

It's Too Late To Get A Divorce by Coreal White Chapter 80

Chapter 80

Alita covertly covered her pocket with her hand. She was tense to the maximum. She couldn't let Jaydon discover her phone. let alone see the messages from Kim. The more she agitated him, the less chance she had to escape.

"What sound? You must be hearing things. Maybe you've had too much to drink," she deliberately said loudly to cover up the vibrating sound. Sweats started forming on her forehead.

"That's not right. Jaydon focused on her pocket. "Take it out."

"Take out what? Jaydon, you're drunk. Don't go crazy on me. Alita argued, leaning back and clutching her pocket tighter. He was indeed not an easy person to deceive.

Jaydon squinted his green eyes, pounced on her, and forcibly reached for her pocket, taking out her phone.

"Give it back. That's my phone, you jerk! Give it back! Alita immediately tried to snatch it back. Unfortunately, her phone wasn't password-protected.

With one hand, Jaydon easily restrained her. His face turned sour as he opened the phone. WWW.n\(s\)veiw\(s\)RM.com

Upon reading these messages, Jaydon's breath caught, and his heart sank. He thought she was eventually going to be with Kim and didn't want to be with him. This realization turned his pain into cold resentment.

Jaydon opened the two messages. The first message read, [Alita, I'm close to this area. Come out and try to be in an open space. Turn on your phone's flashlight, and I'll find you!] The second one said, [Alita, I'm near the location. Reply to me now]

Jaydon's hand slowly clenched into a fist. After a few seconds, he leisurely looked up at the sky. He had a sinister and cold smile, his green eyes filled with killing intent.

"Jaydon. Alita could anticipate Jaydon's reaction after seeing the messages. Now, not only could she not escape, but she would also implicate Kim.

Then, the sound of an aircraft passing overhead came from the sky, but it wasn't unusual in summer, so nobody paid much attention to it..

Alita's thoughts abruptly shifted, thinking that after Jaydon saw the messages, he looked up at the sky. Could it be that Kim was flying a helicopter to rescue her? Unfortunately, she couldn't see the information on her phone now. www.\(n\)6\(s\)Lw@rm.com

"Impressive. Mr. Andrews. You're quite bold. You're really willing to go through fire and water for her. Jaydon squeezed the phone audibly

Knowing that denial and defense were useless, Alita asked tentatively, "Did he mention in the message that he's flying a helicopter to come over here?"

Jaydon chuckled and said, "Are you trying to probe me and get the information from this phone? Fine, I'll tell you. I'll make sure the person on the helicopter becomes a corpse." He had lost his sanity. Fueled by alcohol and intense hatred, he was capable of the most horrific deeds.

Alita felt a chill down her spine. Kim had indeed sent a helicopter. She knew that even a tiny object hitting the aircraft during landing could cause a crash with unimaginable consequences. She couldn't let Kim be harmed!

"Jaydon Alita grabbed Jaydon's arm. At this moment, she couldn't provoke this irrational man. For now, she needed to stabilize him. She calmed down and smiled, saying, "Don't do this, okay? It has nothing to do with him. I wanted to leave, so I asked for his help. Give me the phone, and I'll call him, telling him I changed my mind and want to go back with you. How about that?"

Jaydon looked at her with a dazed expression. If only this were true, it would be so good. Unfortunately, this was just her pretending to plead for another man.

He suddenly smiled brightly and approached her. In an extremely gentle and Afraid I'll kill your lover?"

Alita replied, "He's innocent."

"Well, there's no such thing as innocence in my book. His face suddenly transformed into an even brighter smile. "Today. he's going to die." His tone was so soft that it sent shivers down the spine.

"No, please, don't. I beg you not to do this. If you kill someone, you'll end up in jail. You're so wealthy and young. It's not worth it." Alita truly felt a sense of fear. Other mistakes might have a chance for redemption, but intentional murder had no room for that. She couldn't bear to watch Kim lose his life, which would ruin Jaydon's future.

Jaydon affectionately held her tightly and said, "It's okay. As long as I have you with me, I'm fine going to hell. Even if it's the execution ground, I'll go with you, Honey

"Jaydon." Alita felt a heart-wrenching pain and frustration. She pushed him away abruptly and exclaimed, "Can't you sober up a bit? Fine, I go back with you. Spare Kim, give me the phone"

Jaydon fell to the ground. "Is your love for him that strong? Fine I'll grant you two options. One, you stay and watch how I kill him. Two, you accompany him to die."

I choose option two. Just kill me as well." Alita was furious. Since he wanted to kill someone so badly now, what difference did one more make?

When the heart was twisted into pieces, one realized that the pain had become emptiness.

