

ILY Monster 195

The couple including Zaki were pretty soaked by the time they finally reached the living room.

"Ahh... this storm might really a pretty strong one." Zaki complained when Davi's eyes turned wide.

"Ehh, there's a storm?" she said with surprise. Well, she's always been checking the weather broadcast everyday but she didn't watch today's broadcast because of her preparation. And besides, she watched the broadcast yesterday and the approaching storm was heading towards another place. That was why she almost couldn't believe what Zaki just said.

"Yeah, it changed course last night and it's pretty strong." Zaki replied and Davi was stunned. Well, she realized how lucky she was that the storm didn't come earlier or else...Sigh... thanks god, I really felt lucky today...

While Davi was thanking all the gods, Sei who noticed her soaked dress immediately put a coat on her.

"Are you alright? I think you should go change first." he said worriedly and Davi who seemed to be a bit startled before she just smiled.

"I'm fine. Mm. Okay, I'll go change fast." She said and she immediately ran towards the stairs.

Sei on the other hand just watched her back until she disappeared from his sight before he went straight to his study room while Zaki just followed him.

Moments later, the two was already back in the living room. A table for two was already set up in the middle with candles on it. Afterwards, they then dined quietly as usual.

However, even if Sei was still as quiet as he is, Davi could feel that there's a huge change in everything. She could feel that the distance between them drastically shortened. And she was so glad that their relationship is finally becoming real. She was glad that Sei felt the same, so glad that she didn't know just how to express the feelings inside her. That moment, she just wanted to feel every emotions, the emotions that words just can't even begin to describe.

Moreover, Davi still couldn't believe that she finally heard him said that he loves her. The answer he gave her moments ago was like a magical potion that gave too much happiness in her heart. And even though, the things that Sei confessed to her about himself also made her emotions gone disarray, deep within her, she just wanted to know more about him. She just wanted to know everything about him. She badly wanted to know his story. Thus, this night, she was thinking about asking him to tell her more about himself.

She was thinking about making him open up more....

The moment they finished eating, Sei then stood and lead her towards the couch. He gently made her take a sit before he talked.

"I have a... present for you." He said and he just walked away. Davi who was surprised just watched his back with a pretty surprised look.

And by the time the man returned, Davi gasped.

Her husband was holding a big white teddy bear in his arm as he walks closer to her. And as she looked at him that moment, she couldn't help but imagine him into his chibi version again. Chibi Sei-er with big teddy bear in his arm was slowly approaching, and the adorable picture of him just effortlessly made everything around her to just turned fluffy and pink in her eyes. Ahhh... he's so cute...! The bear too...!

That moment, Davi momentarily forgot about her thoughts of having some moment of truth with him because of the unbearable fluffiness unfolding before her.

"This... for you." Sei-er then said and Davi immediately stretched out her hands to receive his gift. And by the time Davi touched it, her eyes sparkled before she just hugged the bear tightly.

"Ahh... thank you, this is just so cute, just so fluffy, just like you." She said without even glancing at him. And the sight of her just kept on cuddling with the bear, of course, as expected, made Sei began to somewhat feel regretful.

Thankfully, Davi immediately noticed the brewing cold aura coming from him, so she raised her face and the moment she saw his expression, she just chuckled again before she held his hand and pulled him. She made him sit beside her, close enough that their skin were touching before she raised her hand and reached out his head. She started petting his hair gently while her gaze was still on the bear.

"Sei, I want to name this bear... hmm." She said as she began to come up with a name.

And after some moments, she finally thought about something. However, she was about to ask Sei about the name she just thought when she saw the adorable man beside her dozing off until eventually, his head just landed on her shoulder.
