

Chapter 79 Where's Nicole

'Well, no one knows I am here now. But do you think I will always be here?'

'You'd better let me go out right now, otherwise after I go out by myself, the first person I won't let go is you!'

Nicole warned in a deep voice.

The smugness on Elena's face immediately froze after hearing her warning. She stood here swaying.

Just leave it! She had to do her plan at first. Even if Nichole really came out, she would not be able to drive her away from the family.

At most, it was just a few curses from Bob, which she could still bear.

Elena turned and left.

When Nicole heard that there was no sound outside. She suddenly stretched out her hand angrily and patted directly on the door.

'Let me out!'

It's been a while since Elena left, and she could still hear her voice, her eyelids twitched.

But no matter how loud she yelled, no one would come over here.

Nicole shouted that the whole voice was hoarse, and no one responded to her words. She gave up struggling, and the whole person leaned to the side with fatigue, and the expression in her eyes also brought a bit of frustration.

How couldn't she beat her?

She stretched out her hand and pressed her forehead hard, constricting the expression in her eyes.

When she took out the phone and saw that the signal column on the phone was gone, she felt weak again.

Well, she did know someone would come here to open the door. But she didn't know there was no signal on the phone now. The only thing she could do was to wait for someone to rescue her.

After constricting her eyes, she turned around and sat down on the other side of the sofa. She waited to see when someone could come over.

After coming out, Elena found Bob.

When Bob saw she coming by himself, there was a trace of doubt in his eyes: 'Didn't I ask you to bring Nicole?'

Elena said helplessly: 'She probably ate something wrong, so I went to the bathroom just now. She said that her stomach was uncomfortable. Just wait a second.'

After listening to her explanation, Bob nodded. He really did not doubt what Elena said.

It's just that she said that she waited for half an hour.

Everyone had eaten at the table.

Shawn had been waiting for Nicole to come back according to what she said, but who would have thought that he waited for too long.

He looked down at the phone and sent a message to her. She did not respond to a word, and Bob did not see her now.

He suddenly picked up the wine glass on the table and drank the glass of wine on the table.

Elena and Erin, who had been paying attention to Shawn, were instantly excited when they saw him drink the glass of wine.

Erin stretched out Elena's hand and turned to look at her:

'Mom, it seems to be all right!'

Because there were other people sitting beside Erin, and Bob was also sitting next to Elena. They couldn't be too obvious even if they were excited now.

Elena gently patted the back of her hand, then leaned against her ear and whispered: 'You must seize the opportunity. I have arranged the room. If he responds, someone will take him to the room.'

Elena really didn't expect that Shawn would drink the wine so quickly. It was indeed a bit of a surprise.

Bob saw her whispering with Erin, and he subconsciously shifted his eyes to them.

'What are you two talking about, whispering here all the time.'

'Why did Nicole haven't come back yet?'

Bob calculated the time, it seemed that it would have been more than half an hour. And it was indeed a bit abnormal now that Nicole came back.

Facing Bob's questioning, she still didn't know how to explain to him.
