

I QUIT MR 195

Chapter 195

Isabella struggled to contain the anger she felt towards Seth. How dare he accuse me of such things! It was he who insisted on hiring Selena in the first place. And now he was turning the tables and claiming that she had planned it all along.

She took a deep breath and turned away from Seth, refusing to even look at him. She forced a fake smile as she looked at the chair across from her.

“You’re overthinking things. Miss Farrell even praised Miss Winston on the plane earlier. That proves she’s suited for this role.”

Seth’s gaze remained fixed as he coldly declared, “Your first task as my personal secretary is to fire Selena when the time is right.”

Isabella couldn’t hide her surprise as she asked, “Has she made a mistake?”

Seth scowled impatiently and replied, “Do you even hear yourself? Has she not made any mistakes? She almost killed me by accidentally adding mango juice to my drink.”

His words left her speechless. While she agreed that Selena was somewhat incompetent, she was still surprised that Seth would fire her without hesitation.

Furthermore...

As her suspicions grew, she couldn't help but glance at him before asking,

“Why not let Human Resources handle it?”

Seth took a deep breath in frustration at her words.

“She's a bit troublesome. I'm putting this in your hands.”

2/6

Isabella felt uneasy. She didn't know how deep Seth's relationship with Selena was, but it seemed more than just professional if he thought firing her would be difficult.

It weighed heavily on her mind. She straightened her posture and reminded herself that she was the President of Nemotors. Her mood soon improved.

“How soon do you want this resolved?”

“Two weeks.”

“Very well. I’ll have it done by then.”

He ignored her and ordered Jordan to start driving.

She remained silent as she walked towards the car and leaned against it.

When he noticed her subtle action, he looked straight ahead without insulting her as he usually would.

The car eventually stopped at the Shaffer Group office. Selena was already waiting at the door with a smile on her face.

But Selena’s smile slowly faded, causing Isabella to sigh.

She had never had to get rid of Seth’s “woman” before. After all, she had been his only partner for the past five years.

“Where to, Miss Symons?”

Jordan’s voice brought her back to reality.

She smiled at him and said, "Please take me home."

"Okay."

As they drove, Isabella pondered her next move.

She was lost in her thoughts and didn't notice anything was wrong until the car stopped.

"This is not my home."

4/6

Jordan stepped out and opened the door for her. "Mr. Shaffer gave you a unit here in the past."

His words jogged her memory. She did own a unit here, but she hadn't had the time to renovate or furnish it yet.

He explained, "With the Shaffer Group suppressing Nemotors' share prices, it's best to move to a place with better security."

Looking around, Isabella had to admit that the environment here was better than she expected, it was a shame her unit wasn't ready to be lived in. She could already imagine the hassle of moving in such a rush.