

Innocent Wife 4

Chapter 4

"Aren't you afraid to see a very ugly woman standing in front of you at the time of your recovering your eyesight?" Her naughty fingers circled around his chest.

"Then I will accept it." He answered. Thinking that she said she was a super beautiful girl, he was fun that she might have seen too many cartoons. There were also times when she was not confident.

The magic of love, perhaps was really incredible.

A week before the operation, he hugged her in his arms and asked her, "Are you afraid that if the operation fails, I will be blind all my life and become a burden to you..."

"Then you have to be ready. I'm ugly. I have chicken eyes, a flat nose, tetracycline teeth, hollow faces full of black pox, deformed hands, spiral legs..."

Before she had finished speaking all the words that she used to defame herself, he bowed his head and sealed her chattering mouth with a kiss.

This woman was really bullying him, a blind man now. Don't think his palms couldn't feel her skin as delicate as silk.

"Promise me. You will be the first person I would like to see on the day of recovering my eyesight." In this way, her face could be printed in the bottom of his heart and never be forgot for a lifetime.

"Of course, Dr. Smith has said that your eye resuscitation operation can be definitely successful. I don't want that you look at the nurse beside you with your beautiful eyes soon as you open your eyes. They are mine."

He felt her delicate fingers caressed his face and her warm lips imprinted on his eyelids.

Apart from the invisible eyes, he was a perfectly normal man. Facing the beloved woman, with the warm and fragrant body in his arms, how could he not be unconscious and prone to the attractions. He turned over and pressed her, "Girl, can I let you really be my woman?"

The person under him seemed to be stunned.

He grinned bitterly. In fact, he clearly understand that she promised to be his girlfriend, just because she wanted to inspire his confidence in recovery.

However, he was moved sincerely, inexplicably with a fear of losing her feeling.

He thought that no matter whether she was beautiful or ugly, he would be responsible for her life. He had already passed the age of judging people by their appearance. But now that she was unwilling, he couldn't just take away her innocence.

Before a girl married, she had better keep her purity for her newly married husband.

But just as he was about to release her, her arms suddenly wrapped around his neck, as if she was inviting him silently.

