Chapter 351 You Are My Antidote

Olive had long noticed it that she didn't know how to properly describe this man. As a big boss, he actually had been getting more and more leisurely, so once the meeting was over, she walked up to him after others were all gone, "Mr. Hoyle, why don't you just move your office to Angel Hotel, that way you won't have to run around. "

It really took a long time to go from the Angel Hotel to Hengdu, and if one ran into a traffic jam, it would definitely take more time.

"You're just annoyed with me?"

Olive looked at his purposefully stern face and also pretended to pout in aggravation, "How dare I? I'm just afraid that it will affect your work."

"Fool. " He suddenly felt touched and held her in his arms.

What he didn't tell her was that on the ten-mile construction site between Minghu and Angel was the kingdom he was building for her, and later his office would be moved to the center of the kingdom, close to her here very much.

He had bought another cottage in Minghu, and wanted to bring his in-laws over to take care of them later. He actually had talked to his father-in-law alone about this matter. His father-in-law said, later on. He knew in his heart that although his father-in-law had accepted him, he was still very uncertain about the future of him and his daughter.

But how could he let those unstable and uncertain factors between him and Olive influence their love again? He, Alan Hoyle, had never done anything unsure.

When the time came, Annie could live wherever she liked, because the two buildings were close to each other, both with little princess rooms. The old couple was afraid of being lonely, and they were usually busy with work, so having a child around them could make them happier.

As for himself, he still liked to have more of a small world for two people, so that he could have his little wife by himself and kiss her at will.

"Nope, I do it for you, do you like it?" Olive Steele also pinched Alan Hoyle's face.

Laughing, they went out of office. Seeing other offices still had the light on, Olive went into the elevator quickly with holding Alan's hand. She stuck out her tongue at the mirror embarrassedly. The hotel was open for 24 hours a day. In the office area, every department had staffs on duty at night. Although everyone knew that she and Alan was in love, it was still not good to openly date here.

After seeing her sticking out her tongue, Alan felt her so cute. There was only them in the elevator, so he hugged her in his arms. If it was not the camera in the elevator, he really wanted to kiss her.

Compared to food, he was more interested in her, but he was also afraid that she was hungry. It would be bad for her stomach.

He heard from her mother that her stomach had some problems, because she didn't have meals on time. In addition, for business, she had to accompany customers to drink. In this case, there were some problems with her stomach.

Thinking of this, he felt sorry for her.

After they arrived at the restaurant, the food was served soon. The chef was newly hired by Olive after she came back from Jinjiang. He was not a famous chef. He was very young. The dishes what he cooked was unique and different from other dishes.

Now there were more and more chefs who could cook famous dishes, but most of the dishes they cooked was the same, few chefs could have their own special dishes. This young chef was very capable of breaking through tradition and creating new dishes.

After eating, Olive asked him, "How is it?"

Alan smacked his lips, "Not bad. Just a bit worse than my wife's."

"Be serious." Olive said.

Alan smiled, "I'm serious. I just think the food my wife cooks is the most delicious in the world."

Olive put a lot of foam on her head, "Look, I am now like a white-haired witch, aren't I? "

Of course she was. She really was an amazing witch, seducing his soul and making him obsessed with her.

Using water to rinse the foam on her hair, he then washed her face, got her long hair clean, dried it and wrapped it in a towel.

But then Olive suddenly made a low whimper, "Honey, my feet hurt."

He felt so distressed and blamed himself, and then he carried her out of the bathroom and put her on the bed.

"Does it still hurt?" He rubbed her feet.

"Much better."

He kissed her softly, kissing away the fragrant sweat from her face, "I love you, baby."

"Honey, we're going to be together forever, aren't we?" Olive hugged him tightly.

He kissed her face, showing a shallow smile, "Of course, we will never be apart. We will stay like this for the rest of our lives."

He made her fall in love with him deeply, rely on him, and become a part of his flesh and blood. If he left, he took her soul away.

