

ILY Monster 97

In the master's bedroom.

Sei just entered the room when he noticed that his wife was already fast asleep. He walked slowly towards the bed and he just stood there watching her peaceful face. After a long while, he then quietly sat at the edge of the bed while his gaze never left her.

That moment, Sei lifted his hand but before he could touch her face, he stopped midway. He shifted his gaze away and he stared at the lamp beside the bed.

After that, he finally laid beside her and he stared at the ceiling for a while. He then let go a quiet deep breath and turned his body to switch off the lamp. However, just right after he reached out his hand, a warm hand suddenly scooped him. She wrapped him in her arm from behind, and her face was almost buried in his neck that he could feel her warm breaths touching his skin. That moment, Sei immediately stiffened and he couldn't even turn.

Sei remained motionless until moments went by and he finally able to relax. Her warm gentle arm was like an angel's hand soothing him. Making him felt an unbelievable feeling of peacefulness and warmth.

However, the longer he stayed in her embrace, the longer he felt her warm breaths touching his skin, Sei felt like the temperature of his body was getting hotter.

The next morning, Davi was surprised when she woke up without Sei by her side. That moment, the first thing that appeared in her head was that, he might be leaving again. Thus, thinking that he might not left yet, she immediately rushed outside the room and walked down the stairs.

However, when she reached the last step of the stair, she paused and she felt relieved the moment she saw the masked man sitting on the couch and sipping a coffee.

"Oh, young miss. You're already awake. The breakfast is ready," the butler who just came from the dining room spoke and the masked man also turned his head.

"Good morning butler Gou," Davi immediately replied with a wide smile.

That moment, Sei walked closer to her.

"Good morning Sei," she greeted him with another bright smile. However, Sei didn't talk back. Instead, he landed his hand in her hair, and he began to caress it as if he was trying to fix some unruly hair strands. Causing Davi to finally snapped. She turned red when she realized she just ran downstairs without even combing her hair or looking at the mirror.

"I'm sorry... I won't take long." She said and she ran back upstairs like flash, leaving Sei speechless.

"She doesn't really need to get embarrassed though. She looks adorable even when she just woke up, right Sei?" Zaki's voice suddenly popped out of nowhere, causing Sei to turn his head towards him.

"Mm. You're right," he replied and Zaki immediately smiled widely.

"Well, Davi really is so cute. She's a real beaut---" Zaki couldn't continue his statement. It was because a certain deadly sharp glare was immediately pointed at him, as if giving him a warning.
