Loving You In Secret Chapter 1181-“There are no issues with the incoming and outgoing transactions in my bank account, so why is there an anomaly?” Vicky asked.

“There can be many reasons for anomalies: Frequent spending within the same time frame, transactions occurring when you haven’t made any purchases, or your account being targeted by criminals with your personal information being compromised,” the bank teller patiently explained. “To ensure the security of our customer’s assets, the system automatically locks risky accounts. Miss Shaw, you don’t have to worry. Once the risk is resolved, we will inform you via phone call.”

Vicky often received scam calls and harassing messages, and she thought that her account information might have been compromised, so she had no choice but to freeze that particular card.

Fortunately, she never put all her eggs in one basket and had other bank cards she could use.

To her surprise, when she tried using her other bank cards, she found that they were all frozen, including her credit cards. Even the spare change stored in her mobile phone application was flagged as a risk and could not be used.

At this point, even a fool could tell what was happening, and Vicky realized that someone was deliberately targeting her. Not needing to think too hard about it, she knew this was all Tyler. No one else had the power to do such a thing.

Vicky could not believe that Tyler would go to such lengths to haunt her. Setting aside the truth of whether or not she plotted against him, she could never force him into doing anything even if she wanted to, yet he had taken advantage of her and wanted to eliminate her!

Sitting in front of the computer, Vicky took several deep breaths to calm herself.

She could no longer rest at home, but she could not go to work either because it would inevitably drag the innocent companies into the mess.

After much contemplation, Vicky decided to work from home and sell her fashion design sketches.

Selling the design sketches meant giving up ownership, and she would not be associated with the designs anymore.

Even if the other party used the sketches and won awards with them, they would have nothing to do with her.

Not many people would be willing to treat their creations in such a way except for some new designers, but Vicky had no other choice. She did not have much cash left, and if she did not start earning money soon, she would starve.

Vicky's design sketches were unique, and shortly after putting them up online, someone contacted her and asked for more details.

After exchanging numbers, Vicky sent a few more conceptual sketches to the person. Without much consideration, they immediately decided to purchase them." I'll take this design sketch. I'll transfer the money to you shortly."

Vicky was thrilled. "Great."

Half an hour later, there was no further update, and just as Vicky was about to ask her client about it, she received another text message.

[Miss Shaw, I'm sorry, but I'm afraid I won't be able to purchase your design.]

[Why?] Vicky replied.

The client seemed unwilling to disclose too much detail. [Something unexpected happened. I'm really sorry.]

Vicky was disappointed but replied regardless. [That's alright.]

She thought she could always sell her designs to others, but for some reason, the people who had confirmed their purchase had all canceled their orders afterward.

Since then, she stopped receiving inquiries altogether.

Loving You In Secret Chapter 1182-There was a client who once expressed interest in her design and was kind enough to inform her of the truth when he saw that Vicky was in desperate need of money.

“Miss Shaw, you might as well stop trying. No one will dare to buy anything from you.”

Vicky jolted slightly in shock and asked, “What do you mean? It

The person only said, “Think carefully. Have you wronged someone lately?”

Vicky fell into silence.

She clenched her fists, and her chest heaved as she thought, ‘It’s Tyler Hart. How dare he?! He’s crossed the line!’

Unable to suppress her anger any longer, Vicky dialed the one number she remembered by heart, trembling.

The phone rang a few times before someone answered.

“What’s the matter?” Tyler’s voice was deep and cold, devoid of any emotion as if he anticipated that she would call him.

“Tyler Hart, you’ve gone too far!”

Upon hearing the woman’s angry and hurried breath, Tyler chuckled. “You sound very angry.”

“What happened is already in the past. You’ve had your revenge... Tyler Hart, what else do you want? Do you have to annihilate me?”

“In the past?” Tyler’s tone darkened. “Vicky, does everything in your world pass by this quickly?”

Vicky failed to grasp the deeper meaning behind his words and angrily retorted, “What else can we do? Do you want to hold grudges forever? If you have the ability and time, why don’t you investigate what really happened that night? Are your mighty skills only meant to be used against women?”

Tyler did not back down in response to Vicky’s patience, but instead, it made him more relentless.