What the little girl said almost broke his heart. Even if he gave up the whole world, he wouldn't give up on her. Was she still feeling insecure in her heart? Did she still think he would leave at any time? So that was why she wanted a child to make him stay.

The feeling of making him stay made him feel both happy and extremely heartbroken.

"Hey, don't cry. Okay. Let's have a lot of children."

"Really? You can't back out," she immediately smiled through her tears.

"Really," he sighed. He was deceived by this little girl again.

"Then no more medicine tomorrow."

"No more." It seemed that he had to think of a way to put the medicine into her body without her notice tomorrow. For the sake of her body and not wanting her getting into another risk, he would be the unfaithful bad person.

He let her sleep more for a while. Half an hour later, the waiter took their breakfast upstairs according to his instructions. He specially got her a glass of milk and turned his back as he pinched break the pill into the glass, putting it at the side of the bed after he mixed it. This was for her own good and he would pay attention in the future.

He didn’t want her to get into risk anymore, even though medical skills were very advanced now.

“Wake up, lazy worm,” he patted her little butt through the blanket.

Under the warm and soft blanket, two pale arms stretched out as Olive Steele stretched herself and then she sat up. But as soon as she saw him looking at her with a smile, she glared at him and covered herself with the blanket, “Big pervert.”

Alan Hoyle barked out a laugh. Which part of her body that he had never seen.

Olive Steele also felt herself was being unnecessary and chuckled.

He handed the milk to her, “Come on, drink this.”

“I haven’t brushed my teeth. My mouth smells.” She let out a breath in front of his face on purpose.

“That’s your mouth being a sweet-talker.”

She began to calmly walk into the bathroom naked in front of him. He followed suit, holding a new spring outfit.

“What else did you find?” She was extremely furious.

“That’s all for now.” Minh Dcbo, the butler, stood aside, enduring the high pressure from the mistress of the Hoyle family.

“Make an appointment with the Halan’s parents.” Since they were lazy people, it would be easier to make them leave than Olive Steele’s parents.

Mrs. Hoyle had a headache again thinking of Olive Steele.

“Now?” the butler asked carefully.

“Of course. Do you want me to watch my son sink deeper and deeper? Bring them here to see me.”

The matter hadn't reached the end yet. No matter how fierce the woman was, it was her fate to happen to have such parents.

The butler received the order and prepared to go out. He opened the door and saw a figure outside. He was a bit surprised, “Young master.”

He didn't tell her before because there was no real evidence and afraid it would inadvertently alert his enemies. He had endured silently for so many years to wait for the old fox showing his tail.

Mrs. Hoyle stood there and the world suddenly seemed to be overturned. She didn't know whether she should believe in her son or her old friends who had been supporting her for many years.

Alan Hoyle was furious, wanted to grab his wife and hit her in the ass. His mother lived in the hotel where she was. But she didn't even say a word. He didn't believe she didn't know.

It seemed that in the future, he would have to keep an eye on her a little bit more, so that his little girl wouldn't go missing someday. Although the possibility was very small, as long as it wasn't a complete non-possibility, there would be a shadow in his heart.

He made a phone call and heard a gentle voice calling him 'husband'. That tone of hers immediately made his anger vanish like smoke.

"Little girl, why didn't you tell me that my mom stays in Angel?"

Olive Steele unconcernedly said, "So what? Angel is a hotel and for guests who need place to stay. She can stay as long as she wants. And I just can't drive her out, right?"

"Aren't you afraid that she'll cause trouble to you?"

"It's fine. I have you as a backer, so what do I need to be afraid of? If I can't handle her, I will ask my securities. Besides, I can't keep hiding from here. She's your mother; my mother-in-law. I still need to face her. It's good that she lives here, can't stop us fighting more often. One day we will shake hands and make peace, smile and let bygones be bygones. Therefore, money could make people lost too. It wasn’t unreasonable for the rich to look down on the poor and the poor was disgusted by the rich.

