Jennifer looked at Vicky. "Vicky, I can give you the perfume if you need it. However, if the person you're looking for doesn't appear around you or the people you know, it won't work. I suppose you can use this to confirm if it's someone you know, at the very least."

Vicky nodded in agreement, believing it was an effective solution.

That night, Vicky returned home with the perfume, and as soon as she changed into her slippers, she spotted the man sitting on the couch in the living room.

He sat elegantly with his eyes on his phone, and Vicky narrowed her eyes when she glanced at his phone because it was the one he usually used.

She walked over to him. "Why are you back?"

He gazed up at her without a sign of abnormality in his expression. "Am I not welcomed here?"

"You are." Vicky avoided all the questions she wanted to ask but would never get the answers for.

"Have you eaten?"

"No."

"I'll get Nanny Paterson to start preparing dinner, then."

"Sure."

40 minutes later, dinner was ready, and the two proceeded to dine together.

After dinner, Tyler headed into the study to work before returning to the bedroom at ten.

Vicky was slightly taken by shock when she saw him walking into the bedroom and thought to herself, 'I thought he'd be sleeping in a different room. Why did he come back to our room tonight?'

Tyler's expression darkened at the sight of the surprise on her face. "Don't you want me to sleep in this room?"

"I'm not thinking that.' She walked toward the bathroom. "I'll shower now."

Tyler had already showered in a different bathroom and sat in bed while staring at his phone.
