Chapter 102 wWw.NoVē@ôrmm.c(o)m

"Then won't you be in danger? Jaydon, I can't let you die. You're so good to me. I'm so touched." Evelyn was so touched that she was about to cry.

Alita, on the other hand, was stupefied. If she were alone with Jaydon again, that would be terrible.

She thought, 'To hell with his talk of evil spirits.' w(w).n@Vê@woRM.©ómm

"Mr. Lewis." Alita was furious. She couldn't care less and said, "Don't take advantage of me. There aren't evil spirits in this world. Stop pretending. Let go of me, you bastard."

"She's feeling guilty," Jaydon said calmly.

Evelyn nodded in agreement. "Yes, she's feeling guilty."

"Take the flashlight and go over quickly. Remember, no matter what sounds you hear, don't come over because I'm fighting her," Jaydon said. righteously.

"Don't go over, Evelyn. He's lying to you. He wants to take advantage of me. Don't let him have his way. Trust me." Alita wished she could tell Evelyn that she was Jaydon's ex-wife.

Evelyn held the flashlight and looked at Alita in fear. "I don't believe you. Jaydon is a gentleman. He won't do that. Don't lie to me." As she spoke, she looked at Jaydon with admiration and affection. "Darling, you're my hero."

Alita was dumbstruck.

She swore that for the first time in her life, she was rendered speechless. She wondered what kind of spell Jaydon had cast over Evelyn.

Jaydon smiled knowingly. "Go now. I'll fight here."

Evelyn rushed into the tent next door in the dark with a flashlight, scaring Karen and the others out of their wits. They screamed, thinking that some wild beast had come.

When they saw it was Evelyn, their jaws dropped.

"Miss... Miss Jenner, why are you here?" Karen picked up the half of the biscuit that had fallen to the ground and nibbled on it again.

Evelyn told them what had just happened. "It was really scary, so Jaydon told me to hide here. He's fighting alone. He's a real man."

Karen, Sabina, and Crystal froze.

The same question appeared in their minds at the same time. Was Mr. Lewis really not taking advantage of Ms. Thompson?

Silence fell. After a gust of desolate wind blew outside, they did not make a sound or express any opinion. They ate biscuits, played games, and slept.

If Alita knew they left her in the lurch, she would definitely skin them alive.

In the other tent, Jaydon laughed arrogantly and devilishly. "It's just the two of us now. No one will save you even if you scream your lungs out."

"I think you're the one who's crazy instead. You're so different from usual." Alita struggled with her hands. She was in complete despair. She was in the forest, and with the heavy rain outside, there was no way she could escape from this small tent.

Jaydon laughed. "You're right, I'm the devil."

"Jaydon, you're getting married. Why are you still entangled with me? Do you think it's interesting? I really don't understand what's going on in your mind. What do you want?" Alita felt very helpless.

Jaydon leaned against her limply. He turned sideways and hugged her tightly. He closed his green eyes. "This is what I want."

Alita was stunned. She grabbed his hair and said, "You're being silly!"

"Am I being silly? I think it's good. Wifey, I really want to hug you to sleep." Jaydon adjusted his posture and pulled the blanket to cover them.

"But I don't want to sleep with you. Besides, I'm not your wife." Alita pushed him away but was hugged tightly by him again.

"We either sleep or make love. It's your choice." Jaydon stared at the woman in his arms. wWw.ñovèL(w)ôrM.(c)ó(m)

"Can I choose to send you flying with a kick?" Alita asked angrily. WwW.n@vEWorm.c(o)mm

Jaydon chuckled. "Obviously not."

Alita smiled and leaned in his arms. She said, "Let's sleep." She closed her eyes and thought that when Jaydon fell asleep later, she would quietly escape from his control and look for anything that could be used as a weapon.