But Olive Steele didn’t think she was poor. She had family affection, love and friendship—they were all her wealth.

Her parents’ health was her wealth. Her daughter growing up happily was her wealth. Chloe Malan walking out from the shadow of her failed marriage was her wealth. And to be with Alan Hoyle together was her wealth too.

Her wealth wasn’t quantified by money. It was something that Mrs. Hoyle would never understand.

Alan Hoyle apologized to her parents on behalf of his mother, still went in and out from the Steele’s place, and picked her up to and off work.

Although Annie was young, many conversations between adults were did behind her. But she had already smelled the unusual atmosphere at home. She secretly pulled Alan Hoyle and asked, “Uncle, will you leave us?”

Alan Hoyle smiled and stroke the little girl’s head, saying, “I won’t.”

Annie squeezed at him for a while, then whispered, “I don’t call you dad because I’m afraid that one day, you will suddenly disappear after I get used to.”

Alan Hoyle felt sad for a while after hearing that. Olive Steele saw the corner of his eyes were wet. She hid herself behind the door and cried silently. A child’s words always touched people’s hearts.

Since then, the intimacy between both father and daughter seemed to increase overnight. Annie still called him uncle, but their bickering had lessened more and more. Occasionally, she would suddenly call him dad, making Alan Hoyle feel as if he was in cloud nine.

"If I lose, I'll treat you," Alan Hoyle smiled. In fact, winning or losing wasn't important to him. He came to play with his wife and daughter. This was just an interlude.

"Then next time I will try better to get a meal with President Hoyle," Jerry Lan said with a chuckle.

As soon as the man left, Annie looked up at Alan Hoyle, "Uncle, both Big Beard and Uncle Lan can't beat you. What are you capable of more than I don't know?"

Olive Steele frowned and looked at Alan Hoyle suspiciously, "When did you fight with Dave Chou?"

It was the day when they met for a drink, and there weren't signs of violence on them.

Annie was surprised at her slip of tongue. She covered her small mouth and shook her head towards Alan Hoyle. She didn't want her mommy to know that she climbed the roof.

How could Alan Hoyle not understand? It turned out the little brat was afraid too. "It's nothing. It was when this one time I was picking up Annie at martial arts center. Dave Chou pulled me to learn a few tricks. Annie probably thought we were fighting. My wife, you eat such a big one by yourself and don't give me a bite."

He was changing subject and she didn't think much. But she purposely licked the ice cream with her tongue, then put it in front of him. She chuckled and said, "It's all my saliva. Do you still want to eat it?"

Alan Hoyle grabbed her hand to his mouth and took a bite. He smiled, "It's not like I haven't eaten your saliva before."

Annie stared at her weirdly.

"Mr. Hoyle, if I don't smile, should I be crying instead?" Olive Steele tilted her head against the window.

“Don’t worry, mommy. I’m learning martial arts very hard now and I can protect you when I grow up. Whoever dares to bully or make you cry, I’ll help you beat them.” Annie said aggressively.

But her daughter words’ warmed her.

Alan Hoyle rubbed his own nose. In the future, if his daughter fought with her mother, didn’t he have to fight with her?

When they returned home and saw someone was missing for dinner, Olive Steele asked, “Where’s Chloe Malan?”

Mrs. Steele answered, “She went out after answered a phone call. She said she had plan with a friend, so we don’t have to wait for her.”

“Is Mommy Chloe going out on a date with Uncle?” asked Annie.

“Oh, right. Since that day, Aoba hasn’t come for meal for several days. Alan, has your brother moved out?” Mrs. Steele asked. There had been no movements upstairs these days. Although Mrs. Hoyle was a little unreasonable, they didn’t blame the children. He used to love to come and have a meal, but now she couldn’t even get a glimpse of his shadow.
