Chapter 521 Saved

Chapter 521

“After all these years, I never realized how handsome Mr. Shaffer is.

“If I’m going to marry in the future, I want to marry a man like Mr. Shaffer.”

Isabella was dizzy and faintly heard Bloom talking. She squinted and saw someone beside her.

it

Courtney stuffed fruit into her mouth and rolled her eyes. “Then why don’t you want to marry Seth?”

Bloom clicked her tongue and corrected it with a serious expression. “What are you talking about? Mr. Shaffer already has Isabella.”

Isabella was speechless.

What is all this nonsense?

She opened her mouth and made a sound.

Courtney noticed her movement and quickly called someone in.

“It’s okay. Don’t worry. The doctor said you’re just a bit dehydrated. Rest for a few hours,

and you’ll be fine.”

Natasha came in with water, and Courtney helped her up.

Isabella took a sip of water and breathed a sigh of relief. “What are you all doing here?”

“You’re wondering where Seth went, right?” Courtney teased.

Isabella smirked. It was indeed strange. She remembered being at the casino entrance before passing out.

“Dariel got into some dirty business. They’re dealing with it, probably almost cleaned up.” Natasha explained.

Isabella leaned against the head of the bed. “Who are those people?”

39%

“It is an outsourced casino. They always play these tricks, finding suitable goods at the bottom and transporting them directly.” Courtney said.

Isabella shook her head. “But they’re not afraid of Seth at all.”

“It’s not that they’re not afraid. They’re just out of their minds.” Natasha shrugged and asked, “Did you have a secret meeting with Seth on the deck last night?”

Isabella was drinking water when she suddenly choked and coughed, wide-eyed.

Courtney patted her back and said with a smile, “The people at the casino saw it and thought Seth was pursuing you. They wanted to play the hero to save the beauty for him but made a fool of themselves, and Seth took all the credit.”

Isabella remembered the situation at the time and recalled the look Steven gave her before she entered the closet. He must have known about these tricks but chose not to say anything.

“What about Steven?”

“Do you still care about him?” Courtney raised an eyebrow and said, “He’s not in cahoots with the people at the casino, so it's not easy to confront him directly. He's probably upstairs drinking now.”

Isabella felt frustrated, and her disgust for this person rose rapidly.

After chatting, Courtney and Bloom went upstairs, probably to deal with some matters.

Natasha stayed with Isabella, whispering to each other.

The curtains in the room were closed, making it feel like nighttime.

Natasha lay down with Isabella, their heads close together.

“Bella, Seth loves you,” Natasha suddenly said.

“When you were in trouble, he went upstairs to join the gambling game first and then sent Jordan to clean up the people lurking in the shadows at the casino. He took care of all the danger with a two-pronged approach.”

Natasha rested her hands behind her head, sighing, “Do you know what happened to the casino owner in the end?”

Isabella turned her head. “Seriously injured?”

Natasha laughed and leaned in, whispering a few words in Isabella’s ear.

Many people had mentioned to Isabella that Seth had feelings for her, and she also had a strong suspicion.

The only issue was that Seth had not expressed his feelings directly.

Isabella lay on the bed, pondering what she would do if Seth confessed his feelings.

Natasha stayed with her for an hour before being called upstairs by someone.

Simon had something in his hand and smiled, “I missed the ship yesterday due to some Isabella was deeply appreciative and thanked him profusely.

Simon presented her with a box of desserts, a renowned old brand from Imperia.

“Rest well. If you’re feeling better, come find us to hang out.”

Simon was always considerate, and Isabella conversed with him at the door without any pressure.

After he left, she took the items back to her room. Upon opening the box, a delightful aroma wafted out.

She indulged in the treats, and her energy gradually returned.

After resting for a while, she felt it was only suitable to go upstairs and greet Seth.

Otherwise, it would be presumptuous.

As she stepped out of the door and approached the elevator, she spotted Simon emerging from the stairwell.

“Mr. Gates?”

As the words left her mouth, she noticed someone standing behind Simon.

Indeed, as she spoke, Simon appeared to tense up and turned to face her with the person behind him.

“Are you heading upstairs?”

Isabella nodded and glanced past him.

Isabella cleared her throat. “I’m looking for Seth Shaffer.”

Bloom hesitated. “Don’t you want to come in and talk?”

Isabella shook her head. “No.”

It was crowded inside, and it might not be safer than outside.

Bloom shouted, “Mr. Shaffer, Isabella wants to speak with you privately!”

Isabella was curious.

Before long, Seth emerged, accompanied by a chorus of cheers from behind.

Upon reaching the door, Isabella impatiently grabbed him and pulled him outside.

Immediately, cheers filled the air.

Seth lifted his chin, attempting to uphold his aloof demeanor as best as possible.
