Chapter 511: It will change her

"With her enthusiasm and care for the baby now, I'm afraid she will go to Luo City to look after you even if you don't invite her." Ada laughed as she remembered the bet she made with her mother. Not because she's confident she would win, but because she believed that Olive was a good person.

"That's the best." Her baby was the key to their relationship, so she would take advantage of this. Although if she thought about it carefully, she would be a little upset, while some things in life were to be generous. For there were certain things which could not haggle over, and if she did, she could easily split hairs.

Olive didn't want to split hairs as people needed to be broad-minded to live easy.

"Does my Brother know about your decision?" Asked Ada.

Olive replied. "I haven't spoken to him yet, but I don't think he would object."

"No one, not even my father who is now dead, could control my brother." Ada said, laughing. "He only listens to you."

Olive laughed, too. "It wasn't that whether he listened to me or not because Mrs. Hoyle was his mother, so he had no reason to object."

Although her husband was afraid that Mrs. Hoyle would hurt her and he has been trying his best to avoid letting the two of them get along with each other, what he really wanted most was that Mrs. Hoyle could get along with her peacefully. Therefore, this opportunity was rare, while it would be a pity if she missed it.

Alan, of course, agreed with her, but it was just that when his wife told him this idea, he was a little worried, so he kept looking at her and her still flat belly, which was already bearing a new life.

"Aren't you afraid of Mrs. Hoyle bullying you?"

When Mrs. Hoyle met a good daughter-in-law, she didn't know how to cherish her. Sooner or later, Mrs. Hoyle would regret it.

"Who's your Mom?" Mrs. Hoyle felt awkward when Olive suddenly called her mother.

Olive didn't seem to care about Mrs. Hoyle's cold and even slightly snarky tone, so she's still smiling brightly. "It doesn't matter, as we will be a family sooner or later. You are my husband's mother, my child's grandmother, and my mother-in-law, so I should call you Mom. Even if you don't answer me, I can practice first."

The corners of Alan's mouth twitched as Olive said that she could practice first, and he wanted to thank Olive for coming up with these words, while his wife was just getting cuter every day.

He went over and untied her apron. "You can practice later because we have to fly back after breakfast."

"Alan, I wanted to ask you that did you got Olive for your wife or did you marry into and live with Olive's family? Why are you always following Olive? So what is the matter?" Mrs. Hoyle exclaimed disapprovingly.

Alan smiled dryly. "Didn't you make this happen? ..."

Olive jabbed Alan with her finger. "Mom, Alan didn't marry into and live with the Steele family, but he is now working in Luo City, so you can come with us to live in Luo City for some time. I don't mind you staying longer with us if it's all right with you."

Mrs. Hoyle was surprised by Olive's invitation, but her words were still ungrateful. "I'm afraid I'll have a heart attack if I live with you."

Olive smiled and raised her finger above her head as a pledge. "I can promise you that you won't hate living in Luo City after a while, so we will be waiting for you in Luo City, while the baby in my belly, your grandchild, will be waiting for you in Luo City."

"Do you mean to tell me that I shall come and live with you?" Mrs. Hoyle replied crossly. The problem that had been bothering her all night was just solved by Olive's simple words.

"Yeah, yeah!" Annie danced and cheered.

The news that Olive was pregnant has exploded at the Steele family.

"Is it true or false?" Chloe came up to look at her flat stomach and even held out her hand to touch it.

Olive's parents looked surprised, and then they looked happy as if they had just won a million dollars.

"You may as well have another child, as Annie will have a companion."

After the joy, Annie suddenly remembered something. "But Dad, didn't you say you didn't want Mommy to have to work hard to give birth to my baby brother or my baby sister? So why is Mommy pregnant again?"

The question the family wanted to ask was asked by Annie, so everyone looked at Alan, waiting for his answer.

"Your Mommy was disobedient, as she stole a baby from your Dad, so do you think I should spank her?" When Alan talked about this, he also felt a little helpless.

Annie nodded like a grown-up. "Mommy deserves to be spanked by you, but Dad, are you willing to spanking Mommy?"

What Annie said choked Alan, but it delighted the whole family.

Olive joined in, raising an eyebrow defiantly. "Yeah, are you willing to spank me?"

"Dad, you lost again." Chloe mourned as she tugged at Alan's hand. "Who had a son-in-law like you? Don't you know to respect the old and let your father-in-law win? "

Olive's father laughed. "We're just playing chess, so winning or losing is not that important. Besides, even if I lose, I lose with confidence, because everyone wins according to their own merits, right? It has nothing to do with age. I often lose to Alan, but if I play chess with your Aoba, he can't beat me at chess.."