Anger caused Vicky to lose her rationality, and she continued coldly, “You’re too petty, childish, and foolish for a CEO of a respectable company. I must’ve been blind to get involved with scum like you to begin with! It seems breaking up with you was the best decision I’ve ever made in my life!”

As soon as her words fell, silence followed.

Even though they were on the phone, Vicky felt a chill down her spine and snapped out of her hysterical state.

She realized that everything was in the past, and bringing them up again would serve no purpose other than inflicting more harm on each other.

Just when Vicky thought Tyler would continue to make harsh remarks, he abruptly hung up the phone.

Since selling design sketches online did not work, Vicky had to go out looking for a job. This time, she decided not to apply for designer positions at large companies and instead sought relatively inconspicuous jobs that paid daily in cash, such as distributing flyers, temporary work, or waitressing.

By changing jobs every day, Tyler would not have the chance to sabotage her before she left, and it worked out perfectly.

To save the little cash she had left, Vicky decided to walk instead of taking transportation.

One day, as she passed by a small alley, she suddenly saw an elderly lady fall to the ground. People were coming and going, but no one stepped forward to help.

Vicky hurriedly walked over and helped the old lady to her feet.

Loving You In Secret Chapter 1183-“Are you okay, ma’am?” “Ouch, it hurts...” The old lady groaned while holding onto Vicky’s hand. “Young girl, I think you broke my bones.”

Vicky was taken aback. “Ma’am, it wasn’t me who bumped into you...”

As soon as the old lady heard that, her expression changed, and she instantly raised her voice. “Help! Someone, come quickly! This girl knocked me down and refuses to admit it!”

As the crowd gathered, they started discussing the situation.

“The younger generation these days is becoming more unruly!”

“Look at how badly she injured the old lady’s knees...”

“You can’t get away with this, young lady. If you knock an old person down, you have to take responsibility.”

Vicky, who grew up in a wealthy family and later studied abroad, had never encountered such a situation before. At that time, she did not even know this was a whole scam.

She hurriedly explained, “I didn’t bump into her. She fell on her own, and I just went to help her...”

The old lady confidently interrupted her, “If you didn’t knock me down, why did you come forward to assist me?”

“I was just-“

“You’re trying to deny it after hitting me?” The old lady suddenly sat on the ground and wailed, “Why, oh why, are young people so indifferent these days? After knocking someone down, they still shirk responsibility! I’m already old, yet I have to suffer such cruelty! I’d rather die... Let me die...”

Vicky looked at the old lady sitting on the ground, feeling somewhat at a loss. When she was in Molivia, she also helped elderly people who accidentally fell, and they usually expressed gratitude. Hence, she never encountered a situation where her kindness in helping someone would be used against her.

Onlookers chimed in.

“Young lady, it’s not the time to argue about who’s right or wrong. The old lady is injured now, so you should quickly take her to the hospital for an examination.”

“Yes, that’s right. If the treatment is delayed due to your dispute, you’ll bear an even greater responsibility.”

“You should take the old lady to the hospital now. We’ll report it to the police, and they can review the surveillance footage later to reveal the truth.”

The old lady did indeed sustain some injuries, so Vicky had no choice but to take her to the hospital. After arriving, the old lady complained of pain all over her body, leading to a comprehensive examination.

Vicky had less than two thousand dollars left and spent it all on the medical fee.

In the end, the doctor diagnosed a sprained foot, which was hardly severe, but it would take three months for her to walk again considering the old lady's age.

At that moment, the old lady's family arrived. After hearing about the old lady's situation, they approached Vicky and said, "Give us fifteen thousand dollars, or we'll pursue this matter further!"

Vicky did not expect the old lady's family to be so unreasonable and was instantly enraged. "I didn't bump into her. I simply helped her out of goodwill. Furthermore, I even paid for her medical expenses..."

The old lady was unreasonable, and her family was even more so.

One of the family members interrupted Vicky. "Fifteen thousand dollars-not a penny less-or we'll follow you forever!" Not bothered by all the eyes on them, the person continued to yell, "Look at this! This woman bumped into my old lady and won't take responsibility for it! How cruel!"

The crowd gathered once again and started pointing blame at Vicky.

