Chapter 36

Winner Electronics.

Susan arrived at the office half an hour early.

Unexpectedly, the rest of the company had already arrived.

At the sight of Susan, the interviewer said with a smile, "Ms. Miller, we are moving to a new place today. Please wait a moment. We'll set off right away."

It was clarified on the contract. Without any doubts, Susan just nodded in response.

After a while, no one was absent.

The company booked a few carts and prepared to go to a new location.

Susan got into the car with her colleagues.

In the car, she casually picked a seat and sat down.

Not long after, a cute girl with a round face walked over and smiled at Susan, "Is anyone here?" "No one," Answered Susan quickly.

Thereupon, the girl sat down.

She glanced at Susan curiously, "You're the newcomer to our department, right? Susan Miller?" "Yes." Susan smiled amiably.

"Wow." The girl said happily, "After your participation, I'm not the only girl in our department anymore. It is a boy's department. I can't find a girl who can talk about makeup! Now, you come. I finally have a friend."

"Hey, Susan Miller. No, no, I'll call you Susan. It seems more intimate." The girl took Susan's hand directly.

Susan was a little uncomfortable with her sudden enthusiasm, but after all, as a colleague, she responded her with a gentle smile,

Chapter 36

“My name is Roy Kelin.” The woman introduced herself, “Just call me Roy.”

“Roy.” Replied Susan quickly.

Roy suddenly reached out to touch Susan’s face.

Susan froze for a moment and became even more uncomfortable.

She didn’t reject passionate people, but Roy was too ebullient.

“Susan, your skin is so good.” Roy smiled with a squint, “You must spend a lot of time on skin care, right?” “Not really.” Susan said.

“Oh, don’t be shy. I heard that those girls like you who take an hour or two to take care of your skin every day. Unlike me, I wash my face simply before going out every day.”

It seemed that Roy spoke playfully, but Susan always felt that there was something harsh.

“Not for an hour or two.” Susan pursed her lips and answered casually.

“Okay. I understand.” Joy blinked at Susan as if she knew everything.

Susan was a little disgruntled with a scowl.

Roy, however, didn’t seem to catch Susan’s feeling. Instead, she leaned closer and sniffed at Susan. Her sudden behavior made Susan stiff.

Not perceiving that seemingly, Roy still said with a smile, “Susan, you have a scent. Did you wear perfume? I hear that perfume is expensive. Yours should be sent by a man, right?”

Roy winked at Susan meanwhile.

At this time, Susan could be certain.

She didn’t like this new colleague at all.

She coldly responded, “No perfume. It’s just the smell of laundry detergent.” Chapter 36

“Gee, how can it be so—fragrant? Don't lie to me.” Roy smiled and spoke, “Besides, it's normal for someone to give you perfume because you're so good-looking. Unlike me, I only care about work, and I'm still single now. But I don't regret it. You are pretty, so naturally you can survive with your appearance. But I am still more willing to rely on my own ability to make a living.”

What a load of balderdash! Susan stood up and calmly said with a cold face, “Excuse me, please. I'll sit in the back.”

Roy was stunned for a moment, then she looked at Susan with an aggrieved face, “Susan, what's wrong? Are you angry? I didn't say anything.”

Susan ignored her and forcibly crossed her over to find an empty seat.

Then, she found a pair of earphones, directly stuffing her ears. It seemed that nobody was welcome. Roy didn't expect that Susan, a newcomer, would do that.

She felt a little embarrassed.

After a long time, she snorted coldly. A trace of disdain flashed across her eyes. A beautiful woman like Susan must get the position through her beauty.

But she had the real ability, and she entered the company through an interview. They were different. Why did she care about a woman like Susan?

It was a shame of it!

This kind of explanation comforted her.

One hour later.

The car arrived at the destination.

Susan took off her earphones and looked out the window.

Then, she was stunned.

Just ahead stood a building that had become a landmark in the city.

Chapter 36

This was an architectural garden with more than a dozen buildings, all of which belonged to Storm Group. On the outermost stone marker, the name Storm Group was gilded, shining in the sun.

