

I QUIT MR 238

Chapter 238

The press conference for the Shaffer Group began promptly at half past six in the evening, and Isabella arrived on time. As soon as she appeared on camera, the media went into a frenzy, flashing their lights at her belly.

“Miss Symons, since you’re here in person, are you planning to confirm your pregnancy?”

“What compensation does Mr. Shaffer plan to offer Miss Winston, who tried to jump into the river?”

“Could you please provide an answer?”

The reporters crowded the venue and bombarded her with chaotic questions, making it.

Isabella, with her protruding belly, took a seat at the conference table. She exaggerated her movements by holding her lower back, seemingly trying to showcase her belly.

Since the press conference was being broadcast live, her exaggerated behavior quickly drew criticism from viewers.

“I’m sure everyone is curious about the story between Mr. Shaffer and me, right?”

Isabella continued to provoke and avoid answering the questions. Instead, she appeared eager to share her happy life.

The media was dumbfounded, and the reporters standing in front nearly dropped their microphones. They looked at each other, unsure of how to proceed.

Just then, someone cleverly asked, “When did you and Mr. Shaffer start dating?”

Isabella, holding her chin and stroking her belly, replied, “Three years ago, Mr. Shaffer confessed his love to me in Madosa.”

The audience erupted in uproar.

“What about Miss Winston-”

’s pregnant,

Isabella interrupted, and the child is Mr. Shaffer’s.”

Isabella didn't seem to care. Facing the camera, she continued to share. "Mr. Shaffer me very well. He confessed his love to me in Madosa and then asked me to

She sighed dramatically, seemingly pretentious. "But I feel bad for him, so I insisted on working for two more years before resigning.

The reporters fell silent.

Isabella then addressed the camera, "By the way, Mr. Shaffer plans to marry me, and he won't ask for a prenuptial agreement."

This statement was so shocking that it left the entire audience stunned. The reporters once again rushed forward, trying to push their microphones towards her.

"When will you and Mr. Shaffer get married?"

"What will happen to Miss Winston's child after you and Mr. Shaffer tie the knot?"

“Has the Shaffer Family approved the marriage?”

Isabella waved her hand dismissively. “I don’t know about those.”

The reporters were confused. “You don’t know? Then, how can you be so sure about getting married?”

Isabella shrugged. “I haven’t thought that far ahead, so I don’t know.”

The reporters were flabbergasted.

She sighed, reached down, lifted her clothes, and took out the “baby” that had been hidden under her clothes.

The entire audience was stunned.

The screen seemed to have frozen instantly, and the trolls were left speechless.

Isabella clicked her tongue, threw the artificial belly on the table, and smiled at the camera. “As you can see, I was just pretending to be ‘pregnant.’”

The reporters regained their senses, and the live broadcast was instantly flooded with comments.

“Miss Symons, what are you doing all this for?”

Isabella straightened up with a serious face. A photo might not carry any meaning, but a story revolving around the photo can be fabricated. You should know that as media professionals.”

A reporter remained skeptical. “But you did admit that Miss Winston is pregnant.”

Isabella responded coldly, “Yes, I did say that, but I also read it on the internet.”

She stood up, took the artificial belly, and went down before speaking to the came

“As long as someone spreads rumors, anyone can claim to be pregnant with Seth Shaffer’s child. Fortunately, no one has discovered this business opportunity over the years. Otherwise, Shaffer Group would be bankrupt.”

“But Miss Winston is indeed pregnant.”

Isabella replied, “Then, we’ll wait until she gives birth. Running a DNA test should suffice by then.”

The reporters were left speechless by her statement.

“We have sufficient evidence at Shaffer Group to prove Mr. Shaffer’s innocence. We provided certain individuals with an opportunity, but we did not anticipate them treating their lives as inconsequential. As a result, we will proceed with the appropriate legal procedures.”

Isabella returned to her seat and emphasized each word she spoke. “Thank you all for attending tonight. Shaffer Group’s official website will release video materials later. We hope that the intensity of your reporting can match the speed of the rumor mill.”

Afterwards, she bowed deeply to the reporters.

On camera, she appeared graceful as she reentered the car under the protection of her bodyguards and departed amidst the reporters’ inquiries.

In the hospital room, Seth stared icily at the screen. His expression remained unchanged despite the shift in public opinion. He was still upset about the words

Isabella had uttered upon her departure.

Jordan noticed his expression and cleared his throat. “The stock price should rise tomorrow.”

Seth did not respond. He took a deep breath and suddenly chuckled, "What an audacious woman. She regards raising someone else's child as a virtue!"

Jordan was puzzled by his remark.