"She has such a pretty face yet has a merciless heart. What a waste."

"Just look at how she's dressed. I'm pretty sure she has the money... Why would she refuse to pay?"

"Don't you know? Rich people tend to be selfish."

"Let's take videos of her and upload them onto the internet to show others what rich people are like!"

Everyone started grabbing their phones and filming Vicky.

Loving You In Secret Chapter 1184-Vicky instinctively argued, "I didn't bump into her..."

Before she could explain herself, the crowd's overwhelming voices interrupted her.

“If you didn’t bump into her, why would you help her up and send her to a hospital? You’re lying through your teeth!”

“Expose her! We’ll see how stubborn she can be!”

The old lady and her family continued to scream, drawing the attention of almost every person in the hospital.

In the end, the hospital director came over and reminded them, “Everyone, this is a hospital with a lot of patients around. Please refrain from causing a disturbance.”

The old lady’s family grabbed onto the director. “Doctor, please help us. My old lady has been harmed, and this woman here is trying to get away. How can we let this pass?”

“I didn’t bump into her!” Vicky repeated coldly.

“Countless people witnessed it. How dare you deny it?!”

The doctor was also frustrated by the arguing and suggested, “Since both parties insist on their version of events, why not report it to the police and let them handle it? Once the surveillance footage is reviewed, the truth will come to light.”

The family members showed no guilt and sneered. “Go ahead and report it to the police. We’re not afraid of that! When we get to the police station, let’s see how you can defend yourself!”

The group of people arrived at the police station, continuing their commotion.

After learning about the situation, the police quickly retrieved the surveillance footage from the incident location, only to return and said, “Sorry, there is no surveillance footage at the scene of the incident.”

No surveillance footage meant that it would be impossible to determine the truth of the matter, and the old lady’s family members became even more agitated. “Our old lady was knocked down by this woman! Even without surveillance video, there are eyewitnesses! Bring a few eyewitnesses here, and the truth will be revealed, right?”

As a result, the police found several eyewitnesses from the scene of the incident.

Vicky's memory was relatively good, and she recognized the eyewitnesses that the police had brought in. They had indeed been present at the scene.

"Were you all present when the old lady fell?" the police officer asked.

"We were there. We stayed until the incident was over."

"Do you know how the old lady fell?"

All of them turned to look at Vicky. "She was knocked down by that girl."

"Did you witness her knocking the old lady down?"

"When the old lady fell, she was right next to her. Who else could it be?"

Vicky took a few steps forward. "Just because I was next to the old lady doesn't mean I knocked her down. Are you certain that you saw me knock her down?"

Hearing Vicky's words, a hesitant expression appeared on the faces of the individuals, and Vicky was relieved that they did not seem certain as well.

At that moment, a middle-aged woman suddenly spoke up, "It was her! I saw her knock the old lady down. She wasn't trying to help the old lady after the collision; she wanted to escape. The old lady grabbed onto her, forcing her to reluctantly assist!"

The police officers exchanged glances and asked, "Since you claim to have seen this young lady knock down the old lady, can you explain to us how she did it?"

"Of course."

In front of everyone, the middle-aged woman vividly recounted the sequence of events.

Vicky initially paid little attention, but as she listened to the woman's speech, her expression grew increasingly grim.

Loving You In Secret Chapter 1185-Upon arriving at the police station, the police questioned the old lady about the incident, and Vicky listened from the side.

To her bewilderment, the middle-aged woman's account aligned perfectly with what the old lady described.

At this moment, Vicky could not find any evidence to prove her innocence, yet the testimonies of the eyewitnesses and the old lady matched up.

The old lady's family members became even more arrogant. "Medical expenses, nutrition fees, nursing fees, and compensation for emotional distress... You're paying us a total of fifteen thousand dollars, not a penny less!"

The police pondered for a moment and said to Vicky, "A compensation of fifteen thousand dollars is quite substantial, but considering the old lady's age, it's only right to offer some compensation. How about a settlement of seven thousand five hundred dollars instead? We'll then consider the matter resolved."

Vicky could not even produce 50 dollars at the moment. The money she had left had all been spent on the old lady's medical examination and treatment. Not only did her kindness go unacknowledged, but she was also forced to compensate the old lady with 7500 dollars!

