

ILY Monster 193

Minutes ago, just as Zaki was about to sneak away from Kaide to satisfy his gossiping stomach, he suddenly received a time bomb message from Sei.

[Ambrosia, Jonquil, Full bloom red rose. Make it rain. NOW.]

As soon as he read those words, Zaki's blood immediately gushed out of control. The all uppercased word made him almost lose his consciousness and just faint. Well, one glance at Sei's message was enough for Zaki to comprehend how serious it was. And seeing the long message and the uppercased word was the same as seeing an approaching missile from above.

Thus, without any second to waste, Zaki immediately called his men for the great emergency. And after he instructed them, he told Kaide to prepare spot lights in the rooftop. Of course, in the middle of a panic situation, Zaki still didn't forget to smile mischievously. It was because he knew the meaning of the flowers Sei asked. Due to that, it already gave him a picture of what was happening inside the house and what he was about to do.

Thus, when everything was already prepared in the fastest nick of time, Zaki then disappeared. Taking out his camera phone to act as paparazzi for the approaching exciting event. Until finally, the chopper came and it started to rain with flowers.

...

As soon as flowers just fell like rain over them. Davi almost couldn't believe her eyes. It was because what was currently going on wasn't something she expected at all, no, it was something she didn't imagined at all. Looking at the falling flowers made her tongue tied as her eyes turned wide with wonder and disbelief.

That moment, the picture of a couple –a lady in white and a man in black- under a spotlight while countless flowers were falling over them was just so breathtakingly perfect that the entire scenario just looked like a scene from a book of fairy tale.

Davi was obviously caught red handed with Sei's counter attack. She couldn't help but think that he just overshadowed her confession so lethally with his answer that it just left her speechless. She was surprised to the core that she took a long while to notice that there were three kinds of flowers falling over.

Ambrosia, the flower saying the words 'your love is reciprocated' and Jonquil, the flower that means 'affection returned', just made Davi to subconsciously put her hands on her mouth as soon as she saw the flowers. Her eyes were then locked unto Sei and the two just stared at each other's eyes so deeply, as though they communicating silently through their eyes until the chopper above them started leaving.

That moment, the flowers that fell a while ago covered almost every nook of the courtyard. And a certain flower, one among the three kind that just fell a while ago was now in Sei's hand.

He then stepped closer to her before he stretched out his hand. Giving her a full bloom red rose as his eyes were brimming with sincerity and love.

"I love you." He said as his ears and neck turned pretty red. And the moment he said it, Davi's tears to just fell once again before she jumped unto his arms and hugged him tight.

The two of them just embraced each other for a long while as though they were a couple that were separated for years.

"Sei..." she then uttered while her face was still buried in his chest.

"Sei, I want to hear you say it again." She said as she slowly pulled away and looked at his face causing Sei to immediately blushed again. Well, Sei didn't know why but saying those three words seemed to be harder than he thought. However, because it was his dear wife's wish, Sei could only said it once again.

"I love you Davi." He said and before Davi could smile, Sei suddenly pulled her towards him and then, he kissed her.