The Innocent Wife of Scheming President

Chapter 57: Promises Counted for Nothing

The distance between her and him seemed to be thousands of mountains and rivers apart. Although they fell in love with each other, the reality was cruel, and she could not ignore the accompanying threats.

She went to the bathroom halfway through, followed by a beautiful woman.

"Olive, someone asked me to bring you a message."

Olive stunned for a moment, but looking around, except for the woman who was refining her makeup, there was no one but Olive herself. Olive was washing her face with cold water. She cast a puzzled glance at the beautiful woman, "me?"

"Yes, that's you." The beautiful woman covered her lipstick and threw it into her bag, smiling coldly at Olive.

Olive suddenly seemed to feel the cold wind, "what message?"

The beautiful woman walked half round her. She sneered, and looked at Olive fiercely with warning, "stay away from Alan. You don't deserve him."

Olive's face was slightly changed, like falling into an ice cellar. Needless to say, she probably knew who asked this woman to say these words to her.

Some evil people could control things thousands of miles away. Ophelia was too involved and bossy. Did she know everything that Alan did?
