

The Fight

Captain Rogers looked back to Banner, "Doctor Banner, now might be a really good time for you to get angry."

He turned back, "That's my secret, Cap. I'm always angry." Banner turned toward the Leviathan as his skin turned green and his body grew ten times its normal size.

"Does this happen o en?" Freya's eyebrows furrowed and she glanced at Thor. He shrugged.

"It's kinda his thing." Clint said. The Hulk punched the Leviathan and it smashed it's large body to the ground. Freya pushed o the ground.

"Freya!" Thor shouted. She li ed her arms above her head and gathered her energy into a swirling ball of light.

"Hold On!" Iron man said into their ear pieces. He stopped above the creature and blasted a missile at the creature. At the same time Freya throws down her own blast. The explosion sends her back. Thor jumped up and caught her then turned her around to block her from the explosion.

"Must you be so reckless?" He asked.

"Calm down big brother." Tony said, "She should be as reckless as she want. What are you working with lasers? Light beams?"

"Uh — Magic." She said.

"Right." Tony sighed and hovered above them, Captain Rogers. They stood in a circle all seven of them. Freya stepped away from Thor and pulled out her sta . The Hulk roared and Thor gripped Mjolnir tight. Natasha loads her guns while the Chitauri roared back at the avengers.

From the portal in the sky thousands more Chitauri and Leviathans flew through.

"Guys?" Natasha looked around at the make shi team in front of her.

"Call it, Captain." Iron Man said.

Rogers nodded up at him and looked around the team, "Alright, listen up. Until we can close that portal up there, we're gonna use containment. Barton, I want you on that roof, eyes on everything. Call out patterns and strays. Stark, you got the perimeter. Anything gets more than three blocks out, you turn it back or you turn it to ash." He said and Clint looked to Tony.

"Wanna give me a li ?" He asked.

"Right. Better clench up, Legolas." Iron man grabs Barton and the two of them fly up toward the tops of the buildings. Freya glances at Thor and then back to Rogers.

"Freya," He walks over to her. His mouth bobs for a moment, "You think you can do more of," He pointed to where the Leviathan flew, "more of that."

"I want Loki." She said.

"One step at a time, we gotta get the Chitauri out of here first." Rogers said. She smiled, the adrenaline and magic still running through her veins.

"What makes you think I can't do both, Captain Rogers?" Freya asked her lips curling up more. She turned to walk away but Thor stepped in front of her.

"Sister he will kill you or turn you against us, if he gets the chance." Thor said. "I know you are hurt but, don't let him goad you."

She met his blue eyes with a pale green stare. Freya was nothing if she wasn't determined. "I won't let him win." She reached out a hand for him to take. He looked down at her arm and back up at her. He grabbed her forearm and she did the same.

"I'm glad to fight along your side, sister." He said and released her arm. She glanced at Rogers before pushing o the ground. Her power glowed around her as she landed on a Chitauri ship. The gunner raised their weapon but she brought her sta down and he fell from the script. She pulled a hand up and wrapped her power around the ship. She jumped o the ship and broke it apart by the twitch of her fingers.

Her body fell a few feet in the sky but she caught herself with her own magic. She glanced around at the sky, and she spotted him. His golden horns, as he flew on one of the ships. A Leviathan turned a corner and was headed straight for her.

"You got this one, lightbulb?" She heard Tony in her ear. He flew up next to her his golden helmet turned to her.

"I take the belly, you take the back?" She tilted her head to the side.

He pointed a finger at her, "I like the way you think." Freya twirled her sta and flew toward the creature. She blinked and an image of her sta charged with her magic appeared in her mind. She had never tried such a thing but before that day she hadn't flown as much as she was. So her eyes trailed down to the sta . She slide it down into her hand and then gripped it tight. She turned upside down and pressed her hands into the sta . Magic sparked o the silver metal — the sta was made from her own mind so of course she could make it be more than just a sta , she thought — She stabbed it into the Leviathan's belly and dragged it across the metal, creating a sharp line. She flew around its tail. It slowly fell from the sky.

"We got civilians!" Tony ducked down and moved toward the ground. The corpse was headed for a street full of people running for their life. Freya landed on its back. She pressed her hands to the back.

"Intention, Intention, Intention." She whispered to herself. Freya had never used this much of her power. Her body trembled but the fear of mortals dying when she had the power to protect them kept her going.

She closed her eyes and let her magic seep out of her from every part of her soul. While her eyes were closed she could see more than she ever had before. A sky opened up to the cosmos, her body lit up by iridescences that poured out of her, Druig and her surrounded by people with red ribbon around their wrists, the cave filled with darkness.

The power exploded out of her and she felt her hands go through the metal as it turned to dust. She fell, and as the world spun she cursed herself for not being strong enough to fly a er using so much power. Her back fell into a car and it crunched under her weight.

"Holy shit!" Mr. Stark ran over to her. "Are you okay?"

She groaned and opened her eyes. She turned to look at him, "I just turned that thing to dust." She let out a small laugh.

"Yeah and then fell at least 30 stories into a Nissan." He said. "How much practice did you say you had before this?" He asked.