Storm Group!

Why did they come here?

Susan's face turned pale.

"Susan, what's wrong? You look bad," Roy's caring voice suddenly rang out at that moment.

Susan compressed her lips and looked at her blankly.

However, Roy laughed even more happily, "You're a newcomer. You haven't received any news yet, have you? Our company was acquired by Storm Group yesterday. As its subsidiary, we are going to move here naturally."

Acquired by Storm Group?

Susan's heart thumped!

What a coincidence!

Could it be Ben....

No, that was impossible.

Although Winner Electronics was not a big company, it was not an easy thing to acquire it. Storm Group must have settled down the acquisition plan.

So, was it just a coincidence?

However, Susan's heart was inexplicably flustered.

She even had an urge to flee.

However, the next moment, Roy had already pulled her up enthusiastically, "Let's go. Let me tell you. As an employee in the subsidiary, we're given a great opportunity."

"Mr. Landor says that employees in the Programming Department have the Chapter 36 chance to interview in of Storm Group. If we pass it, we can directly enter the headquarters." Roy glanced at Susan and said, "The programming department of Storm Group can be regarded as a gathering place of talents in this field. This place requires nothing but capacity." Susan's eyes were slightly cold.

What did she mean?

Implying that she had only a beautiful face but no ability?

It seemed that her previous counterattacks were inadequate.

Susan looked at Roy calmly and spoke directly, "First of all, thank your compliments on my Aer aRFer Secondly [S\N [net bob utiful as you

Susan said without any politeness, coupled with her disgusted eyes, as if Roy was a reptile on the ground.

Roy quivered with anger.

Coincidentally, there was a burst of laughter.

Chapter 37

Chapter 37

Roy threw a fierce look at the laughing man.

"What? I'm not allowed to laugh?" Gloated a man behind her.

Roy was furious originally but she endured it after seeing the laughing man clearly.

She took a deep breath and said coquettishly, "Jaron, why are you laughing at me? You know me. I'm different from the other girls who live by their faces every day. I spend all my time improving myself, to the neglecting of my appearance. You are different from other men, too. You must not be so superficial, right?"

Roy's delicate tone combined with her dandruff, which formed a ridiculous picture.

Jaron took a few steps back in horror, "No, no. I'm superficial, more superficial than any other men! Stay away from me, please." While backing away, Jaron cast a look at Susan.

Not bearing the garlic smell in Roy's mouth, Susan followed him knowingly.

The two of them moved away from Roy as rapidly as possible.

Looking at their backs as they left together, Roy stomped her feet angrily.

Men, as expected, liked beautiful women.

Even Jaron was no more than a superficial man.

People like Susan, who dressed up all the time, were nothing but a dumb blonde.

"Does she have the inner beauty like me?"

But these men only cared about appearances.

Roy took a deep breath.

She wouldn't be bothered by these people.

The interview at the headquarters would start soon.

If she could work in the Programming Department in the headquarters...

Chapter 37

Then Susan didn't even have the qualification to serve her!

As for the possibility of Susan working the headquarters' Programming Department, Roy didn't even consider it. In her mind, she could fail in appearance but never in ability.

Thinking of that, Roy raised her head and walked into Storm Group confidently.

Getting away from Roy completely, Jaron breathed a sigh of relief and stopped.

"Hello," Susan looked at him curiously.

Jaron coughed lightly, "I saw that Roy was pestering you, so I went over there for a while. I didn't mean to eavesdrop on you." Susan smiled, "Nothing. It doesn't matter."

A hint of amusement flashed across Jaron's eyes as he gave her a thumbs up, "Roy is a demon all day. We, all men, couldn't argue with her. What you just said sarcastically about her was absolutely amazing."

"Thank you." Susan said humbly. The two looked at each other, and then they laughed together, which drew their distance close.

Jaron smiled and said, "Stay away from Roy. In her opinion, she was the most excellent woman in programming, the most connotative and motivated woman in the world. Except her, all women serve people with their beauty. Anyway, she's a psycho. Don't pay any attention to her."

"I can see that." Susan said.

