

ILY Monster 213

After the girl stepped out of the car and entered the University's gate, Zaki began to unleash the same aura exuding Sei while the car started speeding. Sei on the other hand just heaved a really deep sigh of relief.

A while ago, the moment Zaki told him about the presence of XBI agents, Sei went unbelievably nervous. His usual calm demeanor even when danger was within his throat was suddenly nowhere to be seen. He was nervous to death about the possibility that they'll get attacked while his wife was still with them.

Gladly enough, nothing has happened.

"Did they saw us?" Sei asked when Zaki answered without looking at him.

"I believe they didn't, or else, they should have been chasing us now. I think they have another target. We just happened to crossed with each other."

Zaki replied when Sei's aura darkened again.

"I've let my guard down." Sei said as he clenched his fist tight.

Looking at him, Zaki could only sigh.

"Well, it can't be helped. You are sick last night and you didn't have the chance to check on them before we left." Zaki replied but Sei seemed to still feeling extremely displeased with himself.

Sigh... he's criticizing himself again...

That moment, Zaki could only watch Sei being in deep thinking again. He might have started visualizing simulations in his head again on how to escape and how to protect his wife if in case something had happened. Well, Zaki knew just how perfectionist Sei was when it comes to this kind of stuffs. Ever since he was young, his mind was always working in a completely different dimension that he could outsmart any plans of assassination and strategies of high level attacks countless steps ahead. Additionally, through his hacking skill, he can always manage to exploit any mission no matter how high level it was before they even manage to execute it against him. To someone like Sei, as long as he won't drop his guard down, as long as there will be no distraction for him, and as long as he will listen to Zaki, nothing could touch him.

"Anyway, I can't believe you're now turning a bit bolder, fufu." Zaki then said the moment he ensured that there's no more reason for him to stay alert. His voice now returned to its usual mischievousness as though nothing serious just happened at all.

Sei on the other hand immediately turned a bit red as soon as Zaki reminded him what he just did, but the next second, his aura turned amazingly cold the moment he remembered what happened after that kiss.

"Oi, did something happen?" Zaki then asked curiously the moment he noticed Sei's expression. Well, he expected him to just blushes like tomato but he turned cold instead, so of course, Zaki's gossiping stomach would be curious.

"Aren't you supposed to be happy that you're now the one making a move on her?" he continued trying to make him talk, when finally, Sei opened his mouth.

"She called me shameless." He said with such a disheartened voice causing Zaki to cough two times before he burst.

"Pfft! What? Hahaha. She called you shameless? What the hell did you do to her for her to call you that?" Zaki asked as he kept laughing while Sei just stared outside the window before he talked.

"I think she was displeased. She even covered her face not see me. I think I did a wrong move." He said with his usual ever so honest way of talking and Zaki just cracked up again.

"Pfft! You might be misunderstanding something again Sei, I'm sure of it. I advise you not to jump into conclusion. And besides, what's wrong if she called you shameless?" he said and Sei looked at him with puzzled gaze.

Zaki then sidled to the man as he whispered something in his ear. Google search freewebo1.com

"Listen Sei, sometimes, girls actually liked it when their man is being shameless." Zaki said and Sei just looked at him with a gaze full of doubts.

"Your wife was just embarrassed that moment that's why she covered her face. If you don't believe me, just go and ask her. Or, you just do some shameless move on her again and see her reaction for yourself." He continued while Sei just remained silent.

And when the man didn't replied him at all, Zaki spoke again.

"Anyway, what's your plan?" he asked and when Sei still didn't talk back, Zaki burst.

"Oi, don't tell me you'll just give the ring just like that! She confessed to you in such a really heart stopping and breathtaking way, so don't even think about doing boring stuff, you get it? You have to work as hard as she did. Be a man and do something even greater—"

"Shut up. I already have a plan."
