

ILY Monster 320

Upon hearing Hinari's plan, Zaki's brows immediately creased. He understood what Hinari wanted to happen and he himself truly believes that it was a good idea. However, thinking about Sei, he couldn't help but imagine the freezing cold scenario that will definitely unfold the instant they tell him about the plan.

"So you're planning to find a woman to cling on Sei while his wife is watching?" Zaki asked and Hinari rested her head on the headrest as she replied.

"Woman is a given but about the clinging thing, I think I should decide about that once I see your brother the great's reaction. I can't just decide without asking him or else I might find myself being thrown by his men in the river. But I need not worry, right?" She said and her usual playful smile carved on her face as she uttered the end of her statement, causing Zaki to glance at her with a raised brow.

"Need not worry?" He repeated her words when Hinari sidled towards him. She purposely reached out close enough for her breath to reach his skin.

"Because, my dear fiancé will rescue me again." She uttered sexily as she ran her naughty forefinger on Zaki's sharp beautiful jaw when the car suddenly slowed down. Zaki quickly slipped his one hand in his waistband and the moment Hinari saw a handcuffed in the man's hand, she immediately back off in a flash, and almost sticking herself on the car's door.

"Don't forget that I'm a police officer today. Try misbehaving again and I'll cuff you." Zaki uttered with a smirk on his beautiful face and Hinari could only pout in disappointment.

"Be glad Mr. Beautiful, if not for Davi I will definitely never back off even if you bring me to jail." She muttered and Zaki's vein could only pop as the car accelerated once again.

Meanwhile, the atmosphere inside the black car ahead was warm. Well, Sei was very happy to finally monopolize his dear wife even though they only have two hours to spend together before going back to school and fetch Little Shin.

"Sei... Where are we going?" Davi asked and Sei just smiled.

"Into the place we never set foot in together." He replied and Davi slightly tilted her head as she started thinking.

"You will know once we get there." He continued and after a while, the car finally finally reached their destination.

As soon as Davi looked through the car's window, her eyes widened a bit. And she didn't know why but in that instant, she suddenly remembered what she told him five years ago, that night before they parted.

'When you come back, I will bring you to the beach, to the market, to the mall, to the street and everywhere.'

Those words were like echoes from a distant place. She remembered that she told him those because they both wanted to be like every normal couple, safe and free. She wanted to bring Sei in every place he wasn't allowed to step into because of his dangerous situation and those times she was waiting for him during her pregnancy, Davi had been dreaming about the day when they don't need to hide anymore.

Thinking about those, Davi's heart started to feel both happiness and sadness: sadness for the lost times and happiness for the fact that Sei was finally freed.

That moment, Sei immediately noticed the change of expression in her eyes and he was confused whether she was happy or sad.

"You... don't like it here?" Sei asked. His eyes turned a bit worried, causing Davi to immediately shake her head.

"Of course, I like it here." She exclaimed before she looked outside again as she continued talking.

"I... I just remembered that I was the one who told you that I will bring you in this kind of place." She added with a sad nostalgic look in her eyes and Sei suddenly yanked her over him. He hugged her tight as though he was trying his hardest to soothe the sadness in her heart.

"It's fine now, Davi. We can now go anywhere we wanted, just like them." He assured her and Davi embraced him back. The sadness in her heart faded in an instant as though Sei's words and embraces were all what her heart needed.

"But... you are famous now. Last night was dangerous." She said as she pulled away from him when Sei caught her face with both his hands.

"All I need is a little change in appearance and everything is fine." He said before he suddenly landed a peck on the tip of her nose.

"Can you help me fix my hair again?" He continued and Davi who just recovered from his sudden attack snapped.

"Of course, I'd love to do that." She quickly replied. "Okay, let me fix your hair now."

Davi was expecting Sei to let go of her but the man didn't move. He just stared at her for a long while without words.

"What's wrong?" She asked curiously when Sei suddenly pulled her and made her sit on his lap. Davi was again stunned.

"I... I think my body needs a little energizer." He said and the stunned Davi creased her brows, puzzled as she asked.

"Energizer? Is your body not in good condition?"

"It was completely fine a moment ago, but I think I used too much energy gazing at you and thinking about you since I woke up. I think I was so excited to spend this moment with you." Sei replied and Davi choked. Well, his words were definitely like those flirtatious pick-up lines, but Sei said those in a way that doesn't seem to be a tease at all. Even those dark sincere eyes of his were looking at her so honestly that Davi can't help but simply believe his words no matter how silly they were.

"W-what energizer do you need? I can buy them for you." She could only utter but what Sei said the next moment only made her even more dumbfounded.

"I need a ten minutes kiss to fully recover."