"Aoba doesn't belong to me yet, so don't say that now, and it's still unknown." Chloe always felt that if she didn't have high hopes, she wouldn't be very disappointed. She could fall in love, but she was never willing to compromise for the sake of marriage.

Olive's mother gave Chloe a jolt with her elbow quietly. "How can you talk like that? Aoba is serious about you, so don't take him for granted."

Chloe stared back at them as they shot her in the eye. "I didn't take him for granted, as I'm serious too, so don't look at me suspiciously, and I'm not trifling with his affections."

"Knowing my brother, he really likes you, so you can't run away." Alan said this to her.

"Anyway, I have said in advance that he will come and talk to me about marriage only after he can persuade your mother. Now, if he wants to be in a relationship with me, we'll be in a relationship, while if he doesn't want to be with me, I won't pester him after he breaks up with me. I'm not going to be as generous as Olive because I've been selfish since the divorce, and I always think of myself first."

Not that she was proud, and not that she was free and easy, but that she had seen through something. A man was expected to live for himself, while fighting a flame for love was no longer a thing for people of her age and state of mind.

Love had been replaced by a real and cruel life that had cut her off from any illusions, so love was not her whole life, just a part of it.

Annie arched in his arms like a piglet as she was exhausted, spreading her limbs like an octopus on his chest and blowing a few times of raspberries, then her eyes rolled a few times.

"Dad, will Jiangcheng's grandma cause trouble coming to Luo City?"

"What trouble?" Alan's smile stiffened a bit. He knew what the little thing was worrying about.

"For example, wanting to break you and mommy apart, provoking Luo City's grandpa and grandma, destroying Uncle Aoba and Chloe Mommy's lovely relationship, and so on, so on... And, stealing my little brother. Then, I can't be close with my little brother anymore. I don't want that." At the end, the little girl's mouth pouted so sharp, hugging Alan's neck while swaying around.

Alan patted his daughter's back to soothe her. "Silly. There's no way. You're his sister. This is a fact that can never be changed."

"Of course. I'm his sister and I'll protect my little brother. I'll teach him Kung Fu," said Annie, moving around on Alan's stomach.

Alan held her waist and laughed, "How do you know he's a little brother? Maybe she's a little sister?"

It wasn't important whether the baby was boy or girl. What mattered was both mother and child were safe.

"Mom says so." Annie rolled down from Alan's body and climbed to Olive, gently resting her head on her belly. "Yeah, mommy, maybe it's a little sister who comes out of your belly."

Olive gently stroked the other side of her belly, playfully blinking with a mysterious smile on, "Because mother and son are connected."

Alan was afraid that she would be under pressure because of his mother, so he hugged both mother and daughter in his arms. "It doesn't whether it's girl or boy. I just want you to be safe."

There was a famous saying, 'As long as you're healthy, my day is filled with sunlight.'

Chapter 516: Criticizing

If Mrs. Hoyle wanted the child, sure. Olive had always been soft-hearted and Chloe couldn't do anything to change her mind, but she could prevent the old witch from taking it on granted. A person like her in the world who could easily take others' treasure didn't know how to cherish it.

Maybe she thought Olive wanted to flatter her.

Mrs. Hoyle knew she was bad with words, but she didn't want to lose her manner. "Can't I change my mind?"

Chloe never dropped her sneer, "Sure. But Mrs. Hoyle, aren't you eating your own words after saying it with much confidence? You don't want when you don't want. You want when you want. Do you think Olive is your ragdoll?"

"If she is that easily, would I be standing here and talking to you?" Instead, Mrs. Hoyle felt that she was the marionette that was invisibly manipulated. That woman worked together with her son to design a no way out for her.

From the moment she knocked on the Steele's door, she suddenly felt that she was planted and had fallen into the game they had set in advance.

Chloe joked, "Oh? Mrs. Hoyle, it's really rare to hear you praise one of our Steele's members."

I..." Mrs. Hoyle took a breath as she couldn't explode no matter what.

Thinking back what she said just now, there was indeed an exaggeration on her side. Was she confused or too mad? Darn it.

"Mrs. Hoyle," Mrs. Steele started. "Since we've started to talk about the child, let's not go then returned her gaze back to Mrs. Steele. "I don't like to drag on either. I'll get

Norton made the arrangement as she wasn't yet familiar with hotel business, but it was a hindrance for her next plan.

But, she couldn't show the slightest dissatisfaction. At first, she was pretending to be humble. Before things were fully controlled, she couldn't take off her mask so quickly.

But, how could she seize the real power from Olive as soon as possible and without a trace? What a headache.

The sound of a car's abrupt stop interrupted her thought and it also made Olive halted on her tracks.