Vicky tensed. "I don't have the money."

This only angered the old lady's family members. They pointed at Vicky and said, "If you don't compensate us today, we'll follow you home and cause a scene at your place so that your neighbors see what kind of woman you are! We're willing to accept a private settlement for compensation, seeing how young you are. If you play hardball, be prepared to be detained!"

An older police officer pulled Vicky to the side and earnestly advised her, "Ms. Shaw, I understand that there may be hidden factors in this case, but based on the evidence we currently have... Even if it goes to court, you won't win and may end up having to compensate even more."

Vicky looked at the older police officer. "Do... Do you believe me?"

The older police officer nodded and sighed softly. "I've seen too many cases like this. One can tell this family is an expert at scamming people. They only pick their targets around areas with damaged or uninstalled surveillance cameras. Even if they're exposed or discovered, they're not afraid because the old lady is elderly, and no one would hurt her. If you come across a situation like this in the future, make sure to record a video as evidence. In this case... It's best to settle it peacefully. Otherwise, they might cause trouble at your home. Consider it as spending money to learn a valuable lesson."

A few thousand dollars would not have been considered much to Vicky in the past, but given her current situation, she was powerless as she could not even produce a single penny.

Vicky bowed. "I'm experiencing some difficulties lately. I'm afraid I won't be able to pay that much..."

"Can you reach out to your family and friends?"

All her family and friends were overseas, and it was at this moment that Vicky realized she had no one she could reach out to for help.

Just as she fell into despair, a woman's voice rose in the air. "Ms. Shaw, why are you here?"

Vicky looked up and saw a familiar face. "Miss Jandrell?"

It was none other than the assistant of the mysterious man who helped Vicky when she was bullied by a few high-born ladies in the past. Vicky did not know her full name and only knew that her surname was Jandrell.

The woman glanced around and asked in shock, "Ms. Shaw, how did you end up in the police station? Did something happen?"

Since Vicky seemed to know this woman, the police officer proceeded to explain the situation.

Loving You In Secret Chapter 1186-"I see." The woman smiled. "It's just seven thousand five hundred, right?"

The police officer nodded. "Yes."

The woman's smile was reassuring as she declared, "Let me handle this."

Half an hour later, Vicky stepped out of the police station with the woman. “Miss Jandrell, thank you for paying on my behalf,” she spoke. “I will pay you back.”

The woman did not refuse her offer and said, “I’m not in urgent need of that money, so you can pay me back whenever you want.”

Vicky studied her face and asked, “Miss Jandrell, are you here on purpose to help me?”

The smile on the woman’s face froze, and she feigned confusion. “What?”

“You came here for me, didn’t you, Miss Jandrell?” Vicky stared into her eyes. “It’s far too much of a coincidence if you keep appearing before me whenever I need help.”

She could consider it a coincidence for being helped once or twice, but this was the third time.

Seeing through Vicky’s thoughts, the woman softly sighed and confessed, “Yes, I was specifically sent for you, Ms. Shaw. My employer learned that you needed help, so he sent me to assist you.”

Vicky’s expression darkened slightly. “Do I know this gentleman?”

The woman shook her head. “I’m sorry. I’m not sure about that either. I am simply following his orders to carry out the task. If you have any questions, it’d be best to ask him.”

After returning home, Vicky found the business card she received before. After hesitating for a few seconds, she decided to make the call.

The waiting sound seemed to stretch indefinitely. However, the call was eventually met with a dial tone, indicating that it had been hung up, which was later followed by a text message to Vicky’s phone.

[Do you need something?]

Thinking that the person might not be able to answer calls, Vicky replied with a text. [Thank you for helping me again. I’ll pay the money you lent me as soon as possible.]

After about 20 minutes, a reply finally came. [You're being targeted. You won't be able to work normally for a while.

This money means nothing to me, so you don't need to worry about it.]

Vicky's fingers hesitated. [How do you know about my situation?]

[Is that strange?]

[Why are you helping me?] She added.

[I have my reasons for doing so. Don't worry; I'm not a do-gooder who likes to help others.]

[What's your purpose in helping me, then?]

