

ILY Monster 400

Davi was speechless. She looked intently at him and when she saw just how serious he was, Davi just shook her head subconsciously. She didn't even know how to react that moment.

Sei looked at her and when he saw her surprised look, he rubbed the back of his neck as he shyly looked away and then back at her.

"Truth is, I too can't wait anymore. I want to marry you now, so we can finally have our wedding night." He said and before Davi could even blink, he continued speaking.

"I want to call you my wife again and I can't wait any longer." He added as he gazed at her. The look in his eyes was firm and serious as ever.

Once again, Davi was dumbfounded. She couldn't deny that she herself was getting impatient, especially now that everything was falling into their rightful place. She finally experienced the ever so wonderful proposal from her Sei and she could now call him her fiancé. Everything that Sei failed to do before was now being done in the most wonderful way, and she was so ecstatic and excited as she felt his overflowing love, his every emotion flowing like honey in her blood.

Thinking about that day when she thought her life was over, that day when she thought that life was too cruel to her, she couldn't help but smile. If she didn't meet Zaki on that road, if she didn't accept that contract out of desperation, what kind of life would she be living right now? Would she ever have met this man in her lifetime?

The feeling she had at the passing thought that she might have never met Sei in this life was unbelievably painful that Davi didn't even want to think about it. Her life without Sei would surely be devoid and empty, because this man was the only one for her, now and forever.

That accidental encounter, that desperate situation was what brought her to him. They went through a lot. She was able to experience what love was, but at the same time, she also struggled with sadness, pain and separation. However, those experiences made their bond even tighter, their love even stronger that no one could ever break it.

Thinking about all these, Davi thought that there really was no more reason for them to wait, but the night was already getting deeper.

"Darling... I think you were right. We should wait patiently. After all, patience is virtue, right? Hehe." Davi was trying her best to make Sei calm down. After all, this was her fault. Sei might have been holding back so much all this time so she shouldn't have provoked him. She didn't want to break any plans that Sei had for this so she must take responsibility and she didn't want him to rush things.

Upon hearing her, Sei silently looked at her for a moment but just as Davi thought that Sei finally changed his mind, the man spoke.

"I think we have both been patient enough. I've surpassed the very peak of my patience a long, long time ago." He replied.

"Err... then, we can do it tomorrow. I mean I don't want you to rush. It's really alright for me if you follow your own pace."

"This is my pace."

"..."

"Why? You don't want it to be like this?"

"No, it's not like that. It's just that, I thought it would be important for you to follow your original plan."

"Original plan?"

"Well, you didn't actually plan for us to get married the same night you proposed to me, right?"

"Mm. I know we must do things in the right order but... I changed my mind. I realized it's even harder for me to wait now."

As soon as these words left Sei's mouth, he suddenly bumped his forehead with Davi's. He looked like a hopeless little beast as he gazed in her eyes.

"I'm sorry. I'm really hopeless. I said to do it properly but here I am rushing like there's no tomorrow." He said in a weak voice.

Looking at him like this, hearing him speak like this was too priceless for Davi. Was he even aware that he looked so adorably cute when he was in this state?

Davi just didn't have the heart to even reason it out anymore. She didn't want him to rush but hearing his sincere words just now, even Davi just didn't care anymore. Besides, Sei was right, they've waited long enough. Since Sei didn't mind the rush, then why should she? After all, wasn't it more exciting this way? What she wanted was to have this man as soon as possible and be his wife again in whatever way so why bother postponing things when they both wished to do it now?

"Okay. I'm with you. Let's get married right away." Davi then declared and the hopeless creature immediately switched into his almighty self.

His eyes widened in surprise and overflowing happiness that he suddenly lifted Davi up and lovingly twirled her around in the air.

"Mm. Let's go and get married right away!" he said as he smiled from ear to ear.
