

Chapter 40 Jealousy

"Well, Don't talk about that anymore. This is our party, don't skew it up, OK?"

Lauren was also a monitor, at least, and no one continued to make trouble with Lavinia.

People quickly found their groups, to isolate Lavinia to show their attitude to her.

"Our monitor is also a coward. Just go chase that woman. Even he can't get her love. He can also get her body."

Lauren and Lavinia never heard the gossip of those people again.

They all said it privately, and they wouldn't tell Lavinia.

No matter how good the meal was, it didn't smell in Lavinia's mouth because of the episode just now. She felt as if there was really no need to come to the classmate's dinner. Except for the monitor, these people were not generally hostile to her.

Lauren spoke on the stage on behalf of the whole class, saying a few words and letting everyone have fun. As soon as he got down, Lavinia was ready to leave.

"Monitor, I am not feeling well, so I will leave first. Have fun."

She was ready to go long ago, and out of politeness, she thought of waiting for Lauren to come and say goodbye before going.

Lauren was a careful man. Seeing that Lavinia was leaving, he knew what was on Lavinia's mind, so he said, "I'll come with you. Let's eat alone. I'm hungry anyway. The taste here doesn't suit me very well."

Lauren's eyes were so clean and pure that Lavinia couldn't bear to say no.

She thought that it was Lauren who helped her out today. Because of her, Lauren was excluded from the class and didn't even eat now. So she should invite Lauren to dinner alone.

"If it's convenient for you, I'll treat you to dinner."

How could Lauren be inconvenient for Lavinia's invitation?

For fear that the other party would go back on her word, he naively nodded. "OK, it's convenient for me!"

Big hotels surrounded it, and they searched for a long time before they found a small restaurant but was well decorated.

She said to Lauren with some guilt, "This is the only Chinese restaurant nearby. I'll treat you to something better next time."

To say so was just an excuse, and everyone knows it was a polite remark, but Lauren solemnly agreed.

"OK, then I'll wait for your news."

When Chris's people reported Lavinia's whereabouts to him, he was still busy with a meeting in the company.

Chris thought that Lavinia would come back after attending the reunion, honestly.

Who knew the driver said that Lavinia and a man left, and they went to dinner alone. The driver was worried that the boss's feelings would be hit hard,so he quickly reported the progress to the boss.

"How long have they been in?"

Chris's face was gloomy,and his forefinger clicked and clicked on the table.If anyone were around,he would find that Chris's eyes could kill people.

"Not long,about ten minutes."

The driver heard the sound from the phone as if it had just been taken out of the refrigerator.

"Ten minutes?And you are calling now?"

The driver thought that he was going to lose his job.

"Manager Chris,they've been walking for a few minutes."

The company with a strong desire for survival came out with a word,and he should warm up his voice.

The driver sent the location to Chris,who had an international conference.Chris pushed the work directly to the particular assistant while he galloped out in the silver convertible supercar.

"Lavinia,we are all going to graduate.As long as you are still in school,our previous class atmosphere is not very good.I hope your current class can make you feel the happiness of reading."

Lauren raised his glass,which was filled with white water.

When they clinked glasses,a pair of sharp eyes at the door made their backs cold.

Sensitive to such a look,Lavinia turned and looked. Sure enough, Chris was already standing at the door.

Her hands were shaking when she held the cup.

"Chris, why are you here?"

She told Chris about going to a class reunion, but now she has dinner alone with a man.

"Am I interrupting your dinner?"

Chris stepped in, and his presence eclipsed the whole restaurant.

Lavinia put down his glass and stood from her seats.

The embarrassment looked like a guilty conscience after being caught.

At least in Chris's eyes, Lavinia was like this.

"There was an accident at the class reunion, so it couldn't continue."

Lavinia couldn't explain her destructive relationship with other students and her inability to integrate.

She still cared about interpersonal relationships, which was a thorn in her heart and a scar she didn't want to expose in front of Chris.

"OK, then you can keep going."

Chris just came to see Lavinia, and no one could understand why there was so much jealousy in his chest.

All he knew was that if he didn't come and see who this woman was with, he would explode.

Because of Lavinia, Chris began to lose control of his temper. Because it was Lavinia, he didn't want to watch her eat alone with other men for fear that Chris couldn't help hurting the woman in front of him.

The man left quickly.

This incredible speed made Lavinia suddenly flustered.

If Chris could make a fuss with her, Lavinia would feel better. However, Chris didn't say anything, which was the most significant punishment for her.

Hurriedly told Lauren that it was urgent, and Lavinia quickly chased Chris out.

As a man, Lauren knew better than anyone the relationship between that man and Lavinia just now.

Only two people who really had feelings would be jealous and nervous.

He shook his head and was very glad that the relationship between him and Lavinia had not taken another step forward.

"Chris Konev, wait for me and let me explain."

Lavinia followed Chris and ran after him, but the man was so much faster than her that she was already panting.

"Chris Konev, Lauren, and I are just having a meal."

When Lavinia kept chasing him, Chris had already got into the car and left quickly. He didn't listen to an explanation. Maybe he did, but he blocked it automatically.

Looking at Chris leaving, her grievances of many days suddenly poured out.

No matter whether there were jokes around her, she squatted on the ground like a child for the first time, holding her legs in both hands, and couldn't help crying.

Chris still didn't believe her. She didn't even have a chance to explain it to him.

Lauren gave the money and ran out of the restaurant. He initially thought that Lavinia would have left already. Then he saw Lavinia was sitting on the ground not far away.

There was something wrong with her mood.

Reward

10

Comments

2