It was the first time she had met a girl of this type in her life. A normal girl would never allow herself to be so sloppy.

But Roy seemed to be deliberately showing off her "inner beauty". Susan couldn't understand her.

"Forget about this woman." Jaron said, "Did Roy tell you that our Programming Department employees are going to have an interview right away? Those who pass.

Chapter 37

have the opportunity to work at the headquarters."

Susan nodded with a mixed feeling.

If she passed the interview, would she work in Ben's territory?

Ben disliked her so much. Was it really proper?

"Come on. Let's go together." Jaron asked.

Susan hadn't made up her mind yet, but she agreed first.

On the surface, Storm Group was large. Entering and taking a closer look, Susan found that it was bigger. This architectural garden covered a vast area.

In the center was a huge lake surrounded by buildings.”

“I hear that the corporate welfare in Storm Group is rather attractive. The cafeteria employs five-star chefs. The gym is equipped with the most professional fitness coach. The most important thing is that it not only allows employees to bring their pets to the company, but also provides experts to take care of pets.”

“If I can get into the headquarters, my husky will be able to work with me.” Jargon talked excitedly. “Great.” echoed Susan casually. She stared at the buildings and suddenly asked, “Will the employees of Storm Group meet the president often?”

“How is that possible?!” Jaron said, “Mr. Landor is busy all day long with big deals in Storm Group. Only a few seniors can meet him frequently. Ordinary employees, even in the company for several years, never have seen him.”

“Is it true?” She felt a little relieved.

In this way, even if she entered the company, as long as she was careful, she would not come across Ben.

Susan relaxed instantly.

“Come on. Let's go for the interview. It's in that building.” Jargon led the way.

Chapter 37

Susan followed.

In the conference room.

While the head of Gweern was reporting the profits in this quarter, Ben stared at his watch casually. The head of Gweern was worried.

What was the matter?

Their quarterly achievements were pretty good. It's two percentage points higher than last quarter. Was it that Mr. Landor thought their progress was too tardy?

He wiped the cold sweat in his head and was about to make an apology.

Ben suddenly commented faintly, “Excellent. Sit down, please.”

Excellent?

Was he praised?

He was surprised and delighted. After sitting down, he felt a sense of exhaustion.

"That's all for today's meeting." Ben glanced at a young man, "Luke, stay for a while longer." The others looked at the head of the Programming Department, Luke Colle, with sympathetic eyes. It was known to all that there was absolutely nothing good about being left by Mr.

Landor.

Other people left gleefully.

Luke tensed up nervously, "Mr. Landor? Do you have any instructions?"

The Programming Department had completed their tasks on time recently.

Ben glanced at him and said, "Today, there are a group of people coming for interview." Luke nodded, "They are from Winner Electronics. It was you that gave them the Luke Colle looked at Ben in confusion.

Too many boys?

He added calmly, "Just do as you're told."

"Yes." Luke didn't dare to say anything and responded directly.

A faint smile appeared Ben's mouth after Luke left.

It had been a long detour, but finally, his goal would be achieved ultimately.

Of course, it was best for Susan to work in Storm Group.

There was no doubt that Susan would definitely make great progress in such a domestic top company. It was also good for Susan's career.

Well, he was indeed a warm-hearted person.

Chapter 38

Chapter 38 In the interview hall.

When Jaron and Susan came in, the employees of the Programming Department in Winner Electronics were already waiting there.

"Jargon." They all greeted him respectfully for his coming.

Susan glanced at Jaron, a little surprised.

It didn't expected that Jaron was quite prestigious.

When Roy saw them, she snorted and turned her head away.

She didn't want to argue with them now. All these years, she has devoted all her energy to work. She was bound to pass this interview!

Workers in Winner Electronics were at concert pitch, but on the contrary, worker in Storm Group obviously didn't care too much about them.

Only came an interviewer who required them to finish a test in the computer.

The interviewer lazily said, "There is an exam on the computer. With a total score of one hundred. If you get more than eighty points, you can have a second interview. If you get more than ninety points, You can be admitted directly. Just do it by yourself."

