there was no way one Warren Foster can win against him!

"Thank you, Hank, for br

LiLhyz

As for updates, for June, it will be a bit slow. The good thing is, you can have enough time to earn bonus rewards. Not that I want to, but ultimately, it has something to do with my contract and the required number of words for this month versus next month. I hope you understand. One Chapter only today and Sundays will be my regular off. Thank you!

| 63

Chapter 11: Flirting With Me?

Gabrielle had never felt too uneasy in her life. How could she not? She was having breakfast with one of the most powerful men in the city!

The worse part was how the man's physical attributes were completely distracting! She was certain that looking at Kyle was more appetizing than her pan-fried pork chop!

After agreeing to join Kyle for dinner, she started with her breakfast, first munching on apple slices before eating her scrambled eggs.

Most often, she would look down, averting his gaze but would secretly steal glances at his incredibly sexy jaws! Yep! And it wasn't just the jaws. The man's Adam's Apple was calling out to her, the shape of his arms, up to his solid chest; all of them were just tempting her to stare!

'Damn!' She thought silently. 'God sure took time to make him!'

While she resumed her meal and occasionally ogled at Kyle, she heard him ask, "I heard you had trouble with someone yesterday? Hank told me."

LiLhyz

One chapter today!

| 57

Continue to read this book on the APP