

ILY Monster 132

'First, do it slowly and lightly...'

As those words were ringing in her head, Davi started slowly brushing her lips into his, innocently yet passionately. However, that moment, Davi's brain wasn't really working anymore. She was slowly losing the little perception left in her. And every thought just started to rumble like deer in chaos, as though she finally lost control. All she could feel at that point of time was nothing but scorching heat spreading all throughout her body.

'Next, open your mouth and slide your tongue into your partner's mouth...' she said in her mind. And those were the last words she could state before every thought seemed disappearing one after another inside her head.

Until the only thing left in her mind was the kissing scenes Hinari made her watched before she left. That moment, Davi just mindlessly following the steps in the video before she finally lost all of her bodily control.

Sei on the other hand, didn't reacted the moment her lips first landed into his. He remained in his immovable frozen position not making any move at all. His gaze was just locked into the girl's pinkish face, her luscious lips, and her her alluring beautiful eyes.

However, the moment she started barely grazing her lips into his repeatedly like an innocent tease, everything began to fall slowly out of control.

Her slow light kisses obliterated his every thought and before he knew it, he gradually closed his eyes and he finally responded.

Copying every move of her lips, Sei started to feel like every touch of her lips were driving him crazy. Every time their lips collides, he felt like fiery sparks were created one after another, until it eventually started a fire. Sei began to feel the scorching heat started spreading throughout his body. Until their soft and innocent tongueless kiss gradually started speeding up.

That moment, Sei could feel his heart fluttering abnormally for the first time. His temperature was rising dramatically the longer he felt her flame-like lips and her warm hands wrapping around his neck. He could barely think, and at that moment, he wanted to pull away before he will lose himself. However, the next second... she suddenly slid her tongue into his mouth the moment Sei slightly opened it to take breath.

Sei's eyes widened instantly for a second the moment her tongue entered his mouth. He felt as though she just jolted every nerves in his body, causing him to froze intensely like never before. However, the next second, when the girl just lightly tagged his tongue and retreated back, as though she was teasing him innocently yet seductively, Sei's last defense finally crumbled into ashes.

The immovable man raised his hands slowly, and the next second, he yanked her into him before he kissed her with hungry kisses. That moment, Sei just delved into her mouth without any care in the world, kissing her passionately as he began to caress her cheeks gently with his thumbs. All he could feel was her fiery mouth, her warm skin, the bitter sweet and minty scent of her breath, and the wild beating of his heart.

That moment, he felt as though he was drunk and he wanted the kiss not to end. He wanted to just kiss her like this. He wanted her to just stay in his arms like this.

For the first time in his life, Sei finally felt what lust is. And as Sei continued kissing her passionately, a certain part of his body who's been in deep hibernation for more than two decades finally awakened.
