Chapter 44

"Please!" Alita had a desperate look on her face. All she could think of right now was saving Jaydon. But Jaydon wasn't letting her save him, so she needed Kim's help.

Alita's words caused Kim to be in a bitter mood. This caused him to feel that the air in his lungs was bitter as well as he slowly breathed out. He walked over and pinned Jaydon down by the shoulders. ©wW.n0ve()©R.M.cðm

Let go!" Jaydon opened his eyes and shouted powerlessly.

"You should be grateful towards your wife. Not everyone will be willing to do something like this for you in this cruel world." Kim's voice was soft. This was because if he was any louder, his heart would ache and that would cause him to be unable to Ww(w).novel.Wðrm.c(©)mm breathe.

The woman he had loved so much for 14 years was in love with another man.

Kim clenched his fists as if he was going to crush Jaydon's collarbones.

Alita didn't hesitate to squat down and lean towards the wound. She sucked forcefully and then spat the liquid in her mouth on the ground. She then repeated this action time after time.

Such a b*f*o*o*dy scene made Annabel want to throw up.

"Get lost!" Jaydon shouted through gritted teeth. He wanted to break free, but was pinned down by the three of them and couldn't move at all.

He could feel the touch of the soft lips on his leg. It was warm and full of courage. Jaydon felt that the lips weren't touching his leg, but his heart. The warmth made him feel guilty.

He slowly lost consciousness and could only see a white light. Alita's smile seemed to be slowly disappearing in the light.

Alita only stopped when the blood she was sucking out turned from purple to red.

She wiped her mouth with the back of her hand and climbed off the ground. "Jaydon."

"He's unconscious. We need to get him to a hospital as soon as possible." Kim removed his hand from Jaydon's shoulders.

Annabel was so desperate that she began crying. "But we don't have any signal here. Grandpa is only going to pick us up in two days' time. Jaydon's not going to last two days."

"Don't panic. There's got to be a way." Alita forced herself to calm down. She then stood up. "Keep an eye on him. There are bandages upstairs, I'll go fetch them and bandage his wound."

"Okay!" Annabel nodded

Kim looked at Alita with concern. He could see that her face had paled. "Are you alright? I'll go get the bandages."

"No. I'll be right back," said Alita as she walked up the stairs.

As she ran up the stairs and stood in the corridor, she suddenly felt dizzy. Her head began to spin and she began to see double figures. She reached out to lean against the wall but missed and fell to the ground,

Alita blacked out and lost consciousness.

Chapter 44

When Alita slowly regained consciousness, she could hear running water. There was also the smell of disinfectant as well. Everything seemed to be very peaceful and quiet.

Alita slowly opened her eyes and saw a white ceiling. It looked clean and soft, like a goose's feather. A breeze was blowing into the room from the open window. When she turned around, she saw a blue sky, white clouds, and a bright sun.

"Where am I? How come it's day time? Where's Jaydon?"

Sitting up from the bed, she saw a needle in her hand. Alita only realized that she was in a hospital when she saw she was put on a drip.

The door opened and a nurse walked in. "Miss Thompson, you're awake!" W@w.Nóø(©)IWøRM.coM

"Please may I ask how's Jaydon, the one bitten by a snake?" Alita asked desperately.

"He's fine. You were in an even more critical state than him. Here, let me check your body temperature. The nurse passed a thermometer to Alita.

Hearing that Jaydon was fine, Alita breathed a sigh of relief. She took the thermometer from the nurse and asked, "Which ward is he in?"

"He's right next door. You can go see him once your drip is finished." The nurse pointed to the room behind her.

"Okay, thanks!" Alita smiled politely and looked behind her.
