

I QUIT MR 324

Chapter 324

Isabella didn't expect Seth to feel sorry for her. She guessed he couldn't bear to see his child being beaten. She carefully turned her face away. "Forget it; it's normal for a parent to lose her mind when her child is in such a state."

Seth's expression was gloomy. He glanced towards the crowd, seemingly lost in thought.

Isabella was afraid that he might change his mind and refuse to help, so she couldn't tug at his sleeve. "The child is innocent, and it's difficult to explain such things. If we don't help, when the news gets out, it will definitely make the headlines."

Seth remained silent, turning his head to quietly look at the woman in front of him. She was drenched, wearing an old man's jacket, her hair sticking to her cheeks, looking very made her tired but also made Seth suffer.

"You're making me tired." The man's cool voice sounded above her head.

Isabella reacted, feeling a bit embarrassed. "In wet..

hey fell silent. Isabella kept her head down, her body tense throughout, her hands that were wrapped around Seth’s neck were quietly clenched together, her ten fingers tangled. The distance from the reservoir to the courtyard was not short. Seth walked neither fast nor slow, making the time seem endless.

Isabella felt that the clothes on her back were almost dry. She was so uncomfortable that she wanted to die. She even wanted to grit her teeth and ask Seth to put her down.

She would crawl back by herself.

when the words reached her lips, she didn’t have the courage. When tached the courtyard, Seth put her down by the bed.

Vant to take a bath?” Seth asked.

sabella swallowed, feeling a bit uncertain. "The water..."

Seth gave her a glance, then turned and walked out to the kitchen.

Isabella heard the sound of water boiling in the kitchen, her heart pounding. She couldn't help but wonder what good deeds she had done in the past two days to deserve Seth boiling bath water for her.

What a sin. If she took this bath, she would probably lose three to five years of her life.

She sat on the edge of the bed as if on pins and needles. When Seth brought the water in, she quickly straightened up. "I can handle the rest myself."

She was joking. If she continued to be served like this, she might die on the spot.

Seth responded indifferently and casually put down the hot water.

Isabella watched him close the door and leave, then patted her chest to calm herself down. She quickly undressed and took a bath, not daring to delay. When she came out of the bath, Seth was standing at the door on the phone. From Isabella's angle, she could only see half of his face, but it wasn't hard to notice that Seth's face didn't look good.

“Stop playing dumb. You know who you came back for.” Seth’s voice drifted in.

Isabella rarely heard him talk to people like this, so she couldn’t help but prick up her ears.