After saying that, he urged, "Don't just stand there. Hurry up! I haven't finished my own program yet. It's a waste of time to supervise you."

Hearing that, all interviewees hurriedly sat down.

The interviewer glanced at his watch and said, "It's limited to one hour. Of course, this question is a bit difficult. If you can't do it, you can hand in your papers early. Don't waste each other's time, understand?"

His words were a bit rude.

Susan frowned slightly.

Were all the programmers of Storm Group so arrogant? Chapter 38

Suddenly she was fired the wish to win.

She had to pass the interview.

“Do you hear that? Give up if you don’t know how to do it. Don’t waste time.” Roy, who sat in front of Susan, deliberately turned her head and said to Susan.

Susan looked at her blankly, then she directly put on the headphones.

Roy snorted coldly.

Such a pretending girl!

She wanted to see if Susan could pass the exam with her beauty this time!

When the results came out later, she must be embarrassed.

Only imagination of that scene relieved her.

The interview started soon.

Roy put away her thoughts and started to do it.

Her performance was second only after Jaron in Winner Electronics. Therefore, she had always been quite confident in herself. But at this time, after finishing only two questions, she would have a cold sweat on her forehead. Storm Group deserved its reputation.

Just the interview questions for the newcomer were surprisingly difficult.

At the beginning, Roy’s goal was to finish all questions.

Now, she just tried her best to do more!

However, this question was so difficult that she could only answer a part. Susan might get a zero. Thinking about this, she suddenly became less nervous.

Time elapsed.

Although the interviewer insinuated that everyone should not waste time, it was best to hand in the papers in advance,

But only 15 minutes left before the first person submitted the paper.

The interviewer looked at the paper on the computer and then glanced

Susan in surprise, "Go and wait in the interview hall"

Susan nodded and went to it.

Susan?

Roy looked up at Susan, with a disdainful smile.

Did she give up?

A powerful woman like her had nothing to do with a woman like Susan.

In fact, she didn't solve many questions. However, even if she couldn't understand the question, she still held on to the end, and wrote her own answers to each question.

An hour later, everyone's answers were automatically uploaded.

"Okay, wait for a while. The result will be shown in half an hour." The interviewer yawned and left.

After his leaving, the crowd burst into flames.

"Holy shit, this is the level of Storm Group? I've always thought | was pretty good, but | didn't even understand some questions!" "What, you still understand some? Awesome."

"Damn it. | almost made it up. | guess | can't get into Storm Group." -

om

"We don't have to think about it. Only Jargon might still have some hope."

"Yes, he could pass it."

All people stared at Jargon.

Jargon coughed embarrassedly, "Don't look at me like that. I'm stressed."

But he didn't deny others' remarks. That meant he did have some chances.

Chapter 38

“Don’t be modest, Jargon. You must be sure of it! Don’t forget us after you join the Programming Department of Storm Group.” “If you are rich, don’t forget us.”

Jaron smiled and agreed.

A hint of jealousy flowed over Joy’s eyes as she watched Jaron being flattered.

Hun, if the results came out, maybe Jaron would not necessarily pass!

Roy had always reckoned that Jaron’s better performance than hers was because his good luck. The projects assigned to him were relatively simple. In terms of capacity, she was absolutely no worse than Jaron!

Roy held her breath and waited for the result. Jaron didn’t know her thoughts. He finally got rid of others’ blessing and sat next to

Susan.

“How about you?” Jargon looked at her worriedly. Susan smiled, “Not bad.” While doing the questions, she finished it relatively smooth and did not feel difficult.

Although Roy resented at the flattery towards Jaron, she decided it was siding with the one who actually had some talent. The content is on Read the latest chapter there!

Now that Susan also looked like she had a good great, Roy couldn’t take it anymore.

She sneered in a strange way, “You can just say it if you can’t answer: those questions are so difficult but you finished ahead of schedule. Could it be a blank paper?” The content is on Read the latest chapter there!

“That’s enough.” Jaron frowned, “What does it have to do with you when I talk to Susan?” “Haha! I just don’t like some people’s playacting.” Roy disdained.