Olive watched Mrs. Hoyle get out of the car fuming, pointing at her nurse and cursing. She had long lost her former elegance. Her so-called nobleness disappeared, shouting like a shrew.

"Olive Steele, what is the meaning of this? Going back on your own words, huh?"

"Mrs. Hoyle, is there any misunderstandings?" Norton was lost at how this old lady from the Hoyle couldn't like Olive, who was a good kid. She kept finding faults. With her old age, she should enjoy a happy and leisurely old age, enjoy many things in this world, but she caused so many troubles. Wasn't she tired?

"Misunderstanding?" Mrs. Hoyle sneered. "Ask her what she promised me. But she turns back from her words."

"Olive, this is...?" Susan asked on purpose. She actually knew the person in front of her. How could she not look into her opponent before acting? She was just completing her acting.

"My mother-in-law," Olive answered, then walked to Mrs. Hoyle. "Mother, what did I do? I don't understand a bit."

"Don't call me mother," Mrs. Hoyle yelled.

Norton frowned. Susan's mouth curled up silently beside him.

Alan naturally complied with pleasure, but when the old lady heard Chloe Malan's name, she blurted out, "No."

Olive knew that she was upset. She had been beating around the bush along the way that she pretty much already knew the entire event. The old lady was mistreated at her house and her heart was on fire at this moment.

Actually, she could see through that the old lady couldn't hide it in her heart anymore. Olive laughed, "Mother, if you don't want to, how can we talk about this matter?"

"I've nothing to talk with you," the old lady murmured nastily.

Alan wanted to ask where did the girl offend the old lady, but Olive spoke out before he could.

"Mother, that's not cute. You ran all the way to the hotel just to talk with me, right. Let's go. We'll be having dinner while talking."

The old lady said, "I've no appetite."

"You still have to eat a little even if you don't have appetite. Besides, you don't want to starve your future grandson, do you?" Olive switched to play the family card.

Indeed, the old lady softened, but her face still showed reluctance. Yet she still let Olive drag her into Alan's car.

Along the way, no one spoke. Alan felt sorry for his wife. Several times he saw through the rearview mirror at her sitting with his mother in the back seat with her seemingly calm face. No one knew how much bitterness was hidden under it.

It wasn't far, but because of the rush hour, it took more than ten minutes to arrive.

"Do you really not want me to go with you?"

"Do you really think I'll get lost?"

When Olive got home, Chloe was sitting on the sofa in the living room applying nail polish and Mrs. Steele was beside her, knitting to make a sweater for her future baby grandson. They were talking and laughing.

Chloe said, "Mom, you don't need to do this. Knitting is so hassle, just buy them as it's more stylish and comfortable."

Mrs. Steele smiled, "I don't have anything to do anyway. Knitting is just for passing the time. When you get married and have child, I'll knit for my future grandson too."

Olive changed her footwear and walked over, patted Chloe on the shoulder. "You don't understand. Mom's knitted sweater isn't as old-fashioned as you think. Just wait and see if you don't believe me."

When she was a child, she didn't wear less. Each shirts were beautifully knitted by her mom that made her peers envy.

Chloe screamed, "Woman, can you make a noise when you come home? You're like a freaking ghost scaring people. Look at my ruined nails. Fix them."

Olive laughed and said, "How? Should I chop my fingers for you?"

"As long as Mom is okay, I don't mind," Chloe said cruelly.

“Damn you.” Olive kicked her and sat down to help her mom knitting.

This wasn’t him being exaggerating. In most of his life, Alan Hoyle was the most courageous person he had ever met. For a hundred years, he thought it would be difficult for someone of Jiangcheng and Luo City to surpass him or challenge him.

Of course Olive knew how outstanding her man was. It was just that she seemed to hear another person’s voice on the phone. It sounded vaguely like Susan. She wondered whether she was listening or she had been by the old man’s side.

“If you keep praising, someone won’t be able to get through the door later when he hears it. Uncle Norton, if there’s nothing else, I’ll hang up.”

Norton wouldn’t drag on again, “Okay. I’ll ask Susan to show the project tomorrow so you guys can discuss whether the project is workable or not. If it is, you guys can proceed it.”

“Okay!” After hanging up the phone, Olive rotated her phone in her hand and was deep in thought. She made such a big move as soon as she started. Overseas investment? Why did she feel that there was something behind it?

Chloe waved her hand in front of her eyes a few times. Her state of dazed caught Mrs. Hoyle’s eyes. She saw through her inner struggle.

“Earth to Olive?!”

Olive patted away Chloe’s hand.

Olive asked, “What did the old man say to you? You’re distracted.”