After a long pause, a response finally came from the other side. [I can't tell you that for now. However, you don't have to worry-I won't force you to do anything and I won't harm you]

Vicky looked at the message in front of her and was momentarily lost in thought.

In response to her prolonged silence, another message came through. [Ms. Shaw, considering your current situation, you should be well aware that a dead end awaits you.]

Vicky's fingers tightened around her phone until her knuckles turned pale.

Tyler was closing in, and without the support of the Shaw family and Harvey, she had no room to resist and was left to be at the mercy of others.

Vicky had to admit that she was in a desperate state and resented Tyler for putting her in such a position.

'I'm at the end of my rope, so what else do I have to lose?' she thought.

With this in mind, Vicky replied. [Can you help me, sir?]

[Of course.]

[What do you want me to do?] She typed.

Loving You In Secret Chapter 1187-The person did not answer her question directly and instead asked, [Have you ever thought of marrying Tyler?]

Vicky jolted, dumbfounded by the suggestion. [Never.]

There was another long pause until over half an hour later when the person replied. [Do you want to marry him?]

Vicky firmly replied. [No.]

[Why not?]

Vicky did not want to mention her past with Tyler and simply explained, [Tyler considers me his enemy. If I marry him, I will die a horrible death.]

[The Shaws have gone bankrupt and moved away. Harvey Sparks was in prison and is no longer in Stoneford City. You have no one to rely on. Forget Tyler-you can't even defend yourself from other bullies. Are you willing to keep living like this?] The person continued.

Vicky's gaze flickered as she did not want to continue living such a pathetic life, but as the mysterious man said, she was helpless and could not defend herself.

Just then, the person sent another message. [By becoming Missus Hart, you won't have to live like this anymore, nor will you be subjected to others' humiliations. Tyler won't be able to harm you to the extreme as well. For you, it's undoubtedly the most suitable choice at the moment.] Vicky instinctively refused the idea. [He already has a girlfriend, and they're about to get married.]

[So you want them to live happily ever after while you suffer?]

[I disgust him. He won't marry me, and one can never force love.] Vicky replied.

[He treated you unjustly, yet you still want to consider his well-being?]

Vicky fell silent.

Tyler had gone too far, and it would be foolish to forgive and accept him.

The mysterious man seemed to sense her reluctance and gently persuaded her. [Don't you want to let him know that you're not someone he can treat as he pleases? Don't you want to take control of your destiny?]

The man's words struck a chord within Vicky's heart. Ever since the incident with Gloria, she had been treated like a puppet. He would glance at her when he was in a good mood, but when he was in a bad mood, he would abandon her or even try to destroy her. Her tolerance had long reached its limit. He ruined her job and her life, yet it seemed he had no intention of stopping.

'Since he treated me heartlessly, why should I cherish our memories?' she thought.

Vicky gritted her teeth. [What should I do?]

[Go to the hospital tomorrow.]

Vicky was puzzled. [The hospital? Why do I need to go to the hospital?]

[I will make the arrangements for you. You'll find out when you get there.]

Vicky was still confused but refrained from asking further questions.

The next day, as per the mysterious person's instructions, Vicky went to the hospital early in the morning.

The nurse had been arranged in advance by the mysterious person to politely draw blood from Vicky and asked her to wait outside.

Vicky did not know why the nurse had drawn her blood and waited dazedly, wondering if there was something melodramatic about her background that she did not know of, when a familiar voice suddenly reached her ears.

"Tyler, I was just suffering from low blood sugar and fainted. It's nothing serious. There's no need to come to the hospital for a check-up."

"No, I insist." A man's pleasant, melodious voice rose. "Get checked. I won't be at ease otherwise."

"Tyler, you're making a big fuss over nothing." The woman's voice sounded resigned but joyful at the same time.

Vicky lifted her head and paled when she saw two figures approaching with elegance and grace.

Loving You In Secret Chapter 1188-It was Sheila and Tyler.

Vicky felt a chill down her spine at the sight of those two and regretted agreeing to the mysterious man's plan.

She had been targeted by Tyler and was scammed, so she agreed on impulse. However, the sight of Tyler caused her to back down. She experienced first-hand just how crazy Tyler could be, and scheming against him would only end badly for her.

