Chapter 491 You're Too Childish!

Chapter 491

It turns out that no matter how good some people look, just a few words can turn die-hard fans into haters.

As soon as Seth walked in, the little girl instantly took a liking to him. But in no time, they became arch-enemies.

78%

After a long stalemate, the owner finally brought up the Basque Burnt Cheesecake and Chocolate Mousse.

“These are the new limited edition products for Valentine’s Day. You two can take them away.”

The owner carried the little girl. He said with a hint of apology, “It’s getting late.”

The implication was clear. It was time for them to leave.

Seth was still arguing with the little girl.

Isabella took the initiative to get the takeaway box and helped the owner pack it up.

The clock in the street struck. It was almost midnight.

78%

Carrying the cake, Isabella turned around, still hearing Seth threatening the little girl, saying that she would definitely wet the bed tonight.

The little girl was so angry that she stomped her foot, pointed at Seth, and finally managed to say a word.

“Lonely loser!”

Isabella couldn't help but burst into laughter. Seeing that Seth was about to retort, she quickly thanked the owner and then pulled Seth out.

The little girl was very smart. Seeing Seth's expression, she knew she had hit the mark and kept shouting at the door.

With the fairy tale music playing in the street and the little girl shouting behind them,

Isabella, pulling Seth, found the situation quite ridiculous.

It took a lot of effort to push Seth into the car and he actually wanted to get out again.

“Mr. Shaffer, she’s only six years old.”

Seth gave her a glare.

So what if she’s six? Can she say whatever she wants without taking responsibility

Isabella understood his meaning, pouted, and got in the car from the other side.

What’s there to glare at? The little girl didn’t say anything wrong.

“Do you want some?”

“No...”

The word of refusal was about to slip out subconsciously when he suddenly looked up

He realized that since coming back from Bleaktown, this was the first time he had interacted with Isabella like this.

He grunted and casually picked a box.

Isabella smiled and sat next to him with the other box.

The car drove all the way to Isabella's apartment.

Isabella got out of the car and stood by the door with a pile of things, thanking him

Seth didn't look at her, leaning his face against the window.

They had nothing to say to each other.

Isabella pursed her lips, took a step back, and closed the door with her foot.

Through the tinted film, she couldn't see him clearly.

She carried her things into the building, but the car behind her didn't start.

On the other end of the phone, Seth fell into silence.

She laughed for a while before finally stopping.

She politely bid him goodnight, but there was still no response from the other side.

After a long pause, he finally replied, "Goodnight."

He hung up the phone.

Isabella felt a sense of relief.

She went back to her room, grabbed her clothes, and took a shower.

In the car, Seth sat in the back seat, a piece of cake still on the foldable table next to him.

His gaze had been fixed on the front the whole time, and there was still a hint of surprise in his eyes.

After a while, his gaze shifted to the cake.

For some inexplicable reason, he scooped a piece into his mouth.

Isabella, who had been suffering from insomnia for several days, finally had a restful

She woke up early, feeling refreshed.

As soon as she arrived at the company, Phoebe asked if something good had "Absolutely. I saved a lot of money on endorsement fees."

Isabella took off her coat and immediately instructed Phoebe to urge the adverti department to arrange the venue and quickly sign a contract with Briana.

Phoebe personally led the team but returned dejected.

"Miss Symons, they said they couldn't sign."

As she was about to park in the parking lot, she noticed a car leaving with Briana inside.

Jessica, the woman in the passenger seat, clearly saw her but pretended not to,

Isabella was furious. She quickly turned around and chased after them without Isabella entered the elevator, contemplating Willy’s warning, and found it amusing.

It wasn’t that she was afraid of Willy, but she remembered the favor Gordon had done

He would never marry such a woman.

Steven scoffed. "Is he even worth being pursued by Willy?"

Isabella replied, "If you're capable, make her stop thinking about him.

Isabella asked, "If he agrees to marry Willy on the spot, can the matter be resolved?"

Steven remained silent.

The original plan was to detain these two and let Willy come to the rescue, and both

"Mr. Shaffer, about Gordon..."

"If you keep talking, I'll send you back."

Forget it. Steven wouldn't really kill Gordon anyway.

Seth walked quickly, and she had to run to keep up with him.

When they reached the basement, she wanted to find her car, but Seth didn't seem to want to let her go.

Just as she was about to speak, there was a noise behind her.

"Seth! Let go of her!"

Gordon?

Isabella was surprised. She didn't expect Steven to let him go.

She turned around, but before she could speak, she made eye contact with Gord who was rushing toward Seth's back, ready to throw a punch.

Seth was about to open the door and push Isabella inside, completely unaware of Gordon's attack.

Gordon's punch came so fast that isabella didn't even see it clearly.

Isabella stood in front of Seth, unable to see where Gordon had hit him, but she clearly heard Seth grunt in pain.

"Miss Symons, he hit Mr. Shaffer's left arm!" Jordan said anxiously.

Isabella's expression instantly changed. She looked up at Seth's face, which had quickly lost its color.

Gordon was pulled away, still cursing and swearing, as if someone had kicked him in the head.

Isabella glanced back at him, and Seth, who was beside her, bent over slightly.

The man who had been imposing just moments ago was now leaning on the roof of the car with one hand, his jaw tightly clenched, obviously in pain.

Isabella remembered the last time at the shooting range when Yaris had just slapped Seth's arm, and there was so much blood. Gordon had just punched with all his might.

The consequences were imaginable.

"Seth!

ww are you!

The man looked up, glanced at her, and pulled his right hand out of hers with a stern face.

