

ILY Monster 252

Just as the two of them finished their serious talk, Davi finally stepped out of the room behind them.

Upon seeing her, Zaki suddenly leaped towards her. Surprising Sei, especially when he sidled towards her to whisper something.

Sei's face was slowly turning dark as the two of them whispers to each other. He was curious about what they are talking about that they don't want him to hear. Unable to take it anymore, Sei then walked towards them when suddenly, Davi hastily walked down the stairs. Leaving Sei looked at Zaki with confuse and cold gaze.

"What did you tell her again this time?" he asked and Zaki shifted his gaze towards the stairs.

"Er... nothing important." He replied but the man of course didn't believe his words. Sei narrowed his eyes and he was about to speak when he heard footsteps approaching them.

In no time, Davi came back. She's hiding something behind her as she approaches them. Curious Sei looked at her and she just smiled brightly. She moved closer to him and the next second, she asked for his hand.

"Give me your hand Sei." She said and Sei could only knit his forehead as he obediently reached out his hand.

Davi clasped his hand with hers and Sei was about to ask when suddenly...

"CLICK!" the sound of a closing handcuff broke the silence and Sei's gaze fell straight towards his now cuffed hand. He looked at his wife's face and she's still smiling.

Zaki behind him patted his shoulder before he stood beside her.

"Mr. Chen, is this okay now?" she asked and Zaki smiled brightly.

"Yep, yep. You did a good job miss. This is for the sake of his safety." He said as he took the other end of the cuff in her hand.

"Lift you hand Miss." He continued and Davi curiously looked at him.

"Hm?" she uttered but Zaki already held her hand and...

"CLICK." The sound of the closing cuff made Davi blinked three times as her gaze shifted from her cuffed hand to Mr. Chen.

Zaki then smiled mischievously as he immediate stepped few steps away from them.

"The old man took the key and he'll be back here to uncuff you both tomorrow." He said and the couple's eyes widen.

"Gotta leave then. See ya." He said mischievously before he quickly disappeared from their sight.

After a long while of silence, the couple finally moved. They both look into each other before Davi lifted her other hand and lightly scratch her neck.

"I didn't know he was planning something like this. He's really mischievous, that Mr. Chen." She said as she forced a laugh and Sei just nodded.

"Mm." He agreed and both of them walked down the stairs, holding each other's hand, cuffed.

Hours later, Country C.

Zaki was now playing the bad criminal being chased by secret agents in the busy capital of Country C. His eyes were ferocious and he was smiling as though he was enjoying the dangerous hide and seek. Provoking the enemy and then ran away from them like a naughty kid made him feel excitement. Well, he was just enjoying the show at the moment. He didn't need to tax his brain until it runs dry since he only needs to protect himself. He was free to do what he wanted and he felt like he's experiencing an adrenaline rush.

Until time passed and he successfully ditched the enemy. It was already twilight when he reached the safe zone. He was panting as he leaned on the wall outside a certain normal and not too prestigious barroom.

The place was actually the rendezvous he chose to meet their men that were based in this city.

Upon entering the place, Zaki was immediately greeted by a tall muscular man and politely lead him towards the corner where another two men were waiting for him.

"Second boss, what drink would you prefer?" the man asked as he sits when Zaki just waved his hand.

"No need." He said and the three men just sat there, looking like obedient soldiers who's afraid to move in the presence of their great superior.

After explaining them about the plan, the men then stood to leave the place and go to their base when suddenly, someone bumped onto Zaki's back.

The men immediately went fierce as they held the person who bumped onto him.

Zaki was about to ignore it but the moment he moved a single step, he halted.

"Let go of me damn it. If you won't I'll call my super macho wrestler fiancée and you guys will see!" A girl's voice rang. And as soon as that voice reached his ears, Zaki immediately turned and his eyes turned wide with disbelief.

T-t-this girl... what the hell is she doing here?!
