

ILY Monster 286

Sei let go of her lips and looked at her. Their lips just touched and yet he was starting to lose his mind. He couldn't wait to delve deeper inside her mouth anymore. Thus, without wasting a second, he was about to reach for her lips again when a voice reached their ears.

"Mommy!" someone yelled in the entrance and Davi immediately turned her head. She pulled away from Sei and instantly ran towards source of the voice. Leaving Sei stunned as he raised his hand rubbed the back of his neck.

At the entrance, Davi and her son were embracing again.

"Mommy, are you leaving again?" The little boy asked. His hair was messy and yet he still looks so damn cute, with those beautiful eyes of his welling.

Seeing him at the verge of crying, Davi's heart clenched and she rubbed Little Shin's head.

"Don't worry, I won't leave anymore. Mommy will stay by your side from now on." She replied and Little Shin's eyes widened. He unclasped her and looked at her eyes.

"You're going to live with us in this house from now on?" The little boy asked and Davi nodded.

"Mm. Mommy will just go back to work for a while to settle things. I will come back right away." She answered and Little Shin's eyes sparkled like stars with happiness before he excitedly embraced her again.

"Go back to sleep, I will send your mother to her work." Sei said and little Shin's face turned obviously displeased with his father, seemingly sending him away.

"I will tag along. Mother said it's just for a while anyway." Little Shin replied and the two fell speechless.

In the end, the family of three were already inside a car heading towards the Queen's Port.

Little Shin was in her mother's embrace again and before they could reach the port, he finally doze off again.

...

Meanwhile in Country H.

Zaki just arrived when he received a message about the whereabouts of his fiancée whom he have never seen for about two years now. She was now a successful author and she even launched her own bookstores all over the country. Everything was all her efforts and she successfully stood on her own feet despite her family opposing her. As a matter of fact, the only thing Zaki did for her was minimize the attacks her own family was throwing her. He didn't remove every obstacle in her way because he believed that those can make her stronger.

However, he could say, their relationship didn't change much at all. Those five years, she spent her life living freely doing what she wanted while he was busy fighting alongside Sei.

There seemed to be nothing special between them, they were just simple marriage matched couple with some sort of mutual understanding of each other's situation. Although to Zaki, he never once thought that she was someone irrelevant in his life. Somehow, before he even realized it, he was already worrying about her and dealing with her enemies in the sidelines without her knowing.

Some moments later, Zaki finally reached the hotel where she was. He was told that another book of hers was again chosen to be dramatized by a large entertainment company. It was another feat of success to her so she was invited during the celebratory premier of the drama.

It was midnight and the hall was already almost empty when Zaki arrived. He looked around and she wasn't there. He called someone to check the CCTV and they informed him that she was last seen entering the comfort room and hour ago.

"An hour ago?" Zaki repeated as his forehead creased. Somehow, he couldn't help but felt restless. It was because for some reason, he didn't know why but every single time they met, she's always caught in some sort of trouble.

Thinking that something happened again, Zaki strode towards the female comfort room and his eyes widened the moment he saw two men inside.

"C'mon young miss, please open this door and play with us." A man that seemed drunk was knocking the closed cubicle.

"Miss Hinari... you will die if you hold it in. The drug they put in your glass was strong so there's no use trying to suppress it. Come out and we will help you feel better. My little brother can't wait anymore." The other man said. His voice is filthy and he looks exactly like a perverted bastard. The moment Zaki heard him uttered her name, Zaki's fury blazed and before he knew it the two men's faces were already bleeding on the floor.

The girl who was sweating and panting inside the cubicle heard the noise, but she still didn't dare to open the door.

However, the voice she heard the next moment made her shudder.

"Hinari... come out, now!" The deep and cold familiar voice said and Hinari gasped. She weakly put her hands in her mouth as her weakening eyes widened again.

'W-why is he here?'