Loving You In Secret Chapter 948-Aurora looked at Tyler with surprise, somewhat unexpected that such words could come from his mouth. Soon, she felt happy because it brought them closer.

“You’re right,” she agreed with Tyler’s words. “What you mean to say is that one must acknowledge their own position and learn to be content when they have what they desire. Mister Hart, rest assured, this situation you mentioned will never happen with me.”

As they spoke, the waiter knocked on the door of the private room and brought the dishes they had ordered. Afterward, the two of them quietly dined, and their conversation temporarily paused.

Vicky’s wound was quickly bandaged, but the burning pain seemed to have spread to her heart, through her veins, and all around her body, suffocating her.

She could not imagine that one day, she would be labeled as greedy and unreasonable. She suddenly felt like a mad woman, eager to know what caused them to reach this point of no return.

Why did he suddenly stop liking her? Why did he become so indifferent?

If she was just a bystander, a single glance would make it clear that Tyler had long lost interest in her, but since she was in the middle of the storm, Vicky was unwilling to accept it.

Afterward, the listening device remained silent.

The man sitting next to Vicky wanted to say something several times, but stopped himself each time.

It was unclear how much time passed, but it was until Tyler and Aurora finished their meal.

Aurora asked softly, “Since we’re done eating, how about we take a stroll nearby?”

Tyler did not refuse.

Soon, the sound of the two of them leaving the room could be heard.

Vicky sat in the private room for a while before getting up to leave.

“Vicky,” the man called out to her. “Tyler is very vigilant. He will notice if you follow them.”

“It’s better if he does.” Vicky’s expression was blank. “In any case, I’ll have to face it sooner or later.”

“But…”

“Thank you for helping me so much,” Vicky said. “If it weren’t for you, I would have still been in the dark, thinking he was just busy with work. Let’s call it a day. I’ll handle the rest.”

The man nodded. “Since you insist, I won’t say anything more. When you face problems you can’t solve, feel free to call me anytime.”

Vicky’s mind was not focused on him at all. Upon hearing his words, she simply nodded and said, “Thank you.” She then left the private room.

The man gazed at her slender and fragile figure, and let out a sigh.

The setting sun cast a layer of red halo, painting the whole sky with extraordinary beauty. The gentle breeze rustled the leaves along the road, and the delicate scent of flowers floated in the air.

The surrounding scenery looked like a poetic painting – elegant and enchanting.

Vicky followed behind the two of them, a faint self-mockery rising in her heart.

‘They sure know how to choose a place,’ she thought.

Not far from the hotel, there was a natural wetland park with breathtaking views. It was obviously an ideal spot for romantic dates. At this moment, many young couples could be seen holding hands, taking a stroll nearby. However, their attention was inevitably drawn to Tyler and Aurora, causing them to turn their heads and gaze at the pair.

There was no other reason, but the man's striking handsomeness and the woman's remarkable beauty made them look like they were the perfect golden couple.

Loving You In Secret Chapter 949-Vicky followed them at a distance, listening to the murmurs of the people around her.

"They make such a perfect couple! You can tell they come from a prestigious family!"

"That man is incredibly handsome, and the woman is beautiful, too. Judging by their attire, they are definitely a match made in heaven... Ah, fairy tales are all lies. Princes always marry Princesses, not Cinderellas."

"Well, of course. The rich and common folk have different values. There is no way they can be together. It's always been like this since the dawn of day."

"There are too many examples like this. Relationships with unequal status never get a happy ending."

Along the way, Vicky heard various comments from people and felt a sense of disorientation.

'Was that why Tyler and I were destined to be unhappy as well?' She thought.

Tyler and Aurora were drawing a lot of attention, so there was no worry in Vicky of losing them.

They did not do anything out of line along the way apart from just strolling and occasionally exchanging opinions on different things.

Due to the distance, Vicky couldn't hear what they were saying, but she could see the radiant smile on Aurora's face, filled with concealed admiration and adoration as she looked at Tyler.

Vicky was familiar with that kind of gaze.

When she first met Tyler, she had looked at him with the same eyes.

The memories from that time did not feel distant to her, as she had only recently relived them, making it feel like it happened yesterday.

Witnessing the current scene caused Vicky's heart to sink, as she realized that the time when Tyler and she were in love had been years ago, and they could never go back to where they were.

Just as Vicky was lost in her thoughts, something caught her attention.

She was not sure if Aurora tripped or something else happened; regardless of the reason, all she saw was Aurora blushing and falling into Tyler's arms.

Vicky felt her heart stop beating in that instant.

She stood frozen in place, like an ice sculpture.

Perhaps her gaze was too piercing because Tyler, standing not far away, seemed to sense something and turned to look at her.

