

ILY Monster 407

The entire hall went silent. It was as if a certain spirit passed by and no one spoke or moved for a long while. Every gossip's mouth was shut closed and their eyes went wide because of what they heard. Was this the reason why the great Chen Seiji appeared here tonight? Was this the reason why Miss Davi only came back now?

Everyone could only ask in their minds and just as they thought that this was indeed the greatest surprise for the night, the huge entrance doors once again opened and an old man entered.

Footsteps could be heard so one by one, the people slowly averted their gaze away from Sei and turned towards the door. Even old man Mizuhara was so surprised in seeing the person closing in on them that he too remained silent and unmoving.

The person that walked through the doors was someone that everyone in the room recognized immediately. It may have been years since the monarchy ruled this country but when he did rule, he was constantly under the public eye as part of his role. Therefore, even though it had been a long time since this face had graced the media and newspapers, there was no doubt in everyone's mind that the man standing before them was none other than the last king of Country J.

Just then, it was little Shin who immediately broke the silence first.

"Great grandpa, over here." He said and the entire crowd finally snapped out of their daze. Their eyes which were filled with shock were replaced with an even greater shock and disbelief. They looked like they just heard an earthshattering truth.

"T-that's the King.... The king came!"

"What's the meaning of this?"

"Why was Miss Davi's child calling the king his 'great grandfather'?"

"Don't tell me it's because... it's because this Chen Seiji is the king's grandson?!"

"Oh gosh! What the hell's this? This is way too unbelievable."

"Is this god our rumored mysterious prince whose existence was never confirmed?"

"So the existence of our prince is really real all along?"

"That's the only explanation to make all of this make sense." Please visit freewebnovel.com

"Oh my god, I actually can't believe this! I thought it was just a baseless rumor all these years!"

"You're not the only one. Every person of country J believed that the reason our king demolished the monarchy was because of the absence of an heir to the throne!"

"What's with all these surprises tonight? I can't process them all at once!"

While the people whispered to each other, old man Mizuhara finally moved and he quickly went and approached the king who finally stopped close to them.

"Oh my, Sire. You really caught me by surprise." Old man Mizuhara said but the former king simply laughed gracefully.

"That's good. I meant to surprise all of you here all along." He said and old man Mizuhara also joined him, as they both laughed like best friends who were separated and just met again after so many years.

"You're still a tease as usual, my king." Old man Mizuhara replied when the former king waved his hand.

"I'm just a former king now so drop the formalities and protocols. Anyway, I came here so I could accompany my grandson." The former king confirmed the obvious fact that was running around in everyone's mind at that very moment.

"My King, you mean, Mr. Chen is the prince?!" old man Mizuhara exclaimed and his extremely surprised look amused the former king even more.

"Yes, this man here is my flesh and blood. I apologize for hiding this from all to you but there were reasons for all these." The former king explained and everyone reverted their gazes back to Sei with wide eyes.
