

ILY Monster 273

Sei's gaze was locked onto the woman holding his son. It was suspicious enough for his son to embrace anyone like this. He won't even hug his own father so dearly like that as though he doesn't want to ever be separated with her.

That moment, Sei's heart was starting to go strange. He couldn't see the girl's face. It was as if she was purposely trying to hide her face from him. Curious, Sei moved to see her. The woman was wearing a mask covering her lower face but looking at those eyes, those brows and all those facial and physical features, Sei couldn't help but froze in place. His dying heart seemed to be badly startled with a deadly thunderbolts resurrecting his every nerves that was fallen to death that day she disappeared.

Without saying a word, he walked closer to her and before the girl knew it, he removed her mask. The girl was shocked as she looked at him. And that moment their gazes met, Sei's world that was enveloped with glaciers for the past five years startled melting down.

His wife, his dearest wife was now in front of him and he could hardly believe it. Ever since she disappeared that day, Sei never stopped looking for her.

Zaki who was watching in the sideline was also so shocked to the point that he just wanted to laugh. They searched for Davi for years but they couldn't even find anything. It was as if she simply disappeared on the face of the earth. They even infiltrated every underground organization in existence to find her.

Damn. No wonder we couldn't find her anywhere else. Who would have thought that this girl actually entered the military, much more a special force? She's been so close to us all this time.

Fate indeed is too unpredictable.

Zaki could only shook his head in disbelief. No one would have thought that what will brought them together again was no other than their own precious son.

That moment, Zaki immediately talked to the captain.

"It seems like the young master was reluctant to let go of your medical sergeant." He said and the captain nodded.

"Seems like it."

"I would like to ask you to let her accompany the boy. I will promise to return her in your camp after this." Zaki said and after some negotiation, the captain finally spoke.

"Sergeant, you can accompany the boss's son home. We will go back to the camp first." The captain said startling the two.

And after a few moments, Davi could only follow her captain's order. They then entered the car as Little Shin was still embracing her.

Sei's gaze was locked onto her while Davi was gently caressing the boy as she stared at him slowly dozing off.

If not for little Shin, Sei would have yanked her in his arms by now. No one was speaking. Davi never said a word and so Sei.

The two of them were thinking deep. Davi was thinking what she should do now. She longed for him so bad, she wanted to hug him tight as she could. But the moment she looked in his eyes, guilt clouded her heart. She remembered just how much Sei suffered for long ten years because of a sin he never committed. And thinking about it, she felt that she didn't deserve someone like him. Her guilt was haunting her day and night and it never ceased to break her heart until now. Especially when he saw those eyes of his looking at him with intense longing, without even a glint of hate. Even though he was the one who suffered in her behalf. If not for the boy in her embrace, she wouldn't have agreed to follow them. All she wanted in this life now was to let these two live in peace.

Due to their yearlong isolated and secret mission, Davi wasn't aware about the what happened last year. She still didn't know that his father's name was already cleared and that Sei put all the blame towards the Blackleaf. She didn't know that the case was all solved and there's no need for her to hide and worry anymore.

Little Shin fell asleep in the car so Sei immediately lead her towards his room as soon as they entered the mansion.

Nobody still said a word until Davi finally put the boy down on the bed. She looked at the sleeping child for a long while before she kissed his forehead. Her heart was breaking that she will leave him again, and she couldn't do a thing about it. She knew she couldn't stay by this angel's side and it hurts her so much.

She then stepped out of the room with her hands clenched tight and walked passed Sei as though he was invincible.

However, before she could step farther away, Sei grabbed her from the back and hugged her tight. Davi gasped as she bit her lip. She finally felt the warm embrace that she was longing for those five long years. Her heart was beating wild as Sei's hug tightened as he spoke.

"Now that I've finally found you, did you think I'd ever let you go again?"