Sensing Vicky's gaze, Sheila looked up and narrowed her eyes at Vicky. "Ms. Shaw?"

Vicky stood up and greeted her with a cold and distant tone. "Miss Young."

After the previous incident, Vicky and Sheila had not seen each other again, so it seemed somewhat awkward to run into one another again.

Vicky kept her eyes lowered, avoiding Sheila's gaze as Sheila's gentle voice rang. "Are you also unwell, Ms. Shaw?"

"Nothing serious, I just came for a check-up," Vicky mumbled.

She did not understand why the mysterious man asked her to come to the hospital and thought, 'Can it be just to orchestrate an encounter between me, Sheila, and Tyler?'

"If that's the case, I won't take up any more of your time, Ms.

Shaw."

Vicky nodded. "Please carry on with your matter, Miss Young."

Throughout the entire encounter, Tyler did not utter a word.

Vicky kept her head lowered, avoiding looking at him. However, she could clearly sense the chilling gaze he cast upon her.

Their footsteps faded as Sheila and Tyler gradually moved farther from her.

Taking a moment to calm her racing heart, Vicky took out her phone and sent a message to the mysterious man, wanting to let him know that she changed her mind.

She knew the extent of her capabilities and what she was truly worth.

In terms of scheming and forming tactics, or the resources at her disposal, she was no match for Tyler. She could not possibly win against him.

Vicky composed a message and sent it. [Sir, I apologize. Regarding your proposal yesterday, I would like to reconsider.]

Soon, she received a reply. The mysterious person sensed her hesitation and asked frankly, [Do you regret it?]

Vicky felt guilty for her sudden change of heart and replied, [Tyler isn't someone who can be easily manipulated. I think... it'd be better to carefully consider this matter.]

There was a long silence from the other side and Vicky felt even more remorseful, so she sent another message. [Sir, I'm truly sorry for changing my mind. I apologize for not carefully considering and blindly agreeing to your proposal. Thank you for your assistance so far, and I will remember what you've done for me. If there's anything I can do to help in the future, I will not hesitate.]

There was still no reply for a long time.

Just as Vicky considered calling and apologizing, a voice on the broadcast called her name, interrupting her thoughts.

"Ms. Shaw, please come to the first floor to collect your test report."

Vicky put her phone away and went to the first floor to collect her test report.

When she received the report, Vicky curiously flipped it open and froze when she read the content, realizing that it was a pregnancy report.

Loving You In Secret Chapter 1189-The report stated clearly that she was pregnant, and Vicky was stunned for a moment.

She did find herself in bed with Tyler one night, but she remembered that she was on her safe days at the time, so she could not be pregnant.

Vicky started to suspect that the mysterious man sent her to the hospital for this.

She thought back to the nurse who took her blood and headed up the stairs to ask the nurse about the report. Alas, she failed to locate her and started to feel anxious as if anything was possible.

She had not gotten her period for the month, and there was a slight chance that she was pregnant.

Unable to find the nurse, Vicky cast her hesitation aside and called the mysterious man.

The phone rang for a long while, but Vicky grew increasingly nervous as no response was given.

Just then, Sheila, who had just finished her examination, walked out of the room. As she opened the door, she said, "See? I told you there's nothing wrong, but you just won't believe me..."

After stepping out of the room, Sheila noticed Vicky's panicked expression.

Vicky seemed preoccupied with her thoughts and was unaware of Sheila approaching her.

"Ms. Shaw, what's wrong?" Sheila asked.

Startled by Sheila's voice, Vicky lifted her head and saw two familiar faces. Her heart raced, and she instinctively hid the pregnancy report behind her back. "I'm fine..."

Vicky hardly looked fine.

Sheila noticed Vicky's pale complexion and the panicked look in her eyes, so she asked out of concern, "Ms. Shaw, are you feeling unwell?"

"... No."

Vicky's words lacked conviction.

Sheila, who only asked out of politeness, did not press the matter further. "Alright, then. Take care of yourself, Ms."

Shaw.”

Turning her head, Sheila looked at the handsome man standing silently beside her and smiled. “Tyler, let’s go.”

Vicky instantly tensed at the mention of Tyler’s name.