Jaydon finally understood her true feelings. He smirked and said, "Good, very good, Alita. Why did you come to the Lewis family? How nice it would have been if you had never come!

"That's exactly what I think. That's why I will never return to that cage, even if you kill me today!" Alita looked at his eyes. Her heart was flooded with sadness in an instant, flowing against the current.

Kim's helicopter couldn't land yet because Alita hadn't replied to his messages. The pilot asked, "Mr. Andrews, what should we do now?"

Looking at the pitch-black land below, Kim, realizing that Alita Hadn't responded to his two messages, concluded that something must have happened. Perhaps Jaydon had discovered her and taken her. In that case, she wouldn't be able to follow his instructions.

"See if there's any place nearby where we can land. I need to get down," he decisively told the pilot.

"All right, Mr. Andrews."

All

Samuel spent more than half an hour to reach the village. When he got closer, he heard the sound of a helicopter hovering in the sky. Could it be that Jaydon was using a helicopter to capture Alita?

No, if they were using a helicopter, there would be no need to deploy so many Lewis family bodyguards. During his journey, he hadn't encountered them either, which meant that they were still in the village.

He asked the motorcycle rider to stop outside the cabin near the orchard, which was where the tracker ultimately led.

After getting off the motorcycle, Samuel walked briskly towards the cabin. There was no sign of any sound, suggesting that there might not be anyone inside. Pushing the door open, the place was indeed empty, and the luggage was left on the table. Did that girl manage to escape?

Samuel immediately left the house. The local guy who brought him there was still standing outside smoking. Samuel gave him another 40 dollars, asking him to inquire which household in the village had outsiders.

The man happily accepted the money and enthusiastically went to inquire while Samuel followed him. The surroundings were pitch dark, and there was no one to guide them. It was a troublesome situation,

In the yard, Jaydon and Alita were still facing each other. The bodyguards on both sides remained motionless like statues. Villagers outside watched with unwavering attention, finding the scene more interesting than a soap opera on television. Even people from neighboring villages came to see it.

At this moment, the sound of the helicopter disappeared from the sky.

Alita's thoughts shifted, and she breathed a sigh of relief. Hopefully, Kim had already flown away.

"Go and find it. The helicopter must have landed." Jaydon sat up straight and commanded in a deep voice. He massaged his forehead, trying to clear his dazed mind. Kim wouldn't leave easily if he hadn't found Alita. As a foreman, Jaydon could guess Kim's intentions.

"Yes, Mr. Lewis. We'll go right away."

Ten bodyguards silently exchanged glances, assigning directions for the search. Their trained actions were well-coordinated.

Seeing this group of bodyguards quickly going out, Alita felt nervous and said, "It's also possible that he has already flown away. I told him that if I didn't reply, he should leave."

Jaydon sneered coldly. "Alita, do you think you can deceive me with your little tricks? Rest assured, if I catch him, I will cut him into pieces right in front of you."

"Jaydon, are you a gangster? You sound ridiculous, like a cartoonish villain. Eskan is a society ruled by law. Do you think you're in Huglon?" Alita sternly refuted his words.

"Honey, you look so beautiful when you're scared. I'm really looking forward to seeing you even more beautiful when I cut pieces from Kim later. I'm quite excited about it." Jaydon cruelly caressed her face.

"You're a psychopath," Alita said with disgust and hatred, waving away his hand and trying to leave. But her body was pulled. back by him!

Jaydon whispered into her ear, "You're not allowed to escape."

Strong alcoholic fumes made Alita turn her head away. "... I need to use the bathroom. I ate too many peaches, and now I'm desperate," she said, not entirely deceiving him with her words. www\(n\)6\(s\)Lw@rm.com

"Handle it here!" Jaydon roared.

"You... are insane." Alita looked embarrassed and glanced at the expressionless bodyguards on either side. They must have heard it, and she couldn't imagine what they were thinking.

"Shh." Jaydon put his index finger to his lips. "If you get angry, you'll be more likely to wet your pants." Alita clenched her fists, pursed her lips, and was so angry that she couldn't speak..

Outside the fence, the man guiding Samuel saw a crowd watching a commotion up ahead. It was late at night, and the man pondered what they were doing. However, Samuel already knew what was happening.

He strode past, running up, and politely said, "Excuse me, can you make way?"

The villagers were dumbfounded by the handsome and courteous man. Where did all these handsome guys come from today, and they were also polite? They felt comfortable looking at him.

Under Samuel's signature friendly smile, the villagers warmly made way for him.

"Thank you!" He smiled, expressed his gratitude, and entered the house without stopping.

The two people in the yard looked over when they saw someone coming in. Alita recognized that the newcomer was Samuel, feeling even more powerless!
