

ILY Monster 139

Meanwhile, Sei was walking quietly towards their room...

It's been more than an hour since he left his sleeping wife on the bed. Thus, he returned to their room thinking that the girl was already in her deepest sleep.

However, the moment he entered the door, what appeared before him immediately stunned him.

The wife who was supposed to be in deep sleep was stripping herself with eyes closed as she sat on the bed. And as Sei watched her desperately trying to remove her t-shirt, he slowly turned red and he began to feel a wild fire spreading in his chest again.

Sei reflexively shifted his gaze away like a shy and innocent boy. However, when he heard her moaned, he couldn't stop himself from looking at her again.

"Hooottt... sooo hawwttt." She mumbled over and over again while she kept trying to remove her shirt. Seeing her situation, and the sweats flowing down her forehead, Sei hastily walked closer as he looked around. He saw a book under the side table and he immediately teared its cover.

Sei decided to just fan her until she fall asleep again because he was afraid that she might end up getting a cold if he lower the room temperature.

Thus, the moment he sat on the bedside, he helped her put back her shirt, covering her exposed thin and alluring stomach before he began to fan her.

That moment, the girl forced her eyes to open. Sei noticed that she's been sweating heavily that her hair and shirt were drenched with sweat.

"S-seiii?" she uttered as she moved closer to him. Her eyes were narrowed and looking heavy as she desperately tried examining the man's face.

"Mm. It's me... go back and sleep, ill fan you." Sei finally said but instead of listening to him, the moment she heard his voice, the girl suddenly leaped and hugged him. Causing the man to froze as the scorching fire and racing heartbeats intensified within him.

"Sei... my husband... you smell sooo goood." She said as she started sniffing his nape. Making the man getting more stiffened more than ever.

"Go-go back to sleep. It's already pass midnight." Sei forced himself to talk as he was desperately forcing himself to calm down. However, his struggle didn't seem to be working at all because a certain part of him was too unruly that he just couldn't control at all.

Moreover, the girl kept shaking her head. And she refused to let go of him. Causing the man to fell speechless for a moment before he managed to talked again.

"What do you want me to do?" he then asked causing the girl to stop shaking her head. She moved back and she landed her hands on his shoulders as she kneeled on the bed. She stared at him while her body was slightly swaying. And the next moment, she opened her mouth.

"I want... I want Sei to call my name." She said and what followed her words was a long silence. It was because the moment Sei heard her request, the fact that he never once called her by her name yet finally dawned on him. And it made him felt like being painfully suffocated.

Sei's Adam's apple then bobbed up and down before he looked intently in her eyes. He raised his hand and his thumb started caressing her cheeks gently before he finally uttered three words with intense and passionate emotion.

"Davi... my... wife..."