

I Regained My Memories and Became Rich After Getting Divorced - Chapter 5

Not to mention that the house's design was not the type which Gu Dai liked, it was even extremely simple.

Did the boss ever live like this before?

The door of the changing room was pulled open, making a slight noise.

When Gu Dai came out again, she was completely transformed. She went from being plain to stunning, and she was no longer the bullied little girl but the flamboyant and unrestrained Miss Gu!

Gu Dai was naturally fair-skinned, and with a little makeup, she looked like fine white jade. Her pupils were pitch-black, but when they moved, they were extremely charming and seductive. From a closer examination, her upturned eyes seemed to contain a hint of aloofness.

Wearing a red long dress, Gu Dai's curvaceous figure was displayed to the fullest. She wore 10-centimeter diamond-encrusted stiletto heels, elegant and beautiful.

Chu Min had wiped the tears from the corners of his eyes and spoke with loyalty and respect, "Welcome back, Boss!"

He was the youngest son of the Chu family, well-loved and of noble status, but he, Chu Min, was also the most loyal subordinate of Miss Gu Dai.

Perhaps the whole world would betray Gu Dai, but he would always follow her, and even if it took all his strength, he would eliminate those who betrayed her one by one!

"Let's go to the Gu Group. There must have been a lot of interesting things that happened in the past three years, waiting for me to take care of one by one!" Gu Dai's mouth raised a corner, revealing a unrestrained smile.

Those who knew Gu Dai well understood that the happier she smiled, the more dangerous she was.

Gu Dai had lost her memory for the past three years and lost contact with many people. Now that she was back, it was time to get in touch with them.

When Chu Min came, he also brought her phone from three years ago. Gu Dai opened the contact list and looked at these strange yet familiar names, feeling a little confused. Finally, she chose one person, her finger lightly tapped on it before she dialed the number.

“Miss Gu, is it really you? After three years, you finally contacted me!” Zhang Zheng exclaimed, and the exclamation that was accompanied by the sound of a bottle crashing to the ground.

Gu Dai chuckled and said, “Long time no see, the-best-agent-in-the-business, Zhang Zheng.”

“Miss Gu, long time no see! You, you, I...” Zhang Zheng, who was already in his thirties, well on his way to his forties, choked up and didn’t know what to say. He almost shed tears.

After a few dozen seconds, he finally calmed down and said, “Miss Gu, don’t torment me. Without your help back then, where would I, Zhang Zheng, be today?”

Zhang Zheng became famous when he was young and became a sought-after agent in the circle. However, due to his arrogance, he offended some powerful people. Eventually, with Gu Dai’s help, he survived the danger of being banned.

With Gu Dai’s help, Zhang Zheng had played to the best of his abilities and became one of the best agents in the country in recent years.

“How’s the matter I asked you to handle back then?” Gu Dai asked Zhang Zheng on the other end of the phone.