Isabella knew he was upset. Without thinking too much, she pushed him into the car, then told Jordan to go to the Wells' private hospital.

Outside the car, Gordon was still causing a commotion, causing Isabella's head to almost explode.

"Drive!"

The driver didn't dare to delay, and the car quickly sped up.

Isabella subconsciously wanted to support Seth, but when she looked up, she saw his lips tightly pressed together. She couldn't help but withdraw her hand.

When they arrived at the hospital, the car drove directly into the courtyard. Like the last time Natasha was injured, they went to a non-public area.

Seth was sent in for examination, and Isabella could only wait outside.

"Miss Symons, don't think too much about it. Mr. Shaffer didn't intentionally send someone to follow you. It's just that you went to Belle Square, and our people became more vigilant," Jordan explained.

Isabella didn't care about these things at all now. Seth had come to save her specifically. If she still cared about these things, she would be too pretentious.

“The Chavez Family is involved in shady activities. Mr. Shaffer just wants to remind you not to get involved with the affairs of the Dunkstein Family and the Chavez Family,”

Jordan added.

Isabella was silent. She wanted to hit herself now.

She had only met Willy twice but believed his words and almost got herself into trouble.

She had also caused Seth to be injured twice,

Currently, Isabella was restless as she paced back and forth in the corridor.

Inside the examination room, the doctor was also familiar. Before he touched Seth, Seth raised his hand.

“There's no need.”

The doctor blinked, understanding instantly. He sat back in his chair, cleared his throat, and asked, “How do you think I should write it?”

Seth opened his eyes and countered, “Do I need to spell it out for you?”

The doctor raised an eyebrow. "If I write it too seriously, it might cause panic among the family members. I'm afraid you'll feel bad."

Seth pursed his lips, unable to help but look toward the door. Stupid woman...

Expecting her to feel bad is like expecting the sky to be green.

"In that case... I'll improvise?"

"Whatever."

The doctor pushed his glasses and began to create a medical report.

A moment later, the doctor came out with the medical report. As soon as the door opened, he bumped into Isabella, who was leaning against the door.

Isabella quickly stepped back, trying to take a look inside, but the doctor closed the door.

Doctor, how is he?"

The doctor sighed. "The situation is not very optimistic."

Jordan was puzzled.

Isabella's breath hitched as she asked, "Did the wound reopen?"

The doctor shook his head. "You know, this is a wound caused by a wooden warehouse. A second injury is a serious problem."

Isabella asked anxiously, "Will there be any permanent damage?"

The doctor hesitated for a moment before responding, "It's unlikely, but if not properly treated, there may be complications."

"Can I go in and see him?" Isabella asked, her emotions complicated.

When Isabella entered the room, a profound silence fell upon it.

Seth immediately furrowed his brows.

Startled, Isabella quickly retreated with her phone.

Just as she was about to end the call, she noticed it was Gordon calling.

Isabella frowned. “You hit his back?”

“Nonsense! D*mn it! Is he pretending? I didn’t put much strength into it, so how could I

Isabella glanced back, somewhat incredulous.

She had seen Seth’s face, which indeed turned pale immediately.

And considering Seth’s temperament, it was surprising that he didn’t turn around and teach Gordon a lesson, let alone pretend to be in pain.

“Never mind, let’s not discuss it now. Find a hotel to rest first. I’ll come to you later.”

Gordon continued shouting, insisting on confronting Seth.

Isabella forcefully ended the call and turned to push open Seth’s door once more.

As she looked inside, she met Seth's dark eyes.

His previously neatly combed hair had become disheveled, softly hanging down and

His gaze was more profound than intimidating.

Isabella believed that Gordon must not have seen clearly. He had consumed so much Isabella knew he was upset and didn't mind his tone. "Mr. Shaffer, Gordon was intoxicated. I apologize on his behalf."

"On what grounds are you apologizing? Who are you to him?" The man's cold gaze swept over her.

At that point, Isabella grew slightly anxious and turned to look at Seth.
“The door...

Seth opened his eyes slightly, glanced at her, then lay back down, showing no intention of addressing the issue.

Isabella had no choice but to call Jordan, but before doing so, she noticed

After a while, Seth seemed genuinely tired. He turned his body, facing

Isabella glanced at him from time to time as she sat there for several hours.

When night fell, the nurse finally came to change the medicine. Isabella took the opportunity to get some fresh air.

After sitting in the corridor for a while, she returned to find the nurse had finished changing the medicine, but the room no longer had the familiar scent of blood and alcohol.

Isabella sat down, her mind filled with doubts after recalling what Gordon had said.

She waited a little longer, and Seth seemed to have genuinely fallen asleep.

Once someone's curiosity was aroused, they would not rest until the truth was revealed.

Isabella pondered and kept glancing at Seth. Eventually, she couldn't control herself and tiptoed over to the bedside.

She half-squatted by the bed and whispered, Mr. Shaffer?"

There was no response.

He was sound asleep.

Isabella steadied herself, her gaze falling on the man's arm resting beside his body.

Isabella raised her hand, carefully reaching toward the button.

Her mind was still struggling. One voice told her not to take this risk, that if Seth was pretending, knowing wouldn't make a difference. Another voice screamed in madness, insisting she couldn't be deceived.

Her body moved faster than her mind. Before she made up her mind, she had already unbuttoned his shirt.

She just needed to carefully roll it up.

She did it bit by bit.

She held her breath, her body tense.

Finally, she reached the edge of the bandage.

She closed her eyes, forced a complicated smile, and turned to look at Seth.

Seth shifted his body, his gaze lazy as he murmured, "The nurses will do that."