Their eyes met, and Vicky caught a fleeting glimpse of emotion in Tyler's eyes, but it disappeared so quickly that one could mistake it for an illusion.

Soon, Tyler's gaze regained its depth and calmness as he casually let go of Aurora.

"Thank you," Aurora said. However, when she realized that Tyler was not looking at her and instead staring elsewhere, she followed his gaze and froze when she caught sight of Vicky. She looked up at Tyler and whispered, "Tyler, is this your ex-wife?"

'Did she just call me his ex-wife? I guess that's how things are going to be from now on,' Vicky thought.

Vicky clenched her fists and strolled steadily toward the two.

"Tyler, aren't you going to introduce us?" She said with a cold sneer playing on her lips. "Is this just someone you're meeting, or is she going to be your future wife?"

Tyler scowled. "Were you stalking me?"

"Stalking?" She stared at him. "Is that all you have to say?"

The sight of the three of them in a confrontation attracted the interest of the people around them.

He reached to grab her by the wrist and said, "We will talk back home."

Vicky broke free of his hold forcefully. "Let's talk here, right in front of Miss Starling."

Tyler's tone grew colder. "Stop this nonsense. Come with me."

"If you don't want me to cause a scene, you shouldn't have repeatedly challenged my limits!" Vicky could no longer suppress her anger. "Tyler Hart, is it fun to fool and toy with me like this?!"

Loving You In Secret Chapter 950-Before Tyler could speak, Aurora could not stand by any longer and interfered. "Miss Shaw, Is this how you always unjustly accuse Tyler? I simply tripped by accident, and he kindly helped me up. You must be misunderstanding this whole situation."

Aurora had investigated not only Tyler but also his wife, Vicky.

At this moment, as she looked into Vicky's eyes, she saw her as nothing more than an unreasonable and insane woman. She maintained a controlled expression, but no matter how well she controlled herself, her superiority and condescension still leaked through her gaze.

That gaze was a sense of superiority that only those who grew up in a true noble family would possess.

"Did I misunderstand something?" Vicky stared at Aurora." Miss Starling, are you trying to tell me that you and Tyler are just friends and not prospective partners? That you don't have any feelings for him, nor do you see him as a future husband, and just see him as a regular friend?"

Aurora, who grew up in a prestigious family, instantly spotted the sarcasm in Vicky's words. Her expression slightly changed, and her gaze towards Vicky sharpened." Miss Shaw, how do you know all this?"

Vicky smirked coldly. "Miss Starling, this is a matter between Tyler and me, which never had anything to do with you. There's no need for you to get on your high horse and mediate this fight like some poor excuse of a judge. It won't make you look any better, and would only expose your hypocrisy and disgust."

Even if Tyler and Aurora were on a blind date, it should have been Tyler's issue, not Aurora's fault. Though Vicky wanted to blame someone, she could not blame Aurora, because even without Aurora, there would still be countless others.

However, accepting this blind date while knowing that Tyler was married was hardly the action of someone responsible and virtuous.

Vicky did not want to pay attention to Aurora from the start, but since Aurora insisted on portraying herself as an understanding and accommodating woman, she knew she had to do something.

The onlookers, who had been observing Tyler and Aurora all along, could not resist stopping on their tracks and focusing when they sensed drama stirring.

The people around them started whispering to one another.

"Oh? So they're not a couple..."

"I think the woman who just arrived is the legitimate wife."

"Tsk, this man is truly fortunate. His wife is also beautiful... She seems even more beautiful than his mistress. Is that man blind?"

"You know nothing. Familiarity breeds contempt. Even if your wife is beautiful, you'll get tired of her after a while. The grass is always greener on the other side, you know?"

"The mistress isn't bad-looking either. With her appearance, she could find any kind of man. Why did she choose to be a mistress?"

"Perhaps... For the money?"

"She has no self-respect."

The discussions of the crowd reached Aurora's ears, and her face turned red, then pale.

She had never been so embarrassed in her life! She was even mistaken as a mistress who sought a wealthy man for money when she herself came from a prestigious family and had no need for money, to begin with.

Clearly, that was not what everyone else thought.

In general belief, a homewrecker was someone vicious and immoral who destroys others' marriages for the sake of money.

The remarks made by the crowd around them left Tyler's expression darkening as he stared at Vicky. "Are you running an investigation toward me?"

It became clear to him that Vicky must be looking into him to know exactly where they were and what they had talked about.

"Yeah," Vicky admitted. "You said that I've been mistaken about the times before this, what about now? I don't think I misunderstood anything at all, right?"

After a few moments of silence, Tyler said, "So? What do you want, then?"

He practically admitted to cheating, so Vicky chuckled." What do I want? Should I be asking what you want instead?"

Once a man grows cold and distant, that will be a telltale sign of him wanting a breakup.
