

I QUIT MR 323

Chapter 323

As soon as Isabella finished speaking, the crowd around her began to jeer.

You could have grabbed the child. If you both sank, at least it would buy some time,

“Don’t you understand the concept of self-sacrifice?”

“You’re so beautiful, but why are your thoughts so strange?”

Isabella felt a chill run through her body and chose to remain silent. These people criticized her without daring to jump into the water to save the child. She had a mother to take care of, so sacrificing herself was not an option.

Before the murmurs around her had subsided, the village doctor suddenly shouted,

‘He’s saved!’

‘Don’t waste time; we need to get the child to the hospital! Time waits for no one!’ the village doctor shouted.

“Ride a motorcycle to the village entrance and call an ambulance!” someone suggested.

The village doctor's expression turned serious. "I'm afraid we don't have that much time."

"She has a plane!"

Someone pointed directly at Isabella. "I saw it with my own eyes a few nights ago. It added eight in front of their courtyard."

Isabella was shocked. She didn't expect the attention to be redirected toward her before she could say anything, the child's mother once again fell to her knees, begging, "Miss, please save my child. Call for the plane."

Isabella was speechless. These people thought a helicopter could land anywhere.

There were trees all around, so landing a plane would be a dangerous task.

She knew explaining was futile, so she didn't bother. "Ma'am, let me make a call..."

"Why do you need to ask? Can't you rich people handle such a small matter?" the troublemaker with blond hair spoke again.

Isabella clenched her teeth, unable to bear it any longer, and stood up. Before she could say anything, the blond troublemaker was kicked in the leg and fell onto a large rock.

“How I use my plane is none of your business.” Seth suddenly appeared, his face as cold as ice. When his gaze fell upon Isabella, it turned even colder. His extraordinary the blond troublemaker, having been beaten, crawled away, cursing under his breath.

Seth had no time to deal with such people. He walked over and picked up Isabella.

Seeing this, the child's mother clung to his leg. “Please save my child. You can't just stand by and do nothing.”

Isabella, who had been disgusted by the villagers' behavior, couldn't bear it when she saw the child. She tugged at Seth's collar. “Is it difficult for the plane to land here?”

Seth heard the plea in her voice and looked down at the woman at his feet. "Move the child to the wheat field."

Upon hearing this, the woman repeatedly kowtowed and hurriedly crawled back to the child. There were sighs all around. Some were still watching Isabella and Seth, but most people were helping to move the child.

sabella thought of her previous experience and forced a smile. "I wasn't much help."

As she moved her lips, Seth immediately noticed the bruise on her face. His brows furrowed instantly, and he lifted her chin, his voice deepening as he said, "Who gave you the bruise on your face?"
