

Chapter 16 - A Moment in Destiny

AVL was the top female international company that focused on top clothing brands. The designers who worked under the company were world-class standards.

Their design concepts were always at the forefront of clothing brands. At the same time, the AVL had just set off wave after wave of climax in the world apparel week.

A businesswoman who was about 27 years old with his assistant came in. She had a neat short hair, light makeup with a pair of picky eyes. She nodded her head and directly sat in the designated seat. "Mr. Rowland, please begin!"

William nodded.

It was her... Susan Gill. An internationally renowned fashion designer, no wonder her eyes were so picky. She turned out to be the ace designer of AVL.

"Ms. Gill, if there is anything related to AVL, please allow Ms. Murray to handle it!"

"Ms. Murray?" Susan was stunned for a moment as she looked at Sherry.

Sherry and Liam were stunned too as they did not understand what William meant.

"Mr. Rowland, if I'm not wrong, you seem to have send me a newcomer who just joined the company as a partner, I believe this is not appropriate right?"

"She has the ability!" William raised his head as he held her hands and looked at Susan. "Doesn't Ms. Gill trust my decision?"

Susan narrowed her eyes at William for a while. "Fine! Ms. Murray, this is a newly released design. I hope that Ms. Murray could give some feedbacks!"

Susan took out a picture from the file and showed it to Sherry.

It was her latest design that everyone knew but Sherry was not a fashion enthusiast. Fortunately, she happened to see the design in the press conference but no one knew that it was a defective product.

On that day, she was joking with Dan in the plaza as they saw the waist design of this dress was not delicate enough on the big screen!

"This is a defective product!" Sherry said confidently.

"Oh?!" Susan was surprised.

Asides from her unique vision, Sherry's professionalism did not just surprise Susan while William was speechless as he never thought that she was such a professional.

Liam was muttering inside. Didn't she come from financial background? If she knew so well about clothing, why did she wear so old- fashioned?

"Mr. Rowland, I agree to work with Ms. Murray!"

Sherry was stunned for a moment and smiled. No wonder Susan was the designer of AVL as she did not care when someone commented her defective product. She was never being arrogant about her talent and yet maintained a professional standard and fair evaluation.

"Sherry, Mr. Rowland actually made you responsible for the cooperation with AVL!" Alice was envy and jealous. "I'm so jealous of you!"

Sherry smiled gently. The Rowland Group and AVL have always been in a cooperation relationship. At the same time, the Rowland Group had 30% shares of AVL. This upcoming winter series clothing was their cooperation project. Sherry did not understand the reason that William handled this responsibility to herself. This should be handled by the department manager!

In the office, William was sitting on the sofa while folding his legs. He unbuttoned the first two buttons of his suit as it revealed his muscular chest. A few hair strands covered his handsome face while his eyelashes covered his eyelids.

Lara coyly asked, "William..."

"Yes?" The soft yet charming male voice made her heart tremble.

"William, you bad, you know that I haven't seen you for a few days and you didn't come to see me after you came back last week!" Her hand slowly reached on William's muscular chest while she started teasing.

Sherry did not understand why William would give such a difficult task to her. She wanted to resign and asked someone else to do. She worried that she might not be able to do it and caused losses to the company.

She sighed as she was in a deep thought. She pushed the door as she was rushing. "Mr. Rowland, regarding the cooperation with AVL..."

William and Lara were kissing on the sofa as they quickly separated because of the sudden voice. Sherry was embarrassed for a moment. Fortunately, it was just kissing. If it was the next step, it would be a sin for her to interrupt her like this.

She swallowed her saliva awkwardly and blushed. She quickly apologized. "I'm so sorry, please continue."