At this moment, she had gathered enough to know what the mysterious person had arranged; he wanted Tyler to think that Vicky was pregnant and marry her, so that Vicky could rise to a position of power.

If Vicky wanted to, she could instantly show the pregnancy report to Tyler, but she never expected this was what the mysterious person planned.

A cold breeze swept past her, carrying the familiar scent from Tyler to Vicky.

Vicky bowed her head and remained silent, thinking that the plan would be ineffective as long as she did not speak.

Tyler’s tall and upright figure gradually moved farther away, and Vicky started to relax.

Just when she thought she was safe, the nurse who drew her blood suddenly walked out of the room.

Upon seeing her, the nurse raised her voice. “Ms. Shaw, why are you still here? You should go for a check-up to see the current condition of the fetus.”

At that moment, the sound of footsteps came to a sudden halt as both Sheila and Tyler stopped on their path. The entire corridor of the hospital fell into a deathly silence.

Unaware of the unusual atmosphere, the nurse continued,” You’re still in the early stages of pregnancy, and this is the most unstable period for the fetus. You must be extremely careful.”

Loving You In Secret Chapter 1190-The nurse spoke softly, but it was loud enough for Sheila and Tyler to overhear her.

Vicky tensed instantly as the nurse walked up to her. “Ms.

Shaw, please come with me.”

Vicky did not know how to react and did not dare to look at Sheila or Tyler. She followed the nurse stiffly with the only thought of getting out of there swiftly.

Suddenly, a hand grabbed her wrist as Tyler's voice sounded from above. "Are you pregnant?"

Before Vicky could say anything, the nurse next to her said, "Yes, Ms. Shaw is four weeks pregnant."

'Four weeks pregnant?' Tyler thought. 'The timing coincided with the time we slept together.'

"Four weeks pregnant?" Sheila asked in shock. "Ms. Shaw, does this mean that...the child is Tyler's?!"

"No!" Vicky instinctively denied it. "You're mistaken. I'm not pregnant at all—"

"Ms. Shaw, you are pregnant," the nurse chimed in. "Why would you say otherwise?" She took the pregnancy report from Vicky's hand. "It's clearly stated in the report."

Tyler's gaze fell on the report in the nurse's hand. "May I see it?"

The nurse handed the report to Tyler, muttering to herself, "Young people these days don't even know that they're pregnant. If something goes wrong, it'll be too late for regrets."

Tyler carefully opened the report as the look in his eyes darkened. "You're really pregnant."

Vicky's heart skipped a beat as she felt Tyler's gaze on her, and she broke out in a cold sweat, knowing that the pregnancy report was fake.

"No." Vicky snatched the report back and said incoherently, "You've misunderstood. I'm not pregnant! This report belongs to someone else, and I must've taken the wrong one..."

Tyler glanced at the name on the report and reminded her, "The report has your name on it. You didn't take the wrong one."

"Perhaps the hospital made a mistake... This test result is incorrect. I'm not pregnant!"

At that moment, Sheila walked up to her and met Vicky's gaze coldly.

Vicky's heart sank as she faced Sheila's gaze, knowing that Sheila must consider her the shameless seductress trying to entice Tyler, so she lowered her gaze to avoid Sheila's eyes.

"Since Ms. Shaw herself isn't sure if she's pregnant or not, how about we re-examine her?" Sheila's voice was aloof. "What do you think, Ms. Shaw?"

Vicky stood still, unable to speak.

Sheila raised her eyebrow. "Why won't you say anything? Are you afraid that you'll be exposed if you're not pregnant?"

Vicky trembled, and she instinctively looked up at Sheila.

Sheila smiled bitterly as she continued, "Or...are you putting on a show here?"

Sheila had always acted extremely gentle, and it was the first time Vicky heard such sharp words from her.

It was evident that Sheila was trying her best to control her emotions, but no woman could remain calm after hearing that her boyfriend, fiance, or lover had a child with someone else. The fact that Sheila did not slap Vicky on the spot was already a display of her composure.

"Tyler." Sheila grabbed Vicky's arm and looked at Tyler." Shall we take Ms. Shaw for another examination? Perhaps... it's all just a misunderstanding."

Tyler's expression remained indifferent as he hummed in response and turned to the nurse.
