

I QUIT MR 221

Chapter 221

Symons, what is your opinion on the scandal involving the senior management of Group?"

Hebets were sharp, directly associating Michael with the Shaffer Group, affiliation.

camera, saying, "Marital relationships Shaffer condone such behavior from its employees."

Group planning to fire him?"

her head, looking slightly troubled. "According to Shaffer Group's

>1

that vis

should. But Mr. Zimmer has been an employee and shareholder at for a decade. As the president dispatched by the Shaffer

Unneeded

ectors to decide his fated his fate.”

xchanged glances, clearly unslatsiyahsatisfied with her explanation.

nned

A Whopping Eight Hundred And Ninety Mi

“Everyone knows that Nemotors is a renowned national brand. Although it has been poorly managed in recent years, it still holds a special place in many people’s hearts.

2/6

Shaffer Group’s acquisition of Nemotors under such special circumstances was out of respect for the local brand. We will do our best to implement any plan that benefits

Nemotors’ development.”

“I am merely Mr. Shaffer’s former secretary, and my abilities are limited, but I will not shirk my responsibilities. I will do my utmost to lead Nemotors in a better direction.”

Her voice was calm, her words sincere. She quickly distanced Michael from Shaffer

Group and also separated the Zimmers from Nemotors, subtly hinting to the public that Nemotors was no longer the company that had deceived its consumers.

“Nemotors has a history of deceiving consumers, and the former chairman’s family is currently under investigation. What is your take on this?”

Isabella took a deep breath. She had anticipated this question and had already planned her response.

She straightened her back, her expression regretful. “This issue has been troubling me for a while. To show the sincerity of the new Nemotors, we have decided to compensate everyone in the most direct way!”

The room fell silent, the flash of cameras incessant.

“Nemotors will recall all faulty vehicles sold previously and compensate each one until Nemotors goes bankrupt.”

The room erupted in surprise, leaving the reporters speechless.

“Did you get approval from Shaffer Group’s headquarters before making this decision?”

Isabella replied, “As the highest manager of Nemotors, I have the authority to make this decision.”

“Is this a PR tactic to appease the public, while in reality, you have already transferred the main assets of Nemotors?”

Isabella said, “You can check Nemotors’ financial annual report online. It clearly shows that Nemotors’ net assets amount to eight hundred and ninety million.’

Her words were firm, her expression serious, leaving the reporters at the front speechless.

“Shaffer Group just spent a lot of money acquiring Nemotors, and now you are spending so lavishly. Aren’t you afraid of being impeached by the headquarters?”

Isabella smiled, unfazed. “Honest business and down-to-earth work have always been Shaffer Group’s business principles. Now that Nemotors is under the Shaffer Group, it must abide by these principles.”

The reporters were stunned, speechless. Isabella’s extravagant display of wealth, as if channeling Seth, left them no room for criticism.

Inside the venue, the guests watched the interview on the big screen, whispering among themselves and occasionally glancing at Seth.

Isabella had casually thrown out over 150 million. If it were a typical boss, they would probably be infuriated.