"I didn't." She pushed o the car and jumped o .She stumbled a bit and Tony steadied her.

"Woah okay, maybe we should take a timeout." Tony said. Freya glanced up at him. She appreciated the concern. But there was something amazing in using her power at one hundred present. Her body couldn't handle it well but there were glimpses of where her power came from. The cave still fresh on her mind, she needed to find it, she needed to find out what this power came from.

"No time for timeouts." Freya held out her hand and her magic formed back into a sta . "Don't worry, Stark. I was born for this." She said and flew into the air before he could object.

"Thor your sister is on a power high." Stark said into the ear piece. She smiled and shook her head, maybe she was but, she didn't mind. Her power was being used for good, so she'd use it till she couldn't anymore.

<<<<>>

Natasha kicked a warrior with her arm extended shooting another. She is grabbed by a Chitauri and thrown against a car. She shot her wrist out and shocks the creature. He fell and grabs it's weapon. She shoots two other warriors with their own tech. Captain Rogers landed behind her and she spins with the weapon pointed at him. She lowered the gun and leans back against a car.

"Captain, none of this is gonna mean a damn thing if we don't close that portal." She said.

"Our biggest guns couldn't touch it." Steve shook his head. Natasha looked down at her feet and then back up at him.

"Well, maybe it's not about guns." She said. A group of warriors run at the two. Captain Rogers stands beside Natasha and they prepare themselves. She aims the weapon at them and just as she's about to fire a bolt of light crashed down in front of them. Freya breaks her scepter in two and throws them, charged with her magic, at the warriors. The four Chitauri collapse and the sta pieces come back to her.

She turns around and looks at the two of them. "If I get up there, I could possibly shut it down." She said.

"Are you sure?" Rogers asked.

"No I'm not." She placed her sta onto her back and glanced down at her hands. "But I think it's worth a shot."

"You wanna get up there, you're gonna need a ride." He said and glanced up at the cra s that flew past them. Freya looked over at Natasha and nodded.

"We got a ride. But I could use a boost though." Said and walked a few steps away from Rogers. He held up his shield and his eyes widened.

"You sure about this?" He asked.

"Yeah, it's gonna be fun!" She shrugged and ran toward him. She jumped onto his shield and he pushes her upwards. Freya flies toward the vehicle. Natasha lands on the edge of the cra and Freya pulled her the rest of the way up. She grabs Nat and li s her the rest of the way. Nat grabbed a dagger and stabs a warrior in the neck while Freya knocks the other o with her sta .

"How do we drive this thing?" Natasha yelled.

"I don't know." Freya grabbed hold of the steering mechanism. Two cra s come up behind them and Freya swerved to the le to avoid them. Tony comes up from behind and shot the two down. "Now we just have to get up to the tower." She looked at Natasha.

"I'll protect your six." Natasha grabbed a Chitauri weapon up from the floor of the cra . Freya nodded and turned back and focused on not crashing.

"We got a problem!" Natasha shouted and Freya's head turned to look back at her. There was a cra following close behind.

"Loki." Freya said through gritted teeth.

"Hey," Natasha's eyes widened. "Stay driving. Let me handle him." She said. Freya begrudgingly, faced forward. They pulled around a corner.

"Hawkeye!" Nat called out.

"What the hell are you two doing?" He said over the com link.

"We got someone on our tail." Natasha said, "you wanna help us out?"

"I got it." He said, aimed and fired.

Natasha moved closer to Freya, "You know how to stop this thing?" She asked. Freya looked frantically at the alien tech in front of her.

"No, no I don't." She said.

"Alright," Natasha nodded. "Looks like we're jumping." She said. Freya nodded. The two of them jumped. Freya landed on wobbly legs and Natasha rolled and stuck the landing. Freya stood at the edge of the roof and glanced down. Loki stood and met her gaze. She narrowed her eyes and stepped forward. Natasha grabbed her arm.

"Think about the big picture, we could end this now or you could go get him. What do you think will hurt him more?" She spoke so ly. Loki smiled up at Freya, teasing her, testing her. She clenched her fists and she looked at Natasha.

"Let's destroy this thing." Freya turned to the tesseract. She walked toward it and Natasha stayed by the edge.

She could feel the power radiating from the machine. If what Druig said was true, her only limitation was her own strength. She reached out a hand and from the tips of her fingers to the base of her wrist her veins glowed white. I can do this, she thought to herself.

Freya shot out her power and her arm shook herself. Her other hand forward. She let out a scream, her entire body burned. She saw the force field split open but the tesseract threw her back. Her magic fizzled out and her body landed on the balcony of Stark Tower.

Natasha looked down at Freya, "Freya's down!" She pressed her fingers onto her ear piece. "She couldn't stop it."

A/N

Besties!!! We are close to the end of the first Avengers arc. Look out for another chapter tomorrow! Let me know your thoughts!!

Also last time to put in input, do we see all four avengers movie and Ragnarok?? Or do I do a time jump??

I appreciate all your comments and votes and reads 😊 it means the world

Continue reading next part