Chapter 831 Who Is She

Sylvia's POV:

Everything has turned for the worse. Laura almost fainted when she had heard that Ethan was put in a critical condition. It was a fortunate thing that the doctor was present and was able to inject tranquilizer into Laura just in time.

"How is the queen now?" Looking at Rufus' gloomy face made me even more anxious.

"She's with my father. She has managed to calm down for now." Rufus was clearly depressed, his low tone reverberating through my ears. He caressed my hands and began to walk us out. "Let's talk outside. It's too depressing in here."

I nodded and followed him to the corridor.

"Is it a stab wound?" I asked.

Chapter 832 Noreen Was Playing Tricks Again

Sylvia's POV:

"No. It has nothing to do with Harry," Joanna stated. "He's innocent and was implicated because of me."

I could tell that she was getting anxious. She probably thought that we really were going to sentence Harry to death.

"In that case, tell us everything you know so we can prove Harry's innocence."

As expected, she began to waver. She wanted to say something but decided against it when she glanced at Rufus beside me.

It didn't take long for me to realize what was weighing on her mind, so I took Rufus' hand and signaled him to go out first.

Chapter 833 The Prophecy Of A Witch

Sylvia's POV:

Judging from Joanna's attitude, I was certain that it was Noreen.

I nearly went insane. Damn it! Noreen was literally everywhere.

"It's the person you described," Joanna whispered.

"I see." Feeling a little relieved, I questioned her about her true identity. "Rufus discovered that you're not John. The real John died two years ago."

Joanna's lips curled up with disdain. "I know he's dead. Because I'm that loser's twin sister."

Chapter 834 The Training Of A Killer

Sylvia's POV:

"Did Noreen save you?" My mind instinctively jumped to that woman. She was the only person I could think of. She had a knack for always appearing at the right time. It almost seemed like she was in control of everyone's fate, and she could do whatever she wanted with them.

No matter how angry we were, there was nothing we could do about it. Noreen was like a gust of wind. She always appeared out of the blue and then vanished without a trace. She was the one who always took the initiative to come to us and we wouldn't even know where to find her.

Chapter 835 Noreen's Real Purpose

Sylvia's POV:

"She is interested in the lycan bloodline?" I looked at Joanna and cocked my head in bewilderment. Did the lycan bloodline have influence on the black witch?

Joanna nodded and said, "Yes. She once told me when she was drunk. The black witch race has always highly regarded a pure bloodline while a hybrid is completely useless in their eyes."

I pursed my lips and sneered. "Yes, the noble black witch race never allows the hybrid to stain their pure bloodline."

Chapter 836 The Enemy Has Infiltrated

Sylvia's POV:

Noreen was too cunning. Until now, I still couldn't figure out her true purpose.

If she didn't hate Ethan, why did she insist on killing him?

My thoughts wandered to all the things that she had done. It didn't seem like she had a clear purpose either.

It seemed like everyone around me had already been Noreen's pawns.

"Actually, there's another thing I haven't told you," Joanna suddenly said.

"What is it?"

Chapter 837 I Am The Mastermind

Sylvia's POV:

Rufus went to investigate the case, and I went back to his palace. I stayed in my room the whole time and didn't plan on going anywhere.

Everyone in the imperial palace was worried about Ethan's condition after the accident. It wasn't the right time for me to do anything reckless except for waiting patiently for Rufus to come back.

Still, I felt very uneasy as I lay on the rocking chair and recalled what Joanna told me. I couldn't help but feel like I had missed something.

Chapter 838 Maya's Special Smoothie

Sylvia's POV:

Rufus and I were not surprised by the cooks' confession, which also confirmed Joanna's side of story. Noreen's original intent was to frame me.

We were now even more certain that the person behind this incident was Noreen.

I just needed to figure out who on earth Noreen had impersonated so that she could act so unscrupulously in the imperial palace.

"Let's have dinner first. I have something to show you after we eat." Rufus led me to the table.

Chapter 839 Impersonating

Sylvia's POV:

I took the tray from Maya and placed it on the table. "Have you been waiting at the door for a long time? Next time, you can just knock at the door."

"I just arrived." Maya's lips curved up into a gentle smile, just like before.

Rufus nonchalantly sat at the table and sipped on a glass of water without looking at the noodles on the table.

I took Maya's hand and led her to a seat next to me. Pretending to be surprised, I picked up the spoon to eat the soup. "You've made the chicken noodle soup! I haven't eaten this in so long."

Chapter 840 The Spy Has Already Infiltrated

Sylvia's POV:

All Maya's changes were very subtle. If Rufus hadn't checked Ethan's diet records today, we might not have found anything wrong with her.

She was a sensible, gentle person. She would occasionally become extroverted whenever she was with me in private, and she rarely had any conflict with other people. Not to mention, she was responsible, especially when it came to her job. It would be impossible for her to tell the chef make something cold for the lycan king if she knew he wasn't feeling well.
