Chapter 5 Awakened and Above Defeat

The storms hit so hard on me and almost Jeopardize my existence. I didn't know for how long I've been unconscious while inside the cage.

Nevertheless, I awakened, up and above in a cage.

When my eyes opened, I feel so hot and heated by the sun, so much sun power and strength was absorbed into my terrestrial and I was becoming almost flammable.

I hit so hard on every corner of the cage with my both hands and legs but it won't just open for me to get freed. Nonetheless, I didn't give up trying, because I needed to get myself out by any means possible.

I Frankenstein Creature didn't know all my abilities and so I was struggling inside a common cage made of steel and ropes.

But something did happen when I looked up to the sun with my both eyes a little longer, for the first time. It was (eyes) so sensitively stimulated by the sun, and receiving its (sun's) energy as impulses and converting same energy to electrocution capabilities.

The moment I hover my eyes at the cage, it was electrocuting it and tearing it apart to major degrees before the electrocution was glaringly exhausted.

I was so happy, that finally this thing (trap) has opened up and I will be free again to continue seeking after the voice, the beautiful voice that spoke to me or probably, the tiny locomotive object that keeps running away from me.

After I'd widened the torn part of the cage, I realized I can't jump down because I was so high upwards in the cage.

So I swindled, swing and a miss, swing myself with the cage, to the nearest tree trunk within the forest before jumping out to the tree.

I held tight to the tree's branch after jumping to it, but it wasn't strong enough to support me.

The tree's branch cuts out at some point and let me down to a fall.

I screamed and reacted for safety while falling to the earth, despite every attempt I made on my safety, It didn't avail, so I hit the earth and rolled a little further.

I did not know exactly what spot I hit on the earth surface, but when I stood up from the ground, I had 0' degree injuries, bruises or fracture, So I smiled.

Upon taking a little step further, to move ahead, the Earth opened its mouth and swallowed me.
