

ILY Monster 392

Somehow, seeing these macho men wearing bunny headbands made Davi curious. However, she would never let her guard down anymore. There was no way she could make her dearest Sei worry again because she knew that if she was abducted again, Sei might literally chain her to him and never let go of her again, ever.

Thus, Davi then immediately switched to her fighting mode. Her aura drastically changed despite her looking like a snow fairy in her white dress. Even those men in black felt like she was suddenly possessed by the evil ice queen, causing them to halt in place. They looked at each other like they were hesitating to take even another step closer to her.

At that moment, seeing that the men were backing off, Davi slid her hand on her purse where she hid an improvised secret weapon. Her eyes went dangerous and without any warning, she suddenly attacked them. Well, she thought that she better take them down as early as possible.

Davi lunged at the closest man with her makeshift weapon and he stumbled backwards, barely escaping her attack. Not wasting anymore time with that man, she turned to her right and ran towards another one of them. The man seemed to be so frightened at seeing her come for him that he started running away. Davi caught up to him and gave him a swift kick on the back, making the man trip and fall on his face. Turning back to the remaining two men, she quickly maneuvered her way to the closest one on her left. She threw a punch to his face which he swiftly dodged by ducking to the left. However, Davi had anticipated this and she used her left hand to land a strong uppercut on his jaw. The man's head tilted backwards taking his body along with it. He landed hard on the ground. One man left standing and she hadn't even broken a sweat yet. 'What's with these pansies? Are they even trained professionals?'

Davi started to wonder but stopped herself from anymore wandering thoughts. She still had one man left to take care of. She walked swiftly towards him, arms raised, ready to fight. The man looked at her warily, not knowing whether to defend himself or to run from the evil ice queen. He couldn't decide fast enough and soon, Davi's leg flicked out into a roundhouse kick to his face, taking him down also.

In a flash, the four men were already on the ground. She didn't even let any of them speak. The badass snow queen of course drew lots of attention and she looked like she was not even done yet. She walked towards one of the big men to interrogate him when suddenly, a call halted her. The phone in her other hand rang. She took a quick glance at the screen and when she saw that it was Sei calling, she immediately answered it while her eyes never left the men she had beaten. She was still alert at observing their every move as she took a few steps back before she spoke.

"Hello? Darling?" she said calmly when to her surprise, the one who answered her was little Shin.

"Mommy, daddy said you're in country J right now. Are you?" The little guy asked and when Davi saw some airport security guards nearby, she relaxed a bit as she answered her little darling.

"Yes baby, I-I'm here." She replied and the next words that little Shin said made Davi blink, curious.

"Mommy, do you see a few men wearing bunny head bands right now?"

As soon as she heard little Shin's words, the first thing Davi did was blink before she looked around, as if she was looking for someone. How did he know that there were men with bunny headbands in front of her? Was he here?

Davi could only think that her dear son was watching her so her face immediately brightened. However, before she could ask him where he was, little Shin spoke first.

"Mommy, I have something I wanted you to buy for me, is it okay?" He asked and Davi blinked again. Eh? So, my dear son isn't here, after all?

"Of course baby, I can get whatever you want. What is it?" Although Davi was a bit disappointed, she still smiled as she replied to the boy happily. Well, one reason why she insisted to go home immediately was because she felt like she really couldn't bear being separated from her big and small darlings at home for more than a day. She already missed them so much that everything except them almost didn't matter to her anymore.

"Mommy, those men in bunny mask are actually dad's men in that country. I asked them to wait for you in the airport so they could escort you to that store." Little Shin said and Davi choked.

Cough... cough... these are Sei's men?! Oh no! What have I done?!

Davi looked at the men before her and she bit her lip hard.

"O-oh, yes. T-they're here." She replied as she mentally face palmed herself.

"Mommy, please go with them. They will bring you there. I will send you a photo of the thing I want you to buy when you get there."

"Okay, baby."

As soon as the call ended, Davi immediately helped the men up.

"I'm so sorry, I didn't know you're Sei's men. T^T" Davi immediately apologized and the men could only tell her it was their fault. They received some pretty heavy blows but since they were well trained men, they were able to recover fast.

"I-it's our fault miss for failing to explain things first." They said and Davi could only scratch her hair.

After that, the men then led her towards a car.

As the car moved, Davi began to wonder. It was because the car was strange. For some reason, the car's windows seemed to have been purposely covered so she couldn't see outside. However, she didn't ask anymore questions as she quietly rested her head on the headrest.

Time passed and the car finally stopped. Davi immediately took her purse, curious to see which store did they brought her.

Someone then opened the door for her and when she stepped out, she gasped as her eyes widened.

I... I'm in... G-gray mansion?!
