

ILY Monster 482

Zaki blushed as Hinari caressed his cheek with her thumbs while sexily biting her lip. She looked like she was craving for the irresistibly delicious food before her.

Their faces were close enough that they both could feel the faint touch of each other's breaths.

When Hinari took a step forward, Zaki suddenly moved one step back. His action surprised Hinari and a mischievous and dangerous smile carved on her face.

"Beauty my love, why are you stepping backwards?" she asked. Her voice was sweeter than honey and more seductive than usual. Her eyes almost looked like it belonged to a nymph desiring to devour her man.

Hinari continued taking one slow step after another while Zaki kept stepping back. It almost looked like they were teasing and bewitching each other. The sound of their heartbeats, the soft noise of their footsteps and the rattle of the chain in their hands was like rhythm forming into music in their ears.

Everything started to disappear from their view. It was as if the only thing they could see at that moment was each other.

The moment Zaki's legs hit the couch in the middle of the huge living room, the rhythm halted. Both of them finally stopped moving. The expression on Hinari's face changed and blatantly showed him her victorious smile.

"Hehe, at long last, I finally cornered you my love. You can't escape anymore." She said and without any warning, she pushed Zaki and pinned him down on the couch. She straddled him as she placed her hands beside his ears.

Looking down at him, Hinari licked her lips. Seeing her beauty's flustered expression and blushing face at full view was so damn captivating and hot that she could only think about just kissing those beautiful lips of his.

Hinari slowly lowered her face to his. Her gaze was locked on his as the little fire between started spreading. However, just before her lips reached his, Zaki's hand suddenly covered Hinari's lips!

Hinari: ". . ."

Zaki quickly sat up.

Hinari, who was now sitting on his lap, creased her brows and before Zaki could open his mouth to speak, Hinari pushed her tongue out and she licked Zaki's palm, sending a powerful current through his nerves.

The blushing Zaki was stupefied as he subconsciously pulled his hand away from her mouth. But when he saw Hinari pouting at him, he finally snapped out of it and rested his hands below her ears.

"Hinari... a-are you sure about this? I mean... I..." Zaki was speaking so shyly his eyes began wandering all over the place. His expression was just too priceless that Hinari was so enticed she didn't do anything but watch him in that state and waited for the words he was trying so hard to say. "This is not about me minding about the traditional process or whatever but... I just want to know if... if you truly... if this is really fine with you."

Somehow, the words that left Zaki's mouth made Hinari speechless. She blinked multiple times as she tried forcing her lagging brain to process the meaning of his words as quick as she could.

"What I mean is... if this is truly what you want and not just because we happen to be left alone tonight. If... you wish to do this after the wedding, please tell me. Don't worry, I can still endure... I just want to treat you right the best I can. I want to give all my respect to your wishes over my desire. So I want you to tell me if... if you truly are serious about what you said, that you are going to..." Zaki looked like his face was overheating and was about to explode.

The next moment, he buried his face on the nook of Hinari's shoulder before he continued. "...d-devour me tonight."

The moment she heard the rest of his words, invisible blood started gushing out of Hinari's nose. My goodness! Why is this man of mine like this?!!! Beauty, have mercy on my poor heart!!

Awestruck, Hinari raised her hand and embraced Zaki, as she caressed his head gently as ever. She couldn't believe that this side of Zaki could level up to this extreme and he didn't even have any idea about how lethal it was. Moreover, her Zaki saying these kinds of words was just... Ahh, I feel like I could even die happily now!!

"Sorry, I sounded like I was teasing again and made you confused." Hinari finally spoke. She dropped all her seductive antics. It was almost as if Hinari had finally removed all her outer garments and was now completely naked before him. The mischievous look in her eyes and seduction in her voice disappeared into thin air.

At that moment, she was not the mischievous Hinari, nor the perverted Hinari and seductive Hinari. It was as though those sides of her have left her body for the time being and she now became simply Hinari.

This little change of course didn't escape Zaki's notice so he pulled away and looked at her. As soon as their eyes met, Hinari smiled at him and she bumped her forehead to his.

"Zaki... honestly, I'm not even thinking about anything else right now. It might be strange but I am not really thinking about our wedding or anything else. Of course, I want to marry you and become your wife as soon as possible. But right now, at this moment, I just want to think about nothing but you. I just want to stay with you without holding back. I just want to give you all of me, not tomorrow but now. I just don't want to wait anymore, even for just a minute." As those words reached Zaki's ears, he felt his chest warming up at lightning speed as his heartbeat drummed into chaos. Her words were like tons of gasoline being poured over the fire inside him, creating a furnace that was impossible to kill.

He was completely dumbfounded. No words could describe the impact of those words had on him. No word could even describe how he felt at that moment that all he did was yank her and wrapped her tightly in his arms.

"Thank you for letting me hear what you really feel. Hinari, I am all yours already. All of me is yours, now until forever. I'm sorry for making you wait for too long. I promise, I will never make you wait anymore, not a second longer."

Hinari almost teared up when she heard him.

However, it looked like those unruly sides of her had already reached their limit and returned without her even knowing. After all, she couldn't possibly get rid of them because they were a part of her and they already became one of the pieces that made up the whole piece of her complete self.

"That's right, Zaki my love. You are mine. All of you are mine now! You belong to me now and forever!!" she exclaimed before slightly pulling away to look at his face.

When their eyes met, Hinari's lips curved up with a mischievous smile.

"Beauty, you said a while ago that you can still endure. But... Did you actually not realize that you're already... ahem... this hard since I pinned you down? Are you really not aware that you've been hitting me down there for quite a while now?"