ILY Monster 377

As soon as Davi's lips collided into his, Sei felt like a sudden thunderbolt struck him and the familiar warmth forcefully cut through the dark cloak that was enveloping him. The soft and warm sensation that he felt on his lips was akin to a powerful arrow that a certain angel shot right through to his heart, effortlessly piercing through the darkness that cloaked his mind and heart.

Sei's eyes which were filled with nothing but darkness a moment ago slowly changed, as if the ominous and thunderous apocalyptic clouds were suddenly being sucked away by a powerful goddess in the sky. Although the rage and anger still filled his eyes, his demonic state seemed to have disappeared and he was now just a raging human and not a raging Demon.

At that moment, all Davi wanted was to make Sei calm down. She couldn't possibly let him lay a hand on his own grandfather. She knew that what the old man did, kidnapping her, was a very big mistake but when she saw the desperate look in the old man's eyes, Davi couldn't help but want to give him a chance. She wanted Sei to calm down and be rational again and see through this problem so they could settle this matter once and for all.

Thus, she kissed him hard. At first, she could feel how cold his lips were. It was as if she was kissing an iceberg and the cold sensation even gave her chills. However, Davi didn't flinch. She kissed him even harder and in no time, his cold lips slowly melted eventually becoming warm and soft.

Her hands which were below his ears moved, crawling its way towards the back of his head. She pulled him even closer, tugging his hair. Davi's kisses were surprisingly wilder than ever before that Sei, who just recovered his senses, could immediately feel just how wild she was. She delved through his mouth like she was a hungry beast. Was this how Davi kissed when she was in soldier mode? Damn... my Davi is too irresistible... I can't...

Sei had just woken up and become human again. But because of Davi's kiss, it seemed like he lost his mind again, although this time, it was for the better.

Meanwhile, everyone was again stunned to the core due to the current flow of events. Weren't they just watching the most horrifying scene of their lives a moment ago? How and when did the channel change?

Somehow, everyone felt like they had just been watching the climax of the most terrifying movie in existence when out of nowhere, it changed into the most romantic kissing scene. Weren't they supposed to be watching a horror movie? When did it switch into a romance?

Old man Zhao and his men: "..."

Kir and his men: "..."

While the two lovebirds kissed like there was no one around and like there was no more tomorrow, all the armed men around them almost wanted to close their eyes. This scene was actually much harder for them to watch than the horrifying fight a moment ago. They were all in a daze watching Sei fight but now, everyone started praying that they would stop being lovey dovey in the middle of what was a dangerous situation.

Sei's men weren't that affected at all but Zhao's men including old man Zhao just looked like their eyes were about to bulge out in disbelief. Damn... who would blatantly kiss in this kind of situation? Did the young master forget where they were? Did he actually consider them as little minions who weren't capable of doing anything against him?

Somehow, old man Zhao's men found this opportunity to take their master away since they already realized that the old man's wish was just now a pipe dream. They thought that this was already over and they were badly defeated, so it was better for them to at least think about their master's safety especially since they saw that moment when Sei didn't even hesitate to attack him. Who knows what this monster would do to his very own grandfather? They would consider themselves extremely lucky if the young master let them leave from this alive!

Seeing this horror-turned-romantic scene as a perfect chance, the guard leader started to move when suddenly, a silent bullet pierced though his leg. He fell on the ground as everyone's eyes widened. There were deadly snipers around? No wonder this army didn't even move at all! Damn... we're really doomed now. This monster isn't going to let any of us go!

Realizing that Sei's men would never let any of them leave the scene, no one dared to make another move.

The atmosphere once again turned unbelievably tense between the two armies, while in between them, a certain couple was enveloped with pink bubbles all over, without any care in the world.

Sei's men: "..."

Zhao's men: 'Stop kissing already! What kind of torture is this?! Why does it felt like they're giving us a romantic show as a parting gift before they all behead us?! Just let us die normally, no need to torture us like this!' T^T

Just as the Zhao's men cried without tears, Davi finally broke the kiss. She caught Sei's face as she panted from the deep and wild kiss they shared. She looked at Sei's eyes and her heart was glad upon seeing that the darkness enveloping it was gone.

"Sei... I'm fine, I'm not actually injured. The blood on me isn't mine. I beat quite a lot of them inside that's why I got blood all over me." Davi immediately explained and Sei blinked.

"Look... I don't have any wounds at all. They didn't hurt me at all. Actually, I was the one who hurt them all. So don't worry now, okay?" she continued as she showed him her skin, like a child coaxing her mother to believe she wasn't hurt at all.

That moment, Sei quietly surveyed her body. And when he finally confirmed that she wasn't really injured, the rage in his eyes dissipated and Sei suddenly yanked her into his embrace.

His arms were wrapped around her so tight. Davi was surprised but what shocked her the most was when she she started to feel him trembling. S-sei is trembling?!

Davi's eyes turned wide as Sei's body trembled like he was so terrified about something. She could also hear the loud and fast beating of his heart as if it was about to explode.

"I was so worried... I... I was so scared... I thought I was going to lose you..." he uttered. His hoarse and weak voice rang through Davi's ears, making her suddenly felt like tears were about to flow from her eyes again.

This was the first time she had seen this man act like this. She could feel the emotions in his trembling body and her heart twisted so much that she felt like it was about to burst. Her little chibi Sei was actually trembling in fear and it broke her heart to the worst degree.

"I'm so sorry... I made you worry... it's alright now okay? You will never lose me... I promise." Davi said as she immediately coaxed him, caressing his back and his head gently as ever, while Sei's grip on her just intensified.

"Darling... I promise I won't make you worry like this again... don't be scared now." Davi continued and when the man still didn't stop trembling, she pulled away a little for her to see his face. But the moment she saw his gorgeous face, Davi's mouth made a shape like an 'O'. It was because Sei looked so miserably beautiful. His expression was akin to a terrified little puppy and the only thing that was missing were the tears flowing down his pale face.

Seeing this, Davi's emotions were fighting against each other that she didn't know what to even feel anymore.

Her Sei being so emotional like this for the first time ever was definitely something she didn't ever imagine happening in her lifetime. Yet, here she was seeing him in a state where he seemed to be so close to breaking down? My god... my darling is so...

Sei never showed her this kind of expression before. He didn't even showed her this emotional side of him that day they parted five years ago or that day when they finally met again. Of course, Davi's heart ached seeing him like this but at the same time she couldn't help but want to just squeeze him in her arms. Somehow, this emotional Sei was just so unbelievably cute that Davi felt like he was a vulnerable little baby she needed to protect both physically and emotionally.

"Darling... if you feel like crying, you can cry on me, okay? Real men also need to cry and let their emotions go so they will feel better." Davi suddenly said on a whim as she lovingly caressed Sei face. Her expression was gentle as she urged this adorable creature to shed a tear.

However, as soon as those words left her mouth, Sei blinked, fell quiet for a long while, and then, he suddenly went a bit red, surprising Davi to the core. 'Damn... Sei is killing me... I think you will be the one to injure me so badly if you keep being like this, my god! Everything you do is just lethally deadly!'

"I... I'm ... I'm not going to cry..." he shyly replied and Davi's nose was about to bleed when the man bowed his head, dropping his head at the nook of Davi's neck, hiding his face.

'Oh my god! I'm dying... darling, don't you know you're killing me right now?!'