Susan glanced at her, “Are you sure you want to argue with me here?”

Chapter 38

Her eyes were indifferent, not intimidating.

But when Roy remembered her vicious words, she suddenly felt a little wimp.

She said, “I’m not going to argue with you. Let’s wait for the result.”

With that, she sat proudly to the side.

“Susan, ignore her. She is just jealous. None of us is willing to talk to her.” Jaron said. “It doesn’t matter.” Susan blurted.

She really didn’t care.

A person like Roy was just a bedbug, disgusting though, never brilliant.

In the meantime.

The Programming Department of Storm Group.

The result had been available.

“OMG.” The interviewer suddenly shouted.

The others looked over and asked, “What are you shouting for?”

The man was on the verge of madness, “Come on and help me check the raw edge) here is a person here who got all the questions right!” The content is on Read the latest chapter there!

Solve all the questions correctly? Full marks?!

At this time, people all got up and surrounded the man.

Chapter 39

Chapter 39

Everyone stared at the interview questions attentively. After a long while.

There were faint voices of the crowd in the office. “It seems... really full marks.”

“Yes. One of the questions requires them to produce an applet on the spot, I just need a simple result. But the applet, programmed by this person, is actually improved according to the question.”

“If it weren’t for the full score of only one hundred, I guess this person would have to score better than that.” “Oh my Gosh! Such a talent is hidden in Winner Electronics!”

“I remember that only three of us here have passed the interview questions with full marks.”

Everyone looked at the three big shots in the Programming Department.

They were the core in this department, whose competence was much higher than that of ordinary employees. Now, there appeared a newcomer with full marks.

That meant the fourth big shot was about to make his appearance in their office?

It was so fantastic.

After all, those three were not mediocre workers, but talents that even Mr. Landor had to rely on.

"You are in charge of the interview this time. Tell me, who is this great talent? | have to follow him closely." "That's right! But we don't know whether he needs us."

Amidst their prompting, the interviewer looked even more dazed.

"The name on the paper was Susan Miller. | remember she's a girl."

Chapter 39

Agirl...?

With such great talent?

In the programming circle, it was unimaginable.

For a moment, there was a strange silence in the office.

Just then, Luke came back.

"What are you doing around?" He came over and glanced at it casually. Seeing that it was the interview question, he recalled Ben's instructions.

He said calmly, "Attention please. Mr. Landor especially said that our department has too many boys. Therefore, this time the requirements in the interview should be lower for women."

Lower the requirements for women... The crowd looked at Luke in a daze. They didn't know if a hundred points could be counted as lowering the requirements.

"What's wrong?" Luke coughed lightly, "I know all of you only respect real ability. But, this is the order from Mr. Landor. Just do so, even reluctantly."

The acceptance of a person who got 100 points was reluctant? The crowd became even more silent.

“Okay, don’t show the reluctance on your faces,” said Luke, “I remember that Winner Electronics has two female employees? How are their grades? If it's not too outrageous, just accept them.”

After all, it

Is Ben’s order.

Silence reigned.

This time, Luke perceived something strange and asked, “What’s wrong?”

The person in charge of the interview raised his head and said in an erratic voice, “There is a woman among them, and her grades are indeed quite outrageous.”

Luke frowned, “Mr. Landor only said to lower the requirements properly, but if it is too bad, just refuse her. Tell me what her grades are.”

Chapter 39

“Oh, not too high. She just got a hundred points,” the man’s voice continued to flutter.

Luke was astounded.

He took a deep breath, “What?!”

“This woman called Susan Miller got full marks,” the man pointed to the screen.

Luke quickly pushed his subordinates away and checked it carefully. Then, his eyes instantly widened. “Director Colle, are you going to employ this person with such an outrageous grade?” joked someone. “Are you crazy?” Luke’s eyes widened, “Not only should we hire her but we must give her the best treatment.” All agreed with that.

Such a result was worth such treatment.

Luke was about to go there in person when suddenly something hit him and he couldn’t help but ask, “Is there any other one who reaches the criteria? What about the other woman? What about her grade?”

