

ILY Monster 253

'What the hell is she doing here?!' Zaki exclaimed within him as he looked at the girl in front of him with disbelief.

"I said let go of me!" She yelled as she struggled when Zaki finally spoke.

"Let her go." He said and the men immediately obeyed. Zaki was wearing a plain black baseball cap hiding his face. However, his familiar voice was enough to jolt the girl across him.

She then hesitantly moved towards the tall man wearing an all-black outfit, looking as though he was a secret agent from a movie lurking in the night. Trying to ensure who the man was, she tilted her head to see his face when the man suddenly turned, ignoring her.

Zaki never expected the girl to suddenly appear in a place like this, much more to this kind of situation. He couldn't help but think if some bored god out there was trying to play a prank on him by making him meet her in every unexpected situation existed.

That moment, as much as Zaki wanted to ask her what the hell is she doing in this place, he could only take a deep breath and act like he didn't know her. After all, dragging her into danger is the last thing he would do.

Leaving the girl standing like a rooted tree watching him leave, Zaki glanced at her for a while before he finally stepped out of the door. However, his brows knitted as he walks away. It was because he noticed the girl's sorry state. She was dressed like a noble rich daughter as though she just came from a certain ceremony. But her reflection that moment was entirely different from the Miss pervert he knew. She looked lost and devoid with her usual wild and naughty aura.

Thinking about her, Zaki felt a strange feeling of wanting to go back and ask her what was wrong. He never felt this reluctant to ignore someone before. Apart from Sei, he could always ignore anyone without batting an eye at times like this. He was the type of human being who doesn't get swayed at all by anything especially when he's in an important mission. That was why the completely unfamiliar feeling that was bugging him at the moment made his eyes narrowed with curiosity and wonder.

However, at the end, he didn't stop. He went straight inside a car waiting for them and the moment he sat inside, the man leading Sei's men in this country spoke.

"Boss, your plan is a success, the enemy completely lost track of you. They're currently heading towards the pier right now." He said and Zaki could only look at him nonchalantly with an expression as though saying the words 'of course it's a success, there's no way my plan would go wrong' and the man fell quiet for a while.

"Boss, shall we go?" the man asked when suddenly, Zaki's phone vibrated. He immediately opened the message Kir sent him and he could only sigh.

[Everything is fine here. Boss was asking me to monitor you.] the message said and Zaki immediately typed a reply.

[Tell him I'm still alive and kicking. Tell him to just make sure he makes a baby tonight.]

After sending the message, Zaki then gestured the driver to start the car as he turned his head and looked back at the barroom they came from.

However, just as the car was about to accelerate, it suddenly screeched into halt. Zaki who was sitting at the backseat looked in front when the driver cursed.

"Sh*t! That girl! What is she doing?" he hissed when Zaki's eyes widened again as he looked at the girl absentmindedly walking in front of the car.

"Don't mind her, let's go." The leader said but before the car could start moving, Zaki spoke.

"Wait." He said and he stepped out.
