

ILY Monster 493

The arrival of Zaki and Hinari was like a celebrity power couple walking on the most prestigious red carpet. Cameras started flashing like endless little lightning flashes. The camera men didn't even know why they reacted that way even though they absolutely had no idea who this couple was. They were meant to wait for the second son, whose name or face they didn't even know, and yet here they were completely captivated by the breathtaking appearance of this pair. The woman was dressed in gorgeous navy blue gown, which hugged her undeniably perfect curves. She wore an off-the-shoulder dress with a low neckline. The dress had a split a few inches above her right thigh which went all the way down her dress, which showed off her long, slender, leg and as she walked, the back of her dress trailed along behind her. She was like a super model on the runway oozing with sexiness. The men present in the event couldn't take their eyes off her, obviously mesmerized by her with one look.

The man beside her was also so damn good looking that words weren't even enough to describe him. People couldn't help but compare him to Sei, the most gorgeous man around, and they found that Zaki had a completely different type of look. If Sei was the definition of gorgeous, then this man would be the definition of beauty. He was that type of pretty man even women would envy. He wore a navy blue suit with a light blue tie, which complemented with partner's dress. The suit was definitely tailored to his body as it showed off his biceps and strong legs. He looked like a Casanova ready to steal all the ladies' hearts.

"My goodness! Who are they? Who are these god and goddess? I can't remember seeing their faces anywhere in the entertainment industry! Are they some new stars?"

"I don't think so. I know all the emerging stars so I am very sure they're not from the entertainment industry."

"Then where did they come from? How could such extremely good looking people like them not be popular?"

"That's right. Where could they be hiding all this time? Not to mention, that lady might even be on par with the current reigning top model! She's so damn hot and sexy!! Look at those curves! Damn! If she's a celebrity, i'll definitely stan her!"

"Don't forget about that man! Look at his face! I could even declare that the nation's most handsome celebrity can't even compare to him! He's too much for words!! I bet the ladies who were still broken hearted when Mr. Sei got married will go crazy again when they see this man."

"Right, right! He's definitely the real definition of pretty man. He's too damn beautiful damn it! But don't you think he's already taken? Look at them their obviously a couple and their combination is damn deadly."

"Now that you mention it."

As the reporters and camera men murmured within themselves, Hinari and Zaki were actually quite surprised. They had no idea what was going on.

Looking at all this lavishness, the high profile personalities and the presence of the media, Zaki could already tell this was purely Sei's doing. After all, nobody else could invite all these people to such an event. Sei... what are you planning to do? Why are all these people here? Did you invite them just so you have a reason to tighten the security?

Zaki couldn't tell what Sei's purpose was. If this was just for the sake of his security, inviting the president alone would be enough. What was the point of inviting even these international business tycoons as well?

As Zaki gave up thinking about the answer, Hinari's grip on him tightened. He looked at her and when he saw the questioning look in her eyes, he simply smiled.

"Don't worry. I think my brother is planning something. I believe this is all about me." He said and Hinari finally relaxed as well. It wasn't just because of his words but somehow, she felt like what Zaki was actually telling her was to stay calm and just trust his big brother, a thought that surprisingly gave the two of them their fearless demeanor as they approached the group of powerful people ahead of them.

At the front, when Sei saw Zaki walking closer, he again spoke, garnering the every bit of attention back to him.

He first started with a few words, extending his gratitude to the special guests for clearing their busy schedule to attend this special event. Afterwards, his eyes then fell on Zaki before finally introducing him.

"Well, it's about time you all meet the man of the hour! Ladies and gentlemen, let me introduce the birthday boy and my younger brother, Zaki." He said and as Zaki walked towards him, a gasp from the ladies could be heard before a warm applause.