“It’s strange that there are a lot of talented people in this small company. Apart from Susan, there is another man called Jaron who also got 80 points. According to company regulations, he could enter the next round of interview. The other woman is... What’s her name?”

The man said and quickly turned on his computer to check it out. After all, different from Susan who shocked them with her grade, the other woman indeed didn't impress him.

"I got it! Her name is Roy Kelin. She got 60 points."

"60 points..." Luke frowned.

It was impossible for him to hire anyone with this grade in the past.

But Mr. Landor just said that he wanted to lower the requirements for women, Chapter 39 while Luke didn't know how far the requirements could go.

After thinking a few seconds, he sighed, "Accept Roy Kelin first and let's see. If she is a drag, I'll try to ask Mr. Landor to fire her anyway. Now that this woman has been admitted, we can just accept Jargon as well. Likewise, we will decide whether to keep him or not based on his performance for a month."

As for Susan, Luke didn't even mention her performance. For those who could get full marks, they should consider how to keep them instead of whether to let them go.

"Okay." The others were a little dissatisfied with Roy's joining, but after all, it was Ben's order, so they also temporarily accepted it.

"In addition, we've admitted that Roy entered with such poor grade. It would be shameful if the result was open to the public. So let's keep the result secretly and just announce the final list," Luke pointed at a person, "You go ahead and announce it..."

After a while, he was again a little worried, "I'll go by myself."

Luke walked all the way to the interview hall quickly.

Everyone was waiting quietly there.

According to the photos, Luke quickly found Susan.

Other people were all a bit nervous.

But Susan casually held a book and read it calmly.

A smile appeared on his face.

Although Susan was a woman, he only admired competence. A competent person should always maintain composure. After seeing Susan, Luke didn't care much about the other two people.

He casually announced, "Those who have passed the interview this time are Roy Kelin, Susan Miller and Jaron."

The first one was Roy Kelin.

Her greasy face lit up with a moment of ecstasy. She really made it.

Then followed by Jaron. After all, his capacity was real. Although Roy was dissatisfied with this result, it was still acceptable. But the third one... was actually Susan Miller?

To Joy's surprise, Susan passed as well?

Roy's eyes widened all of a sudden.

How was that possible?

How could Susan be so capable?

With a cold expression on his face, Luke made a casual arrangement.

Therefore, she did not panic too much, but calmly agreed.

Luke just took Susan away.

Jaron didn't care it at all.

“Sooner or later, I will trample you under my feet.”

Chapter 40

Chapter 40

Luke gave a contract to Susan separately. In order to keep her, the salary he gave to her was over ten times better than that given by Winner Electronics.

Seeing the contract, Susan was also a little surprised.

She started a business with Timothy before.

It was quite difficult to do so. At that time, she followed Timothy to write programs, meet clients, and expand the market together. She could say it proudly that nearly half of Timothy's success should be attributed to Susan.

But what about the rewards she got these years?

At the beginning when the company was in a poor situation, she was paid zero.

Later, after having a certain number of clients, she retreated to the back-seat role and concentrated on writing programs.

The core code of the program that made the company famous overnight stemmed from the conception provided by her and Timothy together.

Timothy is a billionaire now.

But there were only less than 150 thousand dollars in her card.

And now, the annual salary offered by Storm Group is close to 150 thousand dollars. Besides, there are some other benefits. Susan lowered her head silently with a complicated feelings “What's wrong? Not enough? The terms are negotiable,” Luke said without hesitation.

There was no shortage of ordinary programmers in Storm Group. The more talented there were, the better.

The level Susan showed had definitely reached the top list. If it weren't for that she was new to the company, the pay would have been more handsome.

“No,” Susan shook her head and looked at Luke, “Do you think I'm worth this annual salary?”

Luke was stunned for a moment and replied without hesitation, “Of course, you deserve it.”

The interview was all-embracing.

Not only did Susan get all the answers, but she also showed her extraordinary basic skills and innovative ability. She was completely a genius.

“Ms. Miller, it is just a starting point. After you enter the company and make achievements, your salary will rise sharply.” Luke was afraid that Susan would not be satisfied, so he implied.

Susan smiled and agreed in a warm voice, “I'm very satisfied with the salary. Let's sign the contract.” She had worked only in Timothy's company before, and met so much rejection in her recent experiences of finding a job. At one time, she thought she was pretty average.

Now she looked at Luke.

And she suddenly realized...

It turned out that she was quite valued.

Perhaps, she could be more confident in the future.

Right?

“Okay.” Luke was afraid that Susan would eat her words, so he immediately took out the contract.

He stared at Susan until she had signed it. Then he stood up with a smile, “Come on, Ms. Miller. I’ll take you to the office.” “Okay,” Susan agreed and said in a warm voice, “You can call me Susan from now on, Director Colle.” “Okay! Susan. Don’t be scared when you meet those programmers later,” said Luke.

Chapter 40

Huh? Scared? Susan didn’t understand that.

Without explaining, Luke took Susan straight to the office.

Meanwhile, Jaron and Roy had also arrived.

A person was leading them listlessly to familiarize themselves with the environment.

“These are your seats. You can walk around the entire hall, except those small offices,” said the man. Jaron was curious, “Why?”

“Those are the three talented programmers of our department. They are responsible for the core program. Don’t disturb them.” Both Jaron and Joy nodded in response.

“Come on. I’ll show you the rest corner,” the man continued to talk lazily.

The others cared about their own business, completely ignoring the newcomers.

The programmers of the Storm Group were probably just relatively aloof.

Roy didn’t take it seriously.

Just then, Luke brought Susan in.

i

“Let me introduce your new colleague, Susan Miller,” said Luke.

Susan Miller?

That interviewer with full scores?

The talented girl?

The programmers, who were still muddle-headed before, raised their heads at the same time whose countless eyes fell firmly on Susan.

Susan was a little numb under countless sight. What was wrong... Was she anything weird today? "Hello?" Susan greeted tentatively.

Chapter 40

There was a commotion in the office.

The programmer who had been leading Jaron and Roy ran quickly from them and rushed straight to Susan, "Boss, please leave a place for me to be your follower."

Susan was confused.

"Get out! I've already booked this place. Don't vie with me!" "Why?!"

"If you don't agree with that, let's just compete with the code." "Come on."

"Come on!"

The whole office instantly went from lifelessness to liveliness. Susan was speechless..

"Ahem," Luke coughed, "Are you scared?"

Susan shook her head slowly with mixed feelings.

She had no fear, but these people were too lively. Not long after, these active people fought several rounds of battles. Finally the winner invited Susan to the seat next to him. Not long after, these active people fought several rounds of battles. Finally the winner invited Susan to the seat next to him.

He smiled and said, "Susan, you have to work hard. When you make some achievements, you can own a small office over there."

She didn't have any obsession with it and responded casually.

As soon as Susan appeared, Jaron and Roy were directly forgotten in the corner of the office. Jaron was just a little curious, thinking about asking Susan in private what had happened. Roy was full of jealousy.

Susan was indeed a beauty, but this group of programmers' reactions were too excessive.

Well, this group of indoorsmen usually didn't make any contact with women, so when they saw a beauty, they encompass her one by one.

Did a pretty face really matter? Even the Storm Group was so superficial? She was not convinced, forever.

Susan didn't pay much attention to Roy's thought. On the first one she y

It was time off work.

Susan stood up and turned off her computer.

Roy suddenly walked up to her and asked, "I've written several codes today. How about you?" Susan froze for a moment, "I haven't started yet."

To put it in Luke's words, these ordinary codes were too simple to deserve her efforts. She just had to get familiar with the work for a few days before taking over an important project. The content is on Read the latest chapter there!

Susan knew what she was doing, but Roy didn't.

"What are you doing here? Don't bother Susan!" Before Susan could respond to Roy, the programmer next to her frowned at Roy.

"| Bother her? She didn't write a single code," Roy looked incredulous, "Shut up and get away," said the programmer impatiently.

Roy was stunned.

She left with a furious face